INVESTIGATION OF NEW YORK BANKS

CALLED USURPER OF POWER

Beveridge Takes Up Defense of President and Scores Democrats as Lukewarm Bryan Followers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—After delivering another bitter harangue against the President to-day, Senator Tillman forced upon his colleagues the adoption of a resolution that provides for a searching investigation of the banks of New York and their connection with Wall Street. The anti-Roosevelt Republicans listened to Tillman's assault with the utmost complacency, but Senator Beveridge went manfully to Roosevelt's defense and threw the Democrats into confusion by holding up before them their lukewarm indorsement of Bryan.

The Tillman resolution directs the Senate Committee on Finance to investigate and report whether the New York National banks furnished funds for speculation; if the Treasury knew of the loans made by the National Bank of North America to Charles W. Morse, or similar transactions; whether the New York banks are seeking to influence legislation; whether they are seeking, through the organization of trust companies, to engage in business that National banks are forbidden by the Federal law to undertake, and whether they loan credit to stock brokers through certification or acceptance of checks.

Another provision of the resolution was the subject of some heated remarks by its author. This directs the Finance Committee to ascertain what legislation is necessary to discourage the use of the Treasury as a stepping stone to high places in the financial world. Senator Tillman quoted from a long list the names of officials who have left the Treasury Department to take places with big banking concerns.

Denounces President's Domination.

The Senator from South Carolina started in to discuss the Currency bill, but he quickly began a savage attack on Roosevelt and Republican policies. He was especially bitter over what he termed the usurpation of power by the Executive. He drew attention to the many conferences at the White House, in which railroad and trust magnates and labor leaders were summoned, to the exclusion of the legislators of the Nation.

"And all this with a Republican Congress!" he exclaimed. "Where is the skill of the lawmakers of the Republican Party? Where are the grave and reverend seigniors who were framing laws when this man in the White House was in his swaddling clothes? Who is to be the spaniel messenger who is to bring here this message on the new bill? I'm going to wait and see."

Then he launched into a bitter philippic against the domination of Congress by the President. He denounced the action of the White House in interfering with the prerogatives of the legislative branch. In equally vigorous terms he scored the demands of the President for additional legislation when, he insisted, laws on the statute books governing the ills complained of were amply liberal to cope with the troubles.

"I say it, and I would say it if it were my last word," he declaimed, "that what this country needs is a Democratic President, so that the Republican majority in this body, intrenched so firmly that it cannot be ousted, no matter how great the political whirlwind, and which could prevent any radical legislation, might substitute a backbone for the cotton string that now runs up their spine. Would that they might doff subserviency to don statesmanship!"

The Senator proceeded to denounce as extravagant the claims that the President had carried out any of the policies he had announced. He pointed out several, all of which he said were not prolific of result. The forestry policy of the Administration came in for an exceptionally rough handling.

"What has he done in this regard?" questioned Tillman, with rising voice. "What has the President to say to the holdings of the Southern Pacific, which owns 2,000,000 acres of the finest forest land in the world, that corporation presided over by 'My Dear Harriman'? It is true the Department of Justice is moving in the Southern Pacific case, and something may be done. But what of the Northern Pacific?"

Treasury "School for Bankers."

Then Mr. Tillman turned his attention to the Treasury Department, and pictured it as a school for the training of men who may eventually be used by the National banks. Secretaries Boutwell, Gage, and Shaw, he declared, had dropped the Treasury portfolio to assume charge of the destinies of banking corporations. He read a list of Assistant Secretaries who had done the same thing, and then, turning to the Controller of the Currency, he said:

"This lays bare a rich vein of ore. In the last few years there have been seven Controllers who have left the Treasury to engage with National banks. All of them neglected their sworn duty to protect the interests of the National banks. They did this, and now they are being taken care of. How long is this misuse of the Treasury of the United States as a training school for financiers to continue?"

This brought up Senator Hale, who protested against what he declared was Tillman's "harangue." What was needed, he said, was something better than the Currency bill as framed by the Committee on Finance, and not idle criticism of the measure. Forced by Tillman, who has failed to obtain an acknowledgment from Aldrich, Hale made what was practically an apology for the Government's actions in the recent panic.

The Senator from Maine, to the surprise of his colleagues, said the issue of Panama Canal bonds, the issuance of Clearing House certificates, and the deposits of Government money in the New York banks were unfortunate if not unjustifiable. He held, however, that the Aldrich bill sought to remedy this condition of affairs and prevent their recurrence. He invited Tillman to offer a better medium through which the reform might be effected.

Mr. Tillman floundered for a moment, and then declared that he was in favor of interchangeable bonds, on which the possessors might get currency notes in times of financial stress. He would issue, he said, all the money necessary to care for the interests of the country.

"I would place no limit on the issue," he announced. "Call me greenbacker, fiat money man, or what you will, I believe that Uncle Sam's promise to pay,

CONTROL OF LONDON TIMES.

Moberly Bell Secures Backing of Two Peers and Becomes Managing Director.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 16.—C. F. Moberly Bell has beaten C. Arthur Pearson in his fight for the control of The London Times, Justice Warrington to-day having sanctioned Mr. Bell's scheme, which provides that a company shall be formed to take over the business and publication of The Times, with Mr. Bell as managing Director. Arthur F. Walter will be Chairman of the company's board, which will consist solely of members of the existing staff of the paper. No shares in the company will be offered to the public, Mr. Bell having found two members of the House of Lords who are willing to furnish the necessary financial backing. One of Mr. Bell's backers is identified with high finance; the other is solely interested in politics. Neither will take an active part in the management of the newspaper.

Mr. Bell, when seen to-night, said he had nothing to add to the announcement that will be printed in The London Times to-morrow, setting forth in general terms the scheme of new ownership. Mr. Pearson's views on the subject have not been ascertained.

Mr. Bell's company will be one with limited liability, its capital being £750,000.

The amount to be paid for the good will of the paper is said to be £320,000, (about $1,600,000.)

COUNTESS LONYAY INVENTOR.

Patents a Combination of Chafing Dish and Lamp—To be Put on Market.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, March 16.—The Countess Lonyay, formerly Archduchess Stephanie, has invented a new chafing dish and spirit lamp combined, and taken out patents in England, France, Germany, Italy, and Belgium.

Her omission to take out a patent in the United States is considered remarkable, for throughout Europe the proficiency of Columbia's daughters with the chafing dish is traditional, the United States at times being described as the land of the chafing dish.

Countess Lonyay intends to put her invention on the market as soon as possible, and is negotiating with several firms with this purpose in mind. Her design will be carried out in silver, and sold under her own name.

SEA SERPENT JUST GRINNED.

Skipper Who Saw It Also Beheld a Floating Island with Pink Monkeys.

Strange things are to be seen these days along the southern steamship track, according to Capt. Mader of the fruit-carrying steamer Admiral Farragut, which got in yesterday from Port Antonio with a cargo of bananas.

Not only did the skipper sight a sea serpent which chased the ship for two days, but he saw a floating island populated by pink monkeys. To add to the interest of those on board the crow laid eggs in the crow's nest and the ship received a decided list to starboard because part of her cargo, some 200 turtles, ran to the starboard rail to view New York as the vessel came up the bay.

All this the skipper related standing in the door of his room, as, with pen in hand, he paused in the work of making up his log for the inspection of his agents.

"I do not seek publicity," he began, apologetically. "The story of the sea serpent—sure it is true—don't the afternoon papers say so? We were somewhere near the Gulf when the monster first hove into sight. It rose majestically half a mile behind us, and, after lifting a head fifty feet from the water to take observations, it dropped back to the sea level again and started after us.

"It was a dirty brown color spotted with bright green, about 150 feet long and with a ten-foot head topped with a pair of horns. It was a good-natured monster and grinned at us, but, fearing its anger, I stationed a man at the stern to throw food to it. For two days it was in sight, and then, with a saluting sweep of its tail, it left us."

Skipper Mader told of passing the island, and added, as though to convince his hearers of the truth of his tale:

"There is an affidavit goes with this story, and I would also say that I am not a drinking man."

NO CUT IN DIAMOND PRICES.

Retailers Warned of Punishment if They Make Any Reductions.

The officers of the Diamond Cutters' Association of America say diamonds are not going to be cheap despite the threatened war of prices abroad. The De Beers and Premier Companies, which produce 99 per cent. of all the diamonds now sold, it is reported, have decided to dissolve their pooling arrangement and to go it alone. This started the story of cheaper diamonds to come. In spite of the fact that dealers here have large supplies, due to the almost total cessation of buying following the October panic, prices here in New York City are being maintained, but sales are still small.

Cablegrams were received yesterday from both companies, it was said, declaring that they intended to maintain the old prices regardless of pooling arrangements. A jeweler's weekly, that goes out to-day, will warn retailers over the country that if they do any cutting on the prices of diamonds fixed by the wholesalers they will be punished by having to pay full prices for the next lot they buy.

Diamond Mine to Close Temporarily.

KIMBERLEY, March 16.—Owing to a slump in the Du Toits Pan Mine, in Cape Colony, which is a part of the De Beers property, with a small output of the choicest diamonds, it has been decided to close down April 24 until there shall be a revival in the demand.

FORGERS' BAND DUPES MANY FOREIGN BANKS.

They Get $35,525 on Fake Letters of Credit Drawn on Richards & Co. of New York.

PLANNED TO STEAL $240,000

But Discovery Put an End to the Swindle—Swindlers Arrested in Paris Are Freed — Old Offenders.

The details of a swindling scheme by which a dozen banks in as many different cities in Europe were swindled out of amounts varying from $25 to $12,500, were divulged last night by the New York police. The swindle, which was accomplished by forged letters of credit and forged advices to the foreign bankers, was operated, say the police, by four men, two of whom, they say, are ex-convicts, having done time for forgery, and one of the others a man at present under suspended sentence for forgery.

The New York bankers whose paper was forged, and who were thus made to aid in the perpetration of the swindle, were the firm of C. B. Richardson & Co. of 31-33 Broadway, which is ranked high in the list of banking houses doing a foreign credit business. One of the men, who, the police say, probably engineered the swindle, was employed by these bankers as a stenographer and typewriter until Nov. 12 last, when he suddenly left the city. Later developments show, according to the police, that the swindle was put into active operation on that day.

The failure of a forged letter advising the issuance of a letter of credit to reach its destination resulted in the discovery of the swindle on Nov. 23. In the days intervening after Nov. 12, however, the swindlers had thus victimized the following banks:

The Russian Bank for Foreign Trade, at Paris, $10,000; the Credit Lyonnaise, Marseilles, France, $1,000; Banc Commerciale Italiano, Genoa, Italy, $12,500; Bank of J. Matthieu et Fils, Brussels, Belgium, $4,000; Banque Centrale Anversoise, Antwerp, $2,000; Amsterdamsche Bank of Amsterdam, $5,000; Rotterdamsche Bank of Rotterdam, $500; Russian Bank for Foreign Trade of London, $500; Deutsche Bank of Hamburg, $25.

According to the police there were sixteen letters of credit for $15,000 each, totaling $240,000 forged by the operators of the swindle drawn upon these banks among others in addition to those from which collections were made.

Banc Commerciale Italiano, Genoa; Doehmische Union Bank of Prague, Hannoverische Bank of Hanover, Union Bank of Trieste, Union Bank of Vienna, Ungarische Escompte & Wechsler of Budapest, and the Deutsche Bank of Bremen.

That collections of varying amounts were not made from these latter banks was due to the failure of the advisory letter to reach the Deutsche Bank of Hamburg.

Discovery of the Swindle.

A man calling himself Charles Lemarre presented to this bank on Nov. 25 a letter of credit for $15,000, issued by C. B. Richards & Co., and bearing the serial number 5,713. He asked for $10,000 on the letter, but investigation showed that the bank had received no notice from Richards & Co. of the issuance of any letter to Charles Lemarre. The man insisted that he needed $25 anyway, pending the arrival of the advisory letter, and this he received.

The cashier of the Deutsche Bank was so impressed, however, at the idea of a man with a $15,000 letter of credit being in need of such a sum as $25 that he cabled to Richards & Co. for information. A speedy reply informed him that no such letter of credit had been issued. Here Richards & Co. started an investigation, and Leonard Simmons of the firm hurried to Police Headquarters on Nov. 30.

He told Inspector McCafferty that information from abroad showed that forgeries of Richards & Co. letters of credit, bearing the serial numbers 5,699 to 5,613, inclusive, were being circulated in Europe. The police of every European city of any size were notified to be on the watch for the swindlers, and on the advice of the police Richards & Co. cabled to their correspondents abroad to look out for the forged paper. Then a local investigation was begun.

Mr. Simmons recalled that on Nov. 8 a man calling himself Charles Lambert had bought a letter of credit for $500, payable at banks in London, Paris, Marseilles, Lyons, and Genoa. He had asked that the letter be made payable in three other cities, but because of the small amount the bankers refused to do this. He received Letter 5,692, and left the bank offices. On the next day, however, he returned and surrendered the letter, saying that he had decided not to go abroad. Mr. Simmons suspected too late that Lambert had got the letter merely to note its serial number and to learn the names of his firm's foreign correspondents.

The banker recalled also that on Nov. 12 Gustavo Bozzo of 217 West Twenty-fifth Street, who had come to work for the firm in August of last year, suddenly disappeared. He had been a stenographer and typewriter. A day or two later Mr. Simmons received a letter from him dated from Quebec, explaining that business had compelled his unceremonious leave, and thanking Mr. Simmons for past favors.

Detective Brown of the Central Office hurried to Quebec, but he found no trace of Bozzo, and finally returned to this city, convinced that the letter to Mr. Simmons had been a ruse to turn the police from Bozzo's trail. The search for Bozzo was being kept up, when, on March 10, Richards & Co. received word that he had been arrested in Paris. There, according to advices, he had confessed and had implicated two men calling themselves Louis Bense and Frank Falina, as well as a third, who, according to the police, had been variously known as Count d'Ocien, Count d'Aglie, and as Mr. Freund, a well-known swindler and impostor.

Swindlers Are Well-known Forgers.

The Detective Bureau set to work to trace the records of Bense and Falina. Detective Brown carried photographs of the forged letters of credit to Sing Sing Prison and showed them to William Travis, keeper of correspondence. Mr. Travis examined them and then asserted, according to Brown, that they were the work of two clever forgers who had been released from Sing Sing only a short time before.

Bense, the detective says he learned, was sentenced to four years in Sing Sing in October, 1904, for forging a check for $7,500, with the firm name of Pendas & Alvarez, cigar manufacturers, at 209 Pearl Street, for whom he had worked as bookkeeper. He was released on last Nov. 1, getting a year off for good behavior. He had served as a bookkeeper in prison, and Mr. Travis identified his handwriting on the forged credit letters.

HOT FIRE IN THE SUBWAY.

Blaze in Fulton Street Station Stops Early Morning Traffic.

The Subway at Fulton Street, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, was filled with flashes of flames and a dense smoke. Fire started, as far as could be learned, in a switch box. So brilliant were the flames that the vault lights in the street were white from the light.

The system from Fourteenth Street south was tied up on both north and south bound tracks.

The flashes of flames were accompanied by muffled explosions.

The Subway workmen were soon driven from the station. There were cries from the men to "shut off the power." Finally the power was turned off. South of the Fulton Street Station was a train, having several passengers aboard, stalled.

Hook and Ladder 10 sent a squad of men to the station. Barrels of sand and fire extinguishers were requisitioned and the firemen and employes soon had the fire out.

At least four trains were stalled between the Brooklyn Bridge station and Borough Hall station, Brooklyn. Two are under the river. They cannot be moved until the power is restored. North of Brooklyn Bridge it is not thought the Subway service will be much hampered. Most of the trains were stalled between stations and their passengers held there, despite their protests.

27 YEARS BLIND; NOW SEES.

Miss Hollis of Michigan Successfully Operated On in Germany.

Word has been received in New York that Alice Hollis, the blind woman who several weeks ago left her home in Port Huron, Mich., bound for Wiesbaden, Germany, to have her eyes treated, has not only completed the trip, which she undertook all alone, but has got back the sight which she lost twenty-seven years ago, when she was 13 years old.

When she started for Germany her friends at home helped her buy her tickets and arrange her trunk checks. To each of these she attached little slips, printed in the blind language, telling what they were. She could tell just what tickets to present to the conductor and all the other people with whom she had to deal in traveling. The ride to New York was easy.

Walter G. Holmes, manager of The Matilda Ziegler Magazine for the Blind, of 306 West Fifty-third Street, to whom Miss Hollis had written, met her at the train and saw her over to the Holland-America liner Statendam.

Miss Hollis can now see to read. She writes to Mr. Holmes:

"Everybody everywhere is so good to me."

ELSIE JANIS IN AUTO WRECK.

Her Mother and Chauffeur Hurt and Dog Killed Near Trenton, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 16.—While Elsie Janis with her mother and her pet terrier were making the trip from New York to Baltimore to-day in an automobile the machine was ditched at Edinburg, eight miles from Trenton, N. J. The actress leaped out as the machine made the plunge into the mud and escaped injuries. Her mother suffered an injured knee and a serious shaking up. The chauffeur was badly injured, and the dog was killed.

As Miss Janis was to appear at the Academy here, she hurriedly obtained a conveyance to Trenton. There she got another auto, which whirled her to Philadelphia in time to catch the afternoon train for Baltimore, arriving in time for the performance.

THIEVES WORKED; POLICE ATE

Patrolmen Lunched on Steps of E. D. Page's Home—Burglars Tried to Get In

While two policemen were sitting on the front steps of the residence of Edward D. Page at 238 East Fifteenth Street eating a lunch early last Tuesday morning burglars attempted to enter the house. A governess of the family heard them and her screams frightened them away. The police suppressed the report of the attempted robbery, but Mr. Page told of it last night.

The burglars descended from the roof of the Page residence by the fire escape and began to force an entrance through one of the rear windows. A governess was awakened by the noise and ran to the front window and screamed. Two patrolmen of the East Twenty-second Street Station were seated on the steps of the Page house eating their lunch, according to members of the Page family, and Mr. Page then searched the premises, but the burglars had escaped.

RIO GRANDE MACHINISTS OUT.

1,500 Men Affected—May Involve Entire Gould System.

DENVER, March 16.—At 10 o'clock today 1,500 machinists, boilermakers, and members of kindred trades working in the Denver & Rio Grande Railway's shops went on a strike after a final conference, at which A. C. Ridgeway of the railroad refused any concessions.

"The strike will ultimately spread to every road in the Gould system and affect roads all over the United States," said McQueeney, the representative of the organization. "There is every indication that the struggle will be a long one and fought hard by both sides."

The strike is the result of an order posted by the roads a month ago abrogating all contracts with the unions.

EVANS VERY ILL, TO LEAVE FLEET

Announces He Will Ask to be Relieved from Duty When He Reaches San Francisco.

HIS CONDITION SERIOUS

Threatened with Bright's Disease—Doubt Expressed That He Will Be Able to Travel to Washington.

From THE NEW YORK TIMES's Correspondent with the Battleship Fleet.

MAGDALENA BAY, March 14, via San Diego, March 16.—When Admiral Evans was asked to give expression to his views concerning the performance of his battleships in their voyage from Hampton Roads to this port, he made the following reply, the publication of which he authorizes:

"In view of the fact that the fleet has arrived at Magdalena Bay two days ahead of the original schedule, with all the ships in better condition than when they left Hampton Roads, and is ready on an hour's notice for any duty the department may assign, and will begin the target practice as soon as targets can be planted, I prefer to let results speak for themselves."

The Admiral's health has not improved; he seems to be quite unable to shake off his rheumatic gout. To the regret of every one connected with the fleet he has made this announcement:

"On account of the state of my health I shall ask the department to relieve me from duty when the fleet arrives at San Francisco."

It is not known in the fleet who will succeed Evans as Commander in Chief.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 16.—Civilian passengers arriving here to-day on the supply ship Buffalo from Magdalena Bay bring a report of the condition of Admiral Evans that is very alarming. They say he is so seriously ill that they doubt he would live through a journey to Washington. They say he has only twice been outside his cabin since the fleet left Hampton Roads, and that on each of those occasions the moving about caused him great suffering.

Immediately on the arrival of the fleet at Magdalena Bay there was a consultation of the surgeons of the fleet with respect to the Admiral's condition. The Admiral has severe rheumatic gout in his legs, and is likely to develop Bright's disease. Chief of Staff Ingersoll said the Admiral would be lucky if he should be able to get into a Pullman car after arriving at San Francisco.

After the consultation the Admiral sent a wireless message to President Roosevelt stating that his condition was serious, and asking for retirement immediately after arrival at San Francisco. The President replied hoping the Admiral's condition was not so bad as reported. The Admiral sent another wireless message saying he had no alternative but to quit, and asking for retirement as soon as possible.

It was unofficially announced at Magdalena Bay Saturday that Rear Admiral Sperry, on the battleship Georgia, would relieve Admiral Evans.

Just before the Buffalo left Magdalena Bay Saturday Chief of Staff Ingersoll said to a reporter: "The fleet arrived here in precisely the same formation in which it left Hampton Roads, and every ship was in better condition than when we started. In a very few minutes all of them could be ready for anything. Admiral Evans sincerely hopes the fleet will be kept intact until it reaches San Francisco, so that all the coast cities may see it in its entirety."

The fleet is likely to leave for San Diego April 10.

There have been only six deaths in the entire fleet since it started.

Officers of the fleet scoff at the charges of defective construction made by Mr. Reuterdahl, and declare that the voyage to Magdalena Bay has further disposed of them. A majority of the officers are against Mr. Reuterdahl, even in the matter of armor belts.

The fleet arrived at Magdalena Bay by the night of March 11. Early the next day Admiral Evans gave the order to go inside, saying to Chief of Staff Ingersoll, "Let us enter at once. I should like to call your attention, Sir, to the fact that to-morrow is Friday, the 13th."

And in the battleships went.

Officers fear there will be many desertions when the fleet reaches an American port, as the bluejackets are very tired.

FLEET AT TARGET PRACTICE.

Will Be Engaged in That Work for About Three Weeks.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Record target practice by Admiral Evans's fleet began at Magdalena Bay yesterday and will continue for approximately three weeks. This information was received by the Navy Department to-day by wireless telegraphy.

Secretary Metcalf is considering an application made to-day by Senator Flint of California on behalf of the residents of the towns along the coast in the vicinity of Los Angeles to have the fleet divided into four squadrons when it reaches San Pedro. Should this plan be adopted one squadron would go to Santa Monica, one to Venice, one to Redondo, and one to Long Beach. The request doubtless will be approved if the anchorage facilities are found adequate.

The torpedo boats Farragut, Davis, and Fox were to-day ordered in commission at the Mare Island Navy Yard, and will participate in the grand review at San Francisco, May 8. The Rowan, also a torpedo boat, was ordered in commission at Puget Sound.

Secretary Metcalf to-day received the following dispatch from Admiral Evans: "Officers and men of fleet thank the Secretary of the Navy for his telegram of congratulation, and hope to always merit his approbation."

VACATION FOR IDA LEWIS.

Lighthouse Keeper Plans to Leave Light First Time in Fifty Years.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 16.—Miss Ida Lewis, the only woman in charge of an American lighthouse, and who has been at Lime Rock Lighthouse, in Newport Harbor, for over fifty years, is considering a short vacation.

If she decides to go, it will be her first night away from the light in that time.

Miss Lewis is suffering from nervousness and loss of sleep. Last Fall Miss Lewis received from the American Cross of Honor Society at Washington its cross of honor and membership in the order. She is the first American woman to receive such an honor.

Since then Miss Lewis has received a pension from the Carnegie Hero Found for saving eighteen lives. She celebrated her sixty-fifth birthday anniversary very quietly last month. She is assisted by her brother, Rudolph Lewis, in caring for the lighthouse.

NO ICE TRUST INDICTMENT.

Grand Jury Voted Against It as Soon as Osborne's Case Was In.

The Special Grand Jury which was appointed against the advice of District Attorney Jerome at the instance of Attorney General Jackson to examine the affairs of the so-called Ice Trust, and which has been engaged in that work for the last few weeks, voted yesterday to dismiss the case against the American Ice Company, on the ground that there was not enough evidence in which to base an indictment.

James W. Osborne, the Special Deputy Attorney General, presented the case to the Grand Jury, and the vote was then taken.

MR. CLEVELAND 71 TO-MORROW

The ex-President to Spend the Day Quietly at Lakewood.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 16.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland will be 71 years old on Wednesday. Accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, he went to Lakewood, N. J., to-day, driving over to Princeton Junction in the afternoon, where the Trenton and Long Branch express was stopped to take them on.

Mrs. Cleveland will return to Princeton to-morrow morning, but Mr. Cleveland will stay in Lakewood indefinitely. Mr. Cleveland will not go South this year.

AIR CURES MENINGITIS.

Two Cases Treated Successfully at Newark City Hospital.

Two cures of cerebro-spinal meningitis by the fresh-air treatment are reported by the Newark City Hospital. One of the patients, George Schwartz, 7 years old, has been discharged, while the other, James Bromley, 6 years old, is still at the institution pending treatment for paralysis.

The Schwartz boy was admitted to the city hospital on Jan. 9, while the Bromley boy went there six days before. In both cases the disease was in an advanced state.

LEGISLATORS ARRESTED.

Michigan Men Charged with Collecting Expenses for Trip They Didn't Take.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 16.—State Representatives A. F. Bunting and J. H. Anderson were to-day arrested, charged with obtaining money by false pretenses in collecting an expense account in connection with a trip of the Senate and House Fish Committee. They collected for the entire trip, but went only a short distance.

GATLING FOR NIGHT RIDERS.

American Tobacco Co. Mounts Gun on Roof of Its Warehouse.

MAYSVILLE, Ky., March 16.—American Tobacco Company representatives to-day placed a Gatling gun on the roof of their warehouse here to prevent "night riders" from burning the building.

Men will be constantly on guard, and it is asserted will use the guns if the "night riders" appear.

FLOWER MUST RETURN HERE.

Pennsylvania Supreme Court Orders Extradition of New York Fugitive.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—After fighting extradition through all of the Pennsylvania courts for more than a year and a half Richard C. Flower, by a decision of the State Supreme Court to-day, must return to New York, where he is wanted by the authorities on the charge of grand larceny.

Flower, it is said, fled to this city, and when arrested resisted extradition on the ground that the prosecution was inspired by improper motives.

MADE $25,000 WITH $75.

Hunt Club Manager Refuses Fortune for Swamp Land Bought at Tax Sale.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., March 16.—George Howard, Superintendent and General Manager of the Rockaway Hunt Club grounds and property, has refused an offer of $25,000 for seventy-five acres of meadowland on Jamaica Bay. He asks $35,000 for the tract, which cost him $75 two years ago at a tax sale at Mineola.

Howard and a number of friends happened to be at the county seat on the day of the sale, and partly as a joke, and partly to become a property holder, Howard bid $75 for the property, most of which is swamp land. Inside of two years he sold the salt hay uncut for $300.

The property adjoins the proposed dock improvements, and will be made more valuable by them.

TO BORE WELLS FOR WATER.

Suffolk County to be Tapped to Relieve Brooklyn and Richmond Shortage.

Bills are to be introduced in Albany for the repeal of the Burr law, so as to permit the city to get a water supply from Suffolk County and thus relieve the impending water famine in Brooklyn and Richmond. Commissioner Chadwick announced that it was intended to bore wells and use the ground water now going to waste.

It is estimated that an average yield in the Peconic Valley would be 250,000,000 gallons a day. Water needed by the residents would be furnished first, and the city would take the rest.

LOANS FOR YALE STUDENTS.

Corporation Decides to Establish a General Fund to Meet the Need.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 16.—The Yale University Corporation to-day considered the subject of loans to students, and decided to start next year a university loan fund, to be administered by the Treasurer in co-operation with the officers of the different departments. It is hoped that the success of this movement will make it possible within a few years to diminish greatly the amount of money now given in the college in the form of tuition scholarships.

Among those attending were Secretary of War William H. Taft and Gov. Woodruff.

2 KILLED, 2 INJURED, IN BUILDING CRASH

BOY'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Falling Pipes Form a Bridge Over Him and He Crawls Out Unscathed.

With a crash that shook the four walls of the Pabst Brewing Company's building at 606 to 616 West Forty-seventh Street, between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues, the false ceiling in the big refrigerating room fell yesterday afternoon, burying five persons under the tons of débris.

Two of them were crushed to death. Two others were seriously injured, while the fifth, a small boy, was protected by a bridge of twisted iron pipes and escaped without a scratch.

The dead were Joseph Thurner of 798 Preston Avenue, Long Island City, who had the contract for repairing the building, and an unidentified Italian laborer.

The injured were John O'Rourke, a boy, and Antonio Metzer of 201 Bethune Street. The boy was removed to Bellevue Hospital with many bruises and a possible fracture of the hip. Metzer was taken to Roosevelt Hospital with an arm and a leg broken and internal injuries.

The ceiling fell without an instant's warning, and it was by the merest chance that several other persons were not caught beneath it. Thurner, the contractor, began the repair work at 1 o'clock. With him were his son, Joseph, Jr., De Witt Farrington, and three Italian laborers.

While they were cutting holes in the wooden sheathing of the refrigerating room for ventilators, the beams holding up the false ceiling were jarred loose at the ends, according to the police and firemen. Immediately under the ceiling and dependent on the same beams for support were long rows of ammonia pipes. Gradually the rotting ends of the supporting beams began to sag, but none noticed it.

Boys There for Wood.

Meantime a crowd of small boys of the neighborhood had collected, intent on picking up stray bits of timber for kindling wood. Some of them stood close to the door. Sonny Lovell, 8 years old, who lives at the Eleventh Avenue corner of the building, and John O'Rourke, 7, of 611 West Forty-ninth Street, more daring than their comrades, had ventured inside.

The contractor's son had been sent to the office upstairs on an errand, and to that fact he probably owes his life, for he had been working at the side of his father, who was buried under tons of débris. Farrington and one of the Italians chanced to be a little out of reach of the falling beams, pipes, and ceiling. They gave the alarm, and soon the police reserves, together with the crews of Fire Trucks 9 and 21, were on the scene.

Before police or firemen had time to begin the search for bodies, Sonny Lovell, much to the amazement of all, came crawling out from the mass of twisted pipes and broken beams, unscathed.

Within a few minutes the rescuers, now recruited by many volunteers from the neighborhood, found Metzer. He was buried under a heap of the sawdust of the false ceiling. Beams and pipes were criss-crossed around him, and how he escaped death none there could venture to say.

Metzer's body was pinned down hard and fast, but he retained consciousness and directed the rescuers in the work of clearing away the débris so as to free him.

As night fell torches were lighted and the rescue work continued. Soon a shrill little cry was heard from beneath a section of false flooring that had fallen. Firemen instantly began to chop away the planking.

Look Out, Mr. Fireman.

Just then a small, grimy hand was raised and a feeble voice said:

"Look out, Mr. Fireman, or you'll chop me; I'm under here."

It was little John O'Rourke, twisted and doubled under a tangle of boards and pipes.

"Get me out o' here quick," the youngster added. "I must get home before me fadder does or he'll give it to me."

Just as John was lifted out of the wreckage, Father Chadwick, once Chaplain on the battleship Maine, reached the scene.

"Are you hurt?" asked the father.

"Nope, I guess not," replied John. But the ambulance surgeon found the trouble and hustled him off to the hospital.

Half an hour later they found the body of an Italian. About his neck he wore a symbol of his faith, and Father Chadwick said a prayer for the dead, while police, firemen, and half a hundred volunteer rescuers stood reverently with bared heads.

After an hour's search the body of Thurner was dug out of a huge heap of wreckage. It was identified by the son.

It was feared that several boys who had been about the building during the afternoon might be buried under the wreckage, and the search was continued for some time. The neighborhood boys finally accounted for all that had been there, and the work ended.

Building Superintendent Murphy and Capt. Daly of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station made a careful investigation of the building. They said the beams supporting the ceiling were decayed in many places. Capt. Daly thought the contractor, Thurner, was responsible for the accident.

PACKERS' FINES AFFIRMED.

Supreme Court Divided on Question of Contracts in Rebate Case.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The fines of $15,000 each against the Armour Packing Company, Swift & Co., Morris & Co., and the Cudahy Packing Company, all operating in Kansas City, Kan., for receiving rebates contrary to the provisions of the Elkins act, were affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States to-day.

The decision of the lower courts in the complementary case against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, holding that company responsible for granting the rebates to the packers and fining that company $15,000 for the offense, was also affirmed.

Justice Brewer dissented, and the Chief Justice and Justice Peckham concurred in Justice Brewer's opinion.

FORECAST FOR RACING WEATHER TO-DAY — Unsettled and rainy.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDEN, Utah, March 16.—After thoroughly overhauling the car here, preparatory to starting on the last 1,000 miles of the road from New York to San Francisco, the Thomas car, leading the New York to Paris race under the auspices of the Paris Matin and THE NEW YORK TIMES, set out at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The people of Ogden have displayed great interest in the car, and the day has been practically a holiday. A big escort of automobiles was organized to show the car the way out of the city, and the whole body paraded through the streets for an hour before the departure.

Every car was decorated with American flags. When the outskirts of the city were finally reached, the Thomas car took a pace that promised to make a new mark in the race for distance covered.

The car left in charge of Harold Brinker, the young Denver boy, who is to take it on to California. He has lately been living in San Francisco, and is well acquainted with the country over which he will travel, both in Nevada and in Lower California.

With him were George Scheuster and George Miller, the two mechanicians who have come all the way across the country, while Linn Mathewson, who brought the car from Cheyenne, rode with them as far as the escort accompanied them outside of the city. He expressed the keenest regret at giving up the wheel, but said he was thoroughly confident that Brinker would give a good account of himself.

There was some discussion as to which road should be taken to Lucin. The Union Pacific cut-off, which crosses Great Salt Lake, offered a great temptation, as it saves many miles of road, but the thirty miles of trestle on either side of Promontary Point, crossing the two arms of the lake, presented too great difficulty, with the heavy traffic over the line. A breakdown would tie up traffic, and the railroad officials, while desirous to assist the car, were unwilling to take any risks.

It was finally settled that the car should go north around the lake on the longer route, using the roadbed of the Central Pacific Line where the rails have been removed. This made fairly good time possible, and the car was reported to have covered the first twenty miles of the distance within a trifle over an hour.

At this rate the car will be able to make Cobre to-morrow, preparatory to starting south over the long detour which has been found necessary to avoid the snow-clogged passes of the Sierra Nevadas.

The Standard Oil Company had made arrangements to supply the cars over the Southern Pacific line through the Sierras, but a quick shift was made, and arrangements now provide for new supplies of gasoline and oil at convenient points along the southern route.

The only parts of that route that present any difficulty are the crossing of the Nevada mountains between Ely and Goldfield, which are said to be free of snow; the run down past Death Valley in Eastern California, and the crossing of the San Berrardino and Mojave deserts.

It is not thought that any of these obstacles is very serious, and with anything like luck the car should be in San Francisco in close to a week's time. They still hope to get the boat from Seattle on March 24.

ZUST AT BLACK BUTTES, WYO.

Expected to Reach Rock Springs for the Night.

Special to The New York Times.

BITTER CREEK, Wyo., March 16.—The Zust car in the New York to Paris race ran through here this afternoon and was reported at Black Buttes at 5:30. The crew started for Rock Springs after a brief halt, intending to stop there for the night.

The Zust passed through the Red Desert, which at this time of the year is almost impassable to teams and automobiles, but the big car plowed her way through the mud and banks of snow, splashed through streams filled with floating ice, climbed steep banks, dashed over sage brush and stumps to avoid bad places in the road, and during the day made faster time than did the American over the same road last week.

The Americans got no further than Bitter Creek the first day out of Rawlins. The moon shines brightly to-night, and a light wind that blew all day has died away.

Special to The New York Times.

WAMSUTTER, Wyo., March 16.—The Italian Zust car reached here at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and left at 3 o'clock after the crew had luncheon. It had run since morning from Rawlins, Iowa, covering thirty-one miles in about four hours. The road was very rough and was made difficult by the terrific west wind, which the car had to face. There is some snow on the ground, but as a rule it is pretty well frozen, and did not bother the automobilists materially.

It is not believed here that the car can reach Ogden before Friday night, though the Italians are hopeful of getting through Echo and Weber Cañons Thursday afternoon in spite of the heavy snow reported there by the Thomas car.

DE DION CROSSING NEBRASKA.

St. Chaffray Expects to Make Good Speed on Sandy Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

FREMONT, Neb., March 16.—The De Dion car left Omaha at 4:30 this afternoon and reached this place at 6:15. We will travel to-night.

The last discovery we made between the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys was to find some screws and a lot of iron pieces in the gear box of the De Dion. Some jolly fellows I suppose had jokes with us during our dinner, which gave them an opportunity to make a practical joke.

These jolly lads had bothered us other times before when we found undue trouble in the car, but it is only fair to say that most Americans we meet on the road are of a different and more serious turn of mind. They enjoy the New York to Paris contest in another way. They want the car to be stopped for photographs. They have nice pictures of the Zust and Thomas cars previously stopped, too, and taken for souvenirs.

Nevertheless the cars can run better now. The roads are more dry after Omaha, the sand is not very deep, and the roads are flat.

PROTOS AT DENISON, IOWA.

German Car Will Start This Morning for Omaha.

Special to The New York Times.

DENISON, Iowa, March 16.—The German Protos car arrived at Denison at 9:40 to-night and will remain over night, going west at 8 in the morning. German citizens gave Lieut. Koeppen and his associate a banquet this evening.

Special to The New York Times.

CARROLL, Iowa, March 16.—The German Protos car, in charge of Lieut. Koeppen of the General Staff of the German Army, arrived here, in its race from New York to Paris, at 6:30 o'clock this evening, and continued west, in an effort to make Omaha by to-morrow night.

The car left Ames, Iowa, sixty-nine miles east of here, at 8:30 o'clock this morning, and, although compelled to go through seas of mud, made very good progress. The road between Ames and Ogden was very bad, and required five hours to cover, although the distance is only slightly more than twenty-five miles.

After lunching there, the Germans made good speed and averaged nearly twenty miles an hour. The car will probably stop for the night at Dennison, twenty-eight miles west of here, planning to cover the remaining seventy miles to Omaha to-morrow.

MOTOBLOC AT OGDEN, IOWA.

Fights Mud for 27 Miles and Crew Rests for the Night.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDEN, Iowa, March 16.—The French Motobloc car arrived here at 6 o'clock to-night and I rest for the night before continuing to Omaha. It has taken me more than three hours to come the last eight miles, though I had the car moving all the while.

The mud is so deep that it is impossible to make any speed whatever, and we sink almost to the hubs of the wheels into it. I arrived at Boone at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, having covered seventeen miles since morning over unspeakable roads of the same character. We started in the morning about two miles east of Ames, having spent last night at a farmhouse outside the city.

I was unable to report our position to you by telegraph last night because my car sank in the road almost out of sight. After vainly trying to extricate it from the ditch I decided to remain there until morning, when I could get it clear by daylight. I sought shelter at a farmhouse, and was very kindly received by the farmer, who made us comfortable until morning.

I am surprised that he allowed us to enter his house. The machine had all day been dragging itself through the deep mire, and was carrying an extraordinary weight of soil with it. We were simply covered by the sticky substance and made a frightful appearance. When we explained who we were, the farmer took us in in spite of it.

We will go on in the morning, but I do not know how far if we have to fight a way through such awful roads. I understand conditions are much better ahead, but I will have to see them to believe. We have expected the roads to improve every day, but they seem to grow worse instead. We are hopeful we may some day come out of it all and run once more on solid ground.

ITALIANS BELIEVE IN ZUST.

Bulletin Watchers Confident That Their Car Will Catch the Thomas.

Filippo Tomaselli, a translator and interpreter who lives at 240 East Twenty-fifth Street, was one of the many Italians in front of THE TIMES's bulletin board Sunday night waiting for news that the Zust car had taken off a few more miles from the lead the Thomas car has gained over the machine in which the hundreds of thousands of Italians of New York are interested.

"We Italians are not a gambling people, like the Americans, who have the advantage of a few more years in this country," he said, "but we are betting our dishes of spaghetti and our flasks of Chianti on the Zust, and we really believe that the Italian make of car is going to show its superiority over the American. To us the Frenchmen are out of it, and it is a fight between America and Italy. Of course we are all Americans, but there is plenty of patriotism for the old country left in us yet.

"Mathewson will think better of the men working in a country the language and customs of which they know little when the Italian car comes up behind the machine he drove and goes ahead and keeps ahead. All we want is a little stretch of good weather in the wake of the Thomas car and then we shall see who gets to the coast first."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 16.—The Werner car, in charge of two French automobilists, which started from New York City Feb. 11 to run to Paris, arrived here this afternoon from Dayton, Ohio, where the car was shipped from Cumberland, Md., for repairs after it had broken down east of the Alleghanies.

The car was expected here on last Saturday.

THE NEW CAPE MAY.

A stupendous work has been in progress at Cape May for four years. Taking a section of salt flats, five hundred acres in area, the land-makers have literally turned it bottom-side up and spread it over six hundred acres of salt marshes. Two purposes have been accomplished. A land-locked harbor of five hundred acres, thirty-five feet in depth has been made, and a city-site covering six hundred acres has been raised on a tidal marsh to a maximum grade of eighteen feet of solid ground. This work is finished and the city is being laid out. The Government, recognizing the value of the harbor, has appropriated a million and a half dollars to connect it by a navigable channel to deep water, and this construction is about to begin.

In a central location on the new site a magnificent hotel has been erected. It is six stories high, built of brick, stone, and steel, and absolutely fireproof. It contains 350 chambers and 150 baths, supplying hot and cold fresh and salt water. The newest hotels of the world have been studied for suggestions as to the construction, equipment, and furnishing of this house, and the best of all have been utilized. It is complete in every detail.

The Hotel Cape May will open April 11th, 1908, and remain open during the year, and thus the exceptional charms of Cape May as an all-year-round resort may be enjoyed through the medium of a completely-appointed city hotel on the very brink of the ocean.

2,000 STUDENTS IN BATTLE WITH POLICE

MAYOR ASKS FOR TROOPS

Women Knocked Down and Trampled Upon in Attacks by Mob—Disperse When Militia Is Ordered Out.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 16.—Aroused to anger by the assault made on a forestry student named Kamm in the Star Theatre Saturday night by Special Policeman Schlimmer, 2,000 students to-night laid siege to the little playhouse on Washington Street, battered its façade to bits with rocks and brick-bats, and withstood for four hours all efforts of the police arrayed against them.

Arrests were made by the officers, who jammed the students into the station so fast that the desk sergeant could not stop to take their names to-night. Billies were used on heads, but to no avail. The jail was attacked about 11 o'clock. At that stage in the proceedings Mayor Henderson called up Gov. Warner by long distance telephone asking that the militia be ordered out. Company I of the Michigan National Guard was in its armory during the ruction in readiness to march.

The Mayor ordered out the Fire Department, but it had no sooner connected the hose to a hydrant to play on the rioters than the students rushed the firefighters, brushed them aside, uncoupled the hose, and made away with it.

Renew Attack on Theatre.

Then Sid Millard, Chairman of the Board of Fire Commissioners, demanded that the department return to its station, since he feared leaving the city inadequately protected in case of fire during the row. As the Fire Chief withdrew his men the students cheered him and returned his helmet, which had been stolen in the mêlée, and again centred their attack on the theatre.

Volley after volley of rocks and clubs rained on the playhouse. Windows were shattered and the ticket office knocked to splinters. With rails the attacking force broke down the doors, smashed the piano to bits, pulled the seats, and generally dismantled the place.

In the height of the uproar President Angell and Deans Vaughan and Hutchins appeared on the scene. Hats came off respectfully to the venerable head of the university as he made way into the thick of the fray. He took the stand in the vestibule of the ruined theatre and addressed the crowd, begging the students to disperse. He appealed to their respect for Alma Mater.

"Make them give up our fellows!" was the cry.

Professors Give Up Task.

"If you will go home, I'll see what can be done to-morrow," promised Dr. Angell. "To-morrow won't do," was the stormy rejoinder from scores. Seeing it was useless the pofessors went their way. Then the special and regular police began their attacks. They could make no headway against the crowd, the best they could do being to pick off an offender here and there. They got fourteen in that manner in a short time. They proceeded with great caution, since many on the outskirts of the throng were spectators, not a few of them women.

From time to time the crowd rushed the police for a block or so down the street. In those pell-mell attacks the women were knocked down and trampled on. Turbulent sections of the mob followed the officers with the prisoners, and to get the captives to jail the police had to fight almost all the way.

By working hard in squads of two and seizing the first they met the police dragged twenty-two to jail by 10:30 o'clock. David Rinsey, owner of the theatre building, told Mayor Henderson that he considered the demonstration had assumed the proportion of a riot, and that he would hold the city responsible for damages.

Later the students, intimidated by the sound of the call to arms for the militia, dispersed.

HIS "BOMB" SHAMROCKS.

Tammany Man Thought St. Patrick's Souvenir an Infernal Machine.

The postman left a package early last night at the house of William J. Wright, Tammany leader of the Tihtry-first Assembly District, and it was taken in to Mr. Wright while he was at dinner. The package was wrapped up somewhat crudely. The writing was a bit awry. Leader Wright decided it was not safe to open a thing that looked so much like an infernal machine.

Policeman Downey was hurried over from the West 125th Street Station by Lieut. Joe Meehan at the request of Mr. Wright. Downey shook the package hard, causing a fine black powder to sift out. That tended to confirm the Tammany leader's suspicions. Downey soaked the package in a pail of water, and then tore it open.

Inside was a big bunch of shamrocks, whose roots were buried in a clod of dirt. A note from Clonmel, Ireland, of which Mr. Wright's father was Mayor for two years, said that friends had seen that the Tammany man had been elected leader and that they had dug up a bunch of shamrocks from in front of the Town Hall at Clonmel to send him.

TAFT PLEADS FOR NEGROES OF SOUTH

Secretary Tells Great Throng in Plymouth Church That the Race Grows Better.

CAN'T TAKE AWAY ITS VOTE

He Contends That the Removal of the Franchise Cannot Be Made Permanent.

Secretary of War Taft got a rousing reception last night in old Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, when he and Booker T. Washington and Dr. H. B. Frissell, Principal of Hampton Institute, addressed an audience of 2,000 or more on the negro problem.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Brooklyn Armstrong Association in the interest of Hampton Institute, and following the speeches subscriptions were taken to aid it in its mission of educating the young of the negro race.

For five minutes or more Secretary Taft stood silent upon the platform waiting for the rolling bursts of applause to die away. Several times he started to speak, but stopped to wait for silence. He smiled his acknowledgment of the compliment, then waded into a lengthy discussion of the negro problem, and gave an imposing array of statistics showing the progress that has been made in bringing the negro of the South to a higher plane than he occupied before the great educators of the country began to bend their energies toward his enlightenment.

Mr. Taft skillfully avoided talking politics. Only once did he approach the subject, and then in such a way that he committed himself to no utterances other than what might be termed commonplace.

Once during his address he deviated from the attitude of a scholastic treatise on the black race and gave a bit of advice to the negro. He said that if the black man wished to make his political influence felt in the South he would have to make himself indispensible to its industrial interests, for by that, and no other way, could he gain political power. He predicted that race prejudice would fade before the business and industrial progress of the race, and said that the negro's right to franchise can never be permanently removed.

"In the Philippines we have been confronted, in founding industrial schools, by the social prejudice cultivated in a previous régime, that manual labor is a mark of slavery," said Mr. Taft. "Many young men who have been invited to take up the trades of the printer, of the machinist, of the carpenter, of the electrician, objected and have asked to be allowed to prepare themselves as clerks, although they are told that the compensation of the former is $50 and $60 and $70 a month and that of the clerk but $20. They have said they preferred to be classed as gentlemen. This is now wearing off.

"In a different way there was a similar feeling against manual labor among the enfranchised negroes. They had somehow got it into their heads that freedom brought freedom from the necessity for labor, and that work was an accompaniment of bondage.

"Hampton and Tuskegee teach the dignity of labor, the value of skill, the use of the mind, and the application of the hand, and the lesson that without attention and without taking pains, without self-restraint, no progress can be made by either a man, a race, or a nation."

same source, had gone to Sing Sing in 1903 for cashing a forged check of Richards & Co. He was discharged last March. Brown traced his movements after leaving jail, and says that he went straight to the home of Bozzo. The police believe that the swindling scheme was hatched at that time, for upon leaving jail they say Bense also hurried to the home of Bozzo.

Bozzo himself, the police say, is also known as Joseph Stetino, and they say that Justice Newburger suspended sentence on him in 1902 after he had pleaded guilty to forging a check for $350 with the name of one Frederick Haas.

The police also learned, they say, that Pendas & Alvarez had had private detectives on the trail of Bense after he left jail, the cigarmakers having heard that he had threatened to kill them for causing his imprisonment. From these detectives Detective Brown learned that Bense had sailed from here for Havre, France, on the Touraine on Nov. 14. From a young woman known to be a friend of Bense's the detectives also obtained a colored postal card corroborating this information, the card telling of Bense's safe arrival in Havre on Nov. 22.

In the meantime word reached here that Falina and the man known as "Count" had been arrested in Paris. Upon some technicality, however, they were allowed to go, and at the present time the police all over Europe are searching for them and for Bense.

Descriptions of all three men have been wired to every important city, and the police here expect to learn of the arrest of one or all of the men at any moment.

Letter Carriers Stand Firm.

The Letter Carriers' Association, at its meeting last night, decided to stand by its President, William C. McManus, recently suspended on an order from Washington, and buy its Summer uniforms from the South Bend Mills of South Bend, Ind., if it has to fight it out in the courts.

The quarrel is with Postmaster Morgan over the contract for the cloth for the uniforms. The carriers did not like the cloth selected and voted to buy from the South Bend firm.

green on the back and yellow on the front, or any color that Uncle Sam wants to use, is all right. It's good enough for me. I don't care what you think of it."

He concluded his speech by declaring that Senator Aldrich was in telephonic communication with the bankers. These same bankers, he said, are now objecting to the bill, "which gives them only half a loaf when they covet the whole cake." Throughout his address he condemned the New York bankers and the New York "stock gamblers" as the originators of the financial woes of the country.

Beveridge Takes Up Defense.

Mr. Beveridge's reply in defense of the President held every Senator in his seat. He began by a complimentary reference to Tillman as being a man of the soil and the "tribune of the people" in the Senate. Then he drew attention to the fact that Tillman had made reference to the people as "ignorant masses" and "poor, simple souls."

Following a spirited defense of Roosevelt, whom he likened to Washington, Jackson, and Lincoln, he flouted Tillman's charge that the Republicans in Congress were dominated by the White House.

"If there ever has been an intellectual tyrant, a political tyrant, it is the man who twice was the candidate of the Senator's own party for President," he said, "and who was twice defeated, who will be the candidate again, and who again will be defeated. I refer to the peerless one—William Jennings Bryan."

Mr. Beveridge, referring to Mr. Tillman's charge of subserviency, said: "Our friends mistake Republican harmony—the sight of a Republican Congress supporting a Republican President—for subserviency."

Mr. Tillman did not exert himself to reply to Beveridge. He had already wrested from Aldrich the permission to pass his resolution, which was accomplished unanimously. The investigation is now in the hands of the Finance Committee.

AUTO RACE A STUDY IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Accounts of Contest Used for Instruction in Geography and Topography of the Country.

PUPILS ALL EAGER FOR IT

Teachers Draw Maps of Route on Blackboards and Children Recite Daily Story of Race.

So keen is the interest among the school children of Greater New York in the auto race from New York to Paris that tens of thousands are daily studying its progress in the schools, using THE TIMES as the textbook.

A wideawake District Superintendent, on his way to school one day, heard a grimy youngster shout to his comrades: "I bet you that Thomas car wins." Being alert for any plan to interest the children in their studies, it set him to thinking. Here was a fine opportunity, he thought, to interest the children in geography and current history.

He told his Principal, and he told the teachers. Other District Superintendents heard of the plan, or thought of it themselves, and the result is that in scores of schools throughout the city the pupils spend a part of each day in discussing the progress of the cars, the distance they are apart, the topography of the country, and the relative gains or losses of the day before.

"We have found the study of the race most interesting and helpful," declared District Superintendent C. E. Franklin yesterday. Mr. Franklin has the direction of Districts 41 and 42, in Queens.

"I have ninety-two schools under me," he continued, "and at least sixty are making a study of this unique race every day. All have taken it up save those who are not far enough advanced to understand it.

"The teachers in the various schools have different methods In the study of current history the race has been most useful. The children, already deeply interested in it, enter eagerly into the discussion. Some of the teachers require their pupils to read the story of the race the day before, and then tell about it in school, using their own language.

"One child will be asked to tell what the Thomas car did the day before, where it started from, what point it reached, what cities it passed through, and the rivers it crossed and how. If this younger narrator goes wrong by a hair's breadth up go several hands. The children are permitted thus to correct each other, thereby learning to be attentive and accurate, and unconsciously they are imbibing geography and the language at the same time.

"Another child will tell the story of the progress of the Zust car, another the De Dion, Protos, or Motobloc, each child in turn having a chance from day to day, while the others may listen and correct.

"Some of the teachers encourage their pupils to tell the complete stories of the cars the day before in the fewest words, omitting, however, no essential detail. Here again is a study in language."

District Supt J. J. Chickering, whose territory embraces Districts 43 and 44 and includes all the other schools in Queens not under Mr. Franklin, was among the first to see the advantage of using the race as a means of chaining the children's attention to important branches of study and instructed his Principals to have their teachers use it. It was stated at his office yesterday that this was being done in all the schools of the two districts where the pupils were sufficiently advanced to take an intelligent interest in the contest.

Here, as over in Mr. Franklin's territory, the teachers are quite as eager and interested as the pupils, and the period of the day devoted to the study of the race has come to be looked upon as perhaps the most interesting and profitable of the day, into which the drudgery of technical teaching does not enter.

Both here and in the other schools of Queens, maps and charts are freely used to locate the relative positions of the cars and the distance traversed daily.

No one is more enthusiastic over the use of the race as a means of riveting the pupils' attention to their history, language, and geography than District Superintendent Edward W. Stitt of Districts 4 and 5, Manhattan.

"Our teachers have been using the race as a study and adjunct to geography and current history for some time with splendid results," said he yesterday afternoon just before leaving his office in East Thirty-second Street for the day.

"One of the plans the teachers in my districts have adopted," he continued, "is to draw maps on the blackboards or on big sheets of paper, enlarged so that the points can be seen at a distance. These maps are hung where the children may see them while the race is under discussion. Most of our printed maps are too small a scale to admit of the pupils seeing from their seats the location of the places touched by the autos, so the maps prepared give practice in map drawing and aid in fixing the locations of the towns and rivers in the routes of the contestants in the minds of the pupils.

"Several of the teachers have obtained the fine map prepared by the Thomas Company, showing the route the cars will probably take. Other teachers have written to the Thomas Company for maps, and these are expected in a few days.

"We have also been able to use to great advantage the maps printed from time to time in THE TIMES, and wish more of them could be printed."

Mr. Stitt declared that in all of the schools of his districts where the race was being followed by teachers and pupils, the interest on the part of both was of the liveliest, and the teachers were making use of the opportunity to impress upon their pupils' minds the climatic conditions of the States and altitudes through which the cars are passing.

USEFUL HINTS TO HOUSE KEEPERS.

A COAT of Natural Jap-a-lac applied over old or new linoleum or oil cloth will double its life, by preserving the original coat of varnish which would otherwise soon be washed or worn off.

WEATHER BEATEN front doors are revived and beautified when coated with Jap-a-lac, and "newness follows the brush." It is best to use the color nearest that of the old finish.

WINDOW and DOOR screens should be coated with Jap-a-lac each spring, using the Brilliant Black on the wire, and the Mahogany, Oak, Cherry, or Walnut on the frames. It gives them new life and the wire cloth is protected from rust.

PORCH FURNITURE should be protected and beautified each spring with Jap-a-lac. It is best to use the color of the old finish, but if you wish to change the color, use Red or Green Jap-a-lac.

WICKER FURNITURE coated with Mahogany, Ox-Blood Red, Malachite Green or Gloss White Jap-a-lac looks better than new.

WATER PIPES, furnace fronts, radiators, hot water tanks and iron fences are preserved and beautified with the use of Jap-a-lac. Use the Gold, Aluminum, Dead Black or Brilliant Black.

PICTURE FRAMES, candelabra, gas fixtures, lamps, etc., given a coat of Gold, Aluminum or Dead Black Jap-a-lac, are renewed almost beyond belief;—the Dead Black produces that beautiful wrought-iron effect.

OLD AUTOMOBILES, carriages, wagons, agricultural implements, etc., Jap-a-lac-ed with either Brilliant Black, Red, Green or Empire Blue, look 100% better, and are given new life. The cost is nominal, and the work can be done by an inexperienced person.

JAP-A-LAC is a household necessity, and can be used in a hundred and one ways, from "cellar to garret," and is especially adapted for finishing old or new floors and woodwork. Ask your paint dealer.

HITCHCOCK SET FREE; GIRL RECANTS STORY

Chief Witness Against Actor Admits Lying to Grand Jury and Court Directs Acquittal.

ARRESTED FOR PERJURY

Accuses Children's Society Agent—All but One Witness for State Change Testimony.

The trial of Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, who was accused by several young girls, came to an abrupt end yesterday afternoon, when Assistant District Attorney Garvan asked Justice Blanchard, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, to dismiss the indictment against the actor and direct a verdict of not guilty. In accordance with Justice Blanchard's instructions, the jury found that verdict, and Hitchcock left court with his lawyers.

The sudden and somewhat sensational end of the actor's trial came after Flora Whiston, one of the accusing girls and the prosecution's chief witness, recanted the story she had told the Grand Jury and testified that Hitchcock had not harmed her. After the actor's discharge the girl was arrested on a charge of perjury, and Justice Blanchard commended the whole case to the careful attention of the District Attorney.

Practically only one of the prosecution's witnesses failed to turn traitor to Mr. Garvan, the Assistant District Attorney who was trying the case for the people. Mrs. Mary Von Hagen, mother of Helen Von Hagen, one of the girls in the case who accused Hitchcock, testified when called by Mr. Garvan that she believed no wrong had been done her daughter by the actor, despite the fact that the girl had told a harrowing story on the witness stand.

But Helen Von Hagen stuck to her story, and, with Flora Whiston, one of her girl friends, to corroborate her, Mr. Garvan expected to conclude the prosecution's case yesterday.

Flora Whiston testified before the Grand Jury under oath that she had been taken by the actor to a house in Forty-first Street with Helen Von Hagen in December, 1906. She described the details of the night in practically the same words as did the other girl. Flora had also made affidavit for a newspaper that the things she told to the Grand Jury and Mr. Garvan had happened. This affidavit was made in connection with a suit for criminal libel brought against the proprietor of the paper.

Flora Whiston Recants Her Story.

Mr. Garvan had no reason to believe yesterday that Flora Whiston would recant her sworn statement against Hitchcock. He talked with her yesterday morning, and she gave him no hint of having changed her mind. But when put on the stand she immediately destroyed the prosecution's case by saying that the story she had told Mr. Garvan and the Grand Jury was untrue, and that the reason she had sworn falsely was that Agent Vincent T. Pisarro of the Children's Society had threatened to "put her away" and keep her from her mother if she did not testify against Hitchcock.

The girl, who is well developed for a girl of 17 and dresses flashily, dwelt rather theatrically on the word "mother."

"He threatened to take me from my moth-er," she said, "and keep me in seclusion and never let me see her again."

Mr. Garvan then read the affidavits of the witness describing her wrongs and those of Helen Von Hagen, and the girl admitted that she had sworn to them, but denied their truth.

Mr. Garvan then sent for Mr. Jerome and put on the witness stand John F. Graf, stepfather of the Whiston girl. Graf said that he had gone to Carl Fischer-Hansen three weeks ago and had informed him that Flora had told him that Agent Pisarro had made her tell a false story, and that a great wrong might be done an innocent man.

"I wanted to right a wrong," he said.

"Did anybody give you money?" asked Mr. Garvan.

Graf said that nobody had given him any money. He admitted that he and Flora had made oath in a newspaper office to the truth of her story of having been wronged by Hitchcock. In this affidavit the stepfather swore that he knew from his wife and other evidences that Flora had been wronged.

Girl Arrested for Perjury.

Agent Pisarro then took the stand and retold the story which, he said, the girl had told him. He denied that he had made any threat of any sort to her.

Justice Blanchard was astonished when he heard the prosecution's witnesses testifying for the defense, and after he had directed a verdict of acquittal, said that the change of story on the part of the Whiston girl was of such nature that it called for a thorough investigation by the District Attorney and Grand Jury.

As Hitchcock was leaving the Court House a free man the Whiston girl was arrested on the charge of perjury. Weeping and frightened, she went to the office of Detective Beery of District Attorney Jerome's staff. Later she was arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court and held in $5,000 bail for trial.

Neither bondsman nor lawyer was present to help the girl, who, in all her flashy finery, sat between a negro prisoner and a grizzled old police court sinner on a bench inside the railing. Her mother sat on the other side of the rail.

After a wait of nearly two hours the girl was locked up in the Tombs. Graf, the stepfather, said that he had engaged a lawyer and found a bondsman who would appear later and get the girl out of prison.

Carl Fischer-Hansen was asked yesterday if there was any prospect that his client would be tried on the other indictments against him.

"There will be no other trial," he replied. "All the indictments are based on the same testimony."

Congratulated at Lambs Club.

Hitchcock drifted into the Lambs Club yesterday afternoon. The news of the end of the case had preceded him, and as he entered the door a crowd of the members shook his hand. He was dragged to the grill room, where he was made the guest of honor at an extemporaneous collation. Two or three of his friends made speeches, and he himself made a speech, mostly of thanks, in the course of which he said:

"I am a good deal like a man Daniel Webster prosecuted. The man was found to be innocent after he had been hanged for murder."

Augustus Thomas also made a speech. Among those who pressed around the actor to congratulate him on the turn his case had taken were Dustin Farnum, Digby Bell, Vincent Serrano, Henry Blossom, William H. Crane, Victor Herbert, Paul McAllister, Victor Harris, Louis F. Gottschalk, Joseph Redding, and Samuel Harburger.

Mr. Hitchcock paid a visit in the afternoon to the offices of Henry W. Savage, and the Savage booking agent made some tentative plans with Klaw & Erlanger for a tour of Mr. Hitchcock in "The Yankee Tourist," the show that was interrupted by the actor's arrest. Mr. Hitchcock expects to be on the road soon again.

HIS BRAIN EXPOSED; HE DIES.

Surgeons Were Preparing to Insert a Silver Plate in Zorn's Skull.

Oscar Zorn, a tailor of 9 Whipple Street, Williamsburg, who was to have had a silver plate placed in his skull in the Williamsburg Hospital yesterday to protect his brain after he had undergone several operations which involved the removal of splinters of bone from the brain, died suddenly yesterday while preparations were being mode for the new operation.

Zorn was accidentally shot in the forehead about two months ago through the careless handling of a revolver. After he was brought to the hospital it was thought that he could not possibly survive. He rallied, however, and the surgeons felt sure that he would live many years if the silver plate were put in.

NEW RAPID TRANSIT BILL.

Commission May Provide for New Tunnels and for New Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 16.—A new rapid transit bill embodying features of the previous measures introduced at the request of the Allied Real Estate interests and the Brooklyn League, with other provisions recommended by the Public Service Commission of the First District, was introduced to-night by Senator Travis and Assemblyman Robinson.

By one of the provisions of the bill the commission may provide for new tunnels and the city may terminate the contract for maintenance and operation at any time after a period specified in the contract, which cannot be more than twenty-five years. The bill also allows the commission to make contracts for the construction of roads at the public expense in the same manner as now, the term of operation not to exceed thirty-five years.

TO BUY STEINWAY TUNNEL.

Bill in Senate Provides for Purchase of the Tube at Cost.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 16.—Authority to purchase the Steinway Tunnel is conferred upon New York City by a bill introduced to-night by Senator Harte of Queens. The Belmont interests, which own the tunnel, have placed a price of more than $7,000,000 upon the property, but it is asserted by Senator Harte that the property is worth only $3,000,000.

The bill provides for the purchase of the tunnel at cost.

RACING BILLS REPORTED.

Bills Will Not Come Up for Final Passage in Assembly for a Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 16.—The Governor's bills directed against race-track gambling were reported in the lower house this evening.

Speaker Wadsworth said to-night that the bills would not come up for final passage until a week from Wednesday.

FIREMEN FOR SCHOOLS.

Bills Introduced in Assembly Would Protect School Children.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 16.—Assemblymen Greenberg and Eagleton, both of New York, to-night introduced bills providing for the stationing of firemen in all public schools or other buildings used for schools.

The Eagleton bill provides for New York City alone. The Greenberg bill applies to all cities and towns in the State which have a paid fire-fighting force.

Horace Porter Calls on Gov. Hughes.

ALBANY, March 16.—Gen. Horace Porter, ex-United States Ambassador to France, accompanied by Bank Superintendent Williams, called on Gov. Hughes to-day. The Governor later said the visit was purely of a social character.

Rescue Three Kittens at a Fire.

While firemen were putting out a blaze on the second floor of the loft building at 346 Sixth Avenue, last night, Capt. Hanley of Engine 24 thought he heard the cries of a child coming from one of the rear rooms, and he found a cat inside. The animal had evidently been struck by a stream of water, for it died shortly. But its three tiny kittens in a muff were alive and were rescued.

Got the Baby, but Not Its Clothes.

A fifteen months old child of Mrs. Ruth Ettrick, which she had given at birth to Mrs. Ucherman, was awarded to the mother in court yesterday, as there had been no legal adoption. Mrs. Ucherman demanded the clothes worn by the child. Mrs. Ettrick sent for new garments and the child was undressed and dressed in court.

COL. HARVEY WOULD TEACH JOURNALISM

With a Model Newspaper Issued at Each College—He Suggests Staff for Yale.

DEFENDS HIS BROMLEY NEWS

In Lecture at Yale He Declares Newspapers Should Be Issued for Average Readers, Not Specialists.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 16.—Col. George Harvey, editor of The North American Review and Harper's Weekly, Bromley Lecturer on Journalism at Yale, made a plea to-night before a large audience or students for a "laboratory of journalism" in the university, to correspond to the laboratory of physics and of chemistry. The rich men who give millions to endow the scientific laboratories, said Col. Harvey, could invest their money to no greater advantage than to the foundation of a newspaper in each of the great universities for the training of students toward the profession that is more influential in American life than any other.

"If such a paper were established at Yale," said Col. Harvey, "and such a man as, say, Charles R. Miller of THE NEW YORK TIMES or Col. Osborne of The New Haven Journal and Courier were appointed editor in chief, a man like Chester S. Lord of The Sun or C. V. Van Anda of THE TIMES managing editor, and one like S. M. Clarke, prince of city editors, as news editor, you cannot tell me that the student would not learn as much as in a newspaper office."

"You must have a real paper, such as men of the calibre I have named could produce," he continued. "And that sort of training, supplemented as it would be all along, by the broad, liberal education of the regular college course, would, to my mind, be better far than that hard school of journalism of the newspaper office, as conducted by Greeley and by Dana. A student so trained would be a capable man in whatever newspaper office he came to.

"It is significant that in the last six years only 8 per cent. of Yale graduates have gone into journalism. Yet journalism is the most important means by which we teach and guide our American people."

Every one in the audience had a copy of the sample paper which Col. Harvey made up and printed for this occasion in order to illustrate his points. This paper in honor of the founder of the lecture course he entitled "The Bromley Morning News." The paper consists of only four pages, and as the lecturer proceeded he explained that the chief reason for this apparent smallness is that his paper is not an employment agency, and prints no want ads. It is printed on heavy paper such as few modern newspapers could afford, and is six columns in width. The last page, and that only, is given up wholly to advertising. He explained the various news items, including an original "scoop," in which President Roosevelt is reported to have said that "circumstances render it impossible for me as a patriot to make the fight," because he feels that "temperamentally I strikingly resemble Augustus Caesar."

Subjoined to this report is given an extract from a classical dictionary which describes Augustus Caesar as "deficient in military talent," and reference is made to his "deliberate cruelty" and his "sacrifice of every duty and every feeling to the purposes of his ambition."

Some of the features of The Bromley Morning News are a column headed "Amusements," in which the play is named at each theatre with street and address, and a word of comment is added thus:

"Hudson, Forty-fourth Street, near Broadway, 8:20—'The Honor of the Family,' with Otis Skinner. Dashing Balzac comedy charmingly acted."

His paper, Col. Harvey maintained, would not be a specialist's paper, not a banker's paper, or a lawyer's paper, but the paper of the average man.

"Bankers," he said, "are the most ignorant people on earth outside their own department. And newspapers should not cater to them, but show them the extent of their own ignorance."

Col. Harvey read the editorial published in THE NEW YORK TIMES criticising him for not regarding man as an individual being in The Bromley News. Col. Harvey defended his position as follows:

"That takes me to the news of the day in which The Bromley News was published. New York newspapers published a column and a half about a professional criminal who went into a saloon and tried to kill the saloon keeper, but was killed by him. That was a matter of the utmost importance to the saloon keeper and to the police. I was unable, however, to see that it concerned anybody else. It happens once a week right along. I do not know that that was what Mr. Miller meant, and yet that item represents the kind of news in question.

"One of the obnoxious features of American newspapers to-day is the maintaining of a sort of omnipotence. The refusal to admit an error is a mistake. A newspaper cannot be expected to be accurate. It must do the best that it can, but it should make a correction more conspicuous than a mistake.

"It will print a correction generally only to avoid a libel suit. That is wrong, immoral, indecent.

"Letters from readers are a good thing in some respects, but they are a great waste in that the writers are often of untrained minds, and being untrained do not know what to say or how to say it."

The audience loudly applauded the speaker, and many came to the platform to shake hands and to ask questions. Among those who came from New York especially to hear the lecture were Joseph S. Auerbach, Robert P. Porter, correspondent of The London Times, and a number of others.

After the lecture Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of the Yale Faculty, gave a reception for Col. Harvey at the Graduates' Club.

MILLINERY 1ST & 2D FLOORS
Simpson Crawford Co.
SIXTH AV. 19TH TO 20TH STREET, NEW YORK.
The New Millinery
Masterful Creations That Tell the Story of Our Millinery Success.

FOR over a quarter of a century this house has been headquarters for Millinery, and for the same length of time we have made Millinery one of the most prominent features of the Simpson-Crawford Co.'s establishment.

It's not only the largest and most successful Millinery Department in the world, but has been a department of personal pride ever since the inception of this store.

More space is devoted here to the sale and display of Millinery than in any other establishment in America. We buy more Millinery direct from foreign markets than any other single retail house in this country.

There are no middleman's profits paid by us. That is why our prices are so low—why the saving on Millinery is proverbial here.

We do not wait to see what other houses are showing before buying—we originate—and then back our style judgment by providing a gathering of shapes, flowers, millinery, trimmings and feathers that is not surpassed by the combined showing of several houses.

New designs and exclusive Millinery models are shown, in order to show our patrons how the new materials are used to the best advantage.

To-day there is absolutely nothing lacking to make this the most complete Millinery department in the world—nothing that you can ask for pertaining to the new Spring Millinery that we cannot supply—all at prices that insure a great saving.

Our Trimmed Dress Hats at $8.50 are marvelous values and things of beauty and refinement.

Our Trimmed Tailor Suit Hats at $4.95, $5.95 and $7.95 have more style and dash than any to be found at twice the price elsewhere.

Our Untrimmed Hats—original French shapes at $3.75—$4.98 and upward are not shown elsewhere, except, trimmed, in the exclusive millinery shops at exorbitant prices.

Our Copies of the French Shapes at $1.25—$1.48—$1.95 and upward are not to be found elsewhere and so on—with Flowers, Fancy Feathers, Wings, Millinery, Braids, Trimmings, and Ornaments. You owe it to yourself to walk through our Millinery Sections, whether you buy or not, to learn what is newest and best.

HAITIAN EXECUTIONS DUE TO A NEW PLOT

Men Put to Death Sunday Charged with Being in Conspiracy with Gen. Firmin.

COUNTRY OUTWARDLY QUIET

American, French, and English Warships Ordered to the Scene as a Precautionary Move.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 16.—Following the execution yesterday of ten or eleven men charged with a conspiracy to overthrow the Government, President Nord Alexis to-day issued a proclamation to the people in which he felicitates them on their calm attitude in the present trying circumstances, and promises that order and the security of the Government shall be maintained.

Outwardly Port au Prince is calm, but the Government's summary proceeding of Sunday, culminating in the executions, has caused considerable anxiety, for it is not known, of course, whether there will be further executions, nor how far-reaching the alleged new revolutionary movement may be.

The President, who had preserved a calm and energetic attitude throughout, said in an interview to-day that he had determined to bring about order, and eventually peace, in the republic, and that he would not permit the instigators of disorder and revolution to interrupt his work of developing and uplifting the country.

The statement is made officially that the Government came into possession of proofs that Gen. Antenor Firmin, the leader of the late unsuccessful revolutionary movement, who is now a refugee in the French Consulate at Gonaives, had organized, through correspondence, a new insurrection in Port au Prince. Thereupon it was decided to arrest the principal conspirators concerned with Gen. Firmin.

The proposed new uprising, the statement continues, had as its object the overthrow of the Government and the assassination of the President, and it was discovered through the interception of letters sent by Gen. Firmin to a number of his adherents and others in an attempt to enlist them in the new movement.

The conspirators, it is stated, were taken by surprise with arms and munitions in their possession, and were executed forthwith. It is alleged that the chief conspirator, Massillon Coicou, before he was executed, gave the names of several military officers, who, he declared, were implicated in the plot. These men have been placed under arrest and will have trials, it is stated, before a regular court.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—An American war vessel, probably the gunboat Eagle, is now on the way from Guantanamo to Port au Prince, Haiti, where the Haitian Government yesterday summarily executed a number of alleged revolutionists.

The vessel is not sent there because of any serious apprehension on the part of the officials here that American interests at Port au Prince or at other points in Haiti are in serious danger, but as a matter of precaution.

The decision to send a war vessel was reached to-day after the officials had read the newspaper acounts of the executions, supplemented by the information which the State Department received from the island.

It is not believed at the State Department that foreign interests in Haiti are seriously menaced.

The disposition of the Administration is to keep hands off and to give the people of Haiti an opportunity to work out their own salvation. It is realized that in dealing with revolutionary movements stern repressive measures are often necessary, and the impression here is that it is not incumbent on the American Government to interfere with the acts of a neighbor unless the situation is such that American interests are in jeopardy or that broad humanitarian measures require interference.

PARIS GETS ALARMING NEWS.

French Legation Said to be Menaced —Massacre Feared.

PARIS, March 16.—The situation between the Haitian Government and France has become acute and critical. The French Legation at Port-au-Prince is menaced, and a general massacre of the white residents of the island is feared. This information was conveyed in an official dispatch to the Foreign Office from M. Carteron, the French Minister to Haiti.

The latter part of last week M. Borno, the Haitian Minister of State, assured M. Carteron that Haiti would permit the refugees who had taken asylum in the French Consulates at Gonaives and St. Marc to leave the island. This morning there came the news of the execution at Port-au-Prince on Sunday of between ten and twelve prominent persons on the charge of conspiracy against the Government, together with a cablegram from M. Carteron announcing that Gen. Nord Alexis, the President of Haiti, had not only refused to confirm the assurances given by M. Borno, but had flatly declined to permit the refugees in the Consulates to depart. Eleven additional persons have taken asylum at the French Legation.

The French cruiser D'Estrees is expected very soon at Gonaives, where she will act in co-operation with the British and German ships of war now on their way to Haiti.

It is understood here that France, Germany, and Great Britain are acting in accord in this situation.

Gen. Antenor Firmin, who led the last revolt in Haiti, is among the refugees under the French flag. The Foreign Office recognizes that the General and his followers are revolutionists, but it has declined to hand them over to the Haitian Government on the ground that there are no assurances that the men would have a legal trial. In this connection it is explained that, according to French tradition, any man who seeks refuge under the French flag must have at least temporary protection.

The French Foreign Office pointed out recently that in taking its stand it was following out the French traditional policy in Haiti, and explained that Gen. Nord Alexis himself, when he was a revolutionist, once sought and obtained from France the same protection that France is now giving to the men who attempted to usurp his position and power.

BERLIN, March 16.—The German Admiralty ordered the cruiser Bremen, which is at present at Curacoa, to go to Port au Prince, Haiti.

A telegram received here by the German Cable Company from Port au Prince dated March 15 said the safety of foreigners there was seriously threatened, and that the arrival of a cruiser was awaited anxiously.

LONDON, March 16.—The Admiralty this morning sent orders by cable to the British cruisers Indefatigable and Cressy, which are both in West Indian waters, to proceed forthwith to Haiti for the protection of British interests.

TATSU MARU IS RELEASED.

Chinese Authorities Give Up Japanese Steamer Seized in February.

HONGKONG, March 16.—The Japanese steamer Tatsu Maru has been released by the Chinese authorities.

PEKING, March 16.—The terms of the settlement between China and Japan of their differences respecting the Tatsu Maru, the Japanese steamer that was seized by China in February on the allegation that she was conveying arms and ammunition to the Chinese revolutionists, are as follows:

China agrees to punish the officers who lowered the Japanese flag on the Tatsu Maru and to send a warship to the place where the vessel was seized to fire a salute as the Japanese flag is rehoisted.

The Tatsu Maru is to be released at once.

China will purchase the arms and ammunition seized.

The Viceroy of Canton will settle the amount of demurrage for the retention of the steamer after consultation with the Japanese Consul.

Japan agrees to exercise extra vigilance against her subjects in the matter of smuggling arms into China.

London Honors Florence Nightingale.

LONDON, March 16.—The freedom of the City of London was to-day bestowed upon Florence Nightingale, the organizer of the nursing in the Crimean war. The ceremony took place in the Guildhall. Miss Nightingale, who is in her eighty-eighth year, was too infirm to attend, and was represented by her nephew. The usual costly gold casket was dispensed with in accordance with Miss Nightingale's wish, and one of oak and bronze was substituted. The $500 usually expended for the golden casket will be given to charity.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, March 16.—The Cabinet has prepared and submitted to Parliment a bill granting a general amnesty to all those who committed political offenses in the Summer of 1907 in connection with the vinicultrual crisis in the South of France.

VIENNA, March 16.—A lunatic attempted to enter the Imperial Gardens last night, but was arrested by the guards, who removed him to an asylum.

BERLIN, March 16.—The notorious Hau trial of last Summer has been brought to the public attention again by the sentencing to-day of Herr Schmidt, editor of the Morgen Post, to nine months' imprisionment on the charge of libeling Olga Molitor, Hau's sister-in-law. Karl Hau was tried and found guilty of the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Molitor. Schmidt hinted that Olga Molitor might have committed the crime.

LISBON, March 16.—The reported discovery of a plot to establish a military dictatorship here is officially denied.

If Folk Won't Help Shakespeare Memorial, Let Them Hold Their Tongues.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 16.—The committee which decided upon the erection of the Shakespeare international memorial in Portland Place is far from getting unanimous support for the plan.

The latest in the long line of objectors is Alfred Austin. The Laureate's letter, which will be published in to-morrow's Standard, will be followed by a brief note from Dr. F. J. Furnivall, a well-known Shakespearean scholar and member of the memorial committee, who says:

"Our plan is settled; if folk won't help us, they'd better hold their tongues."

GERMAN BOERSE DISTURBED.

Proposed Legislation as to Dealing in Futures Causes Pessimism.

BERLIN, March 16.—The stock market for several days past has shown pessimism on account of the action taken by the Reichstag committee in the matter of dealing in futures. This committee, which has in charge the Government Stock Exchange bill, has struck out the principal reform proposed by the Government and has adopted, against persons speculating on time, a much more stringent paragraph than is contained in the present law.

The committee proposes to punish with a maximum imprisonment of five years and a fine of $2,500 all persons negotiating or making time bargains without being registered.

The existing Boerse law established a register, which was intended to contain the names of all persons having the right to deal in securities and products on time. But this worked very unsatisfactorily, and because the register served as a loophole for swindlers to contract Stock Exchange debts and then evade their payment, the Government proposed to abolish it. The committee, which is composed largely of landowners, voted to retain the register and introduced the system of punishments and fines.

MONTGOMERY BLAMES JACKSON FOR ALL

Ex-Banker, in Court Hearing, Says Vidaver Was Only Tool of Attorney General.

JACKSON A GRAFTER, HE SAYS

He Resents Imputation of a Plot to Get Revenge on Jackson, but Says He Gave Out Untrue Statements.

Arthur C. Palmer, appearing for the first time as counsel for Nathan W. Vidaver, the special investigator for Attorney General Jackson, who has been charged with extortion by William R. Montgomery, former President of the Hamilton Bank, stated in the course of his examination of Mr. Montgomery in the second hearing on the case before Magistrate Herrman in the Tombs Court yesterday that the two crucial points were whether the witness was a man to be credited and whether the acceptance of money by Mr. Vidaver was the result of a plot designed to strike at him and at the Attorney General.

In an attempt to discredit Mr. Montgomery, he first asked about the memorandum which the witness had said he had made immediately after a consultation concerning the bribing of Mr. Vidaver held with Mr. Grossman in Mr. Montgomery's house before the actual passage of the $500 between the two men.

Mr. Montgomery denied that he had manufactured evidence when he learned of the importance of a memorandum he said had been destroyed.

Mr. Palmer then asked: "Were not your motives in passing this money to Mr. Vidaver, and in arranging the whole thing with the District Attorney's office, those purely of revenge for the interference of Mr. Jackson with the Hamilton Bank plans? Tell the whole story; I'll turn your ingenuity loose."

Mr. Montgomery said: "When I remembered how every plan to open the bank for the benefit of the 18,000 depositors was thwarted; how we went to the Attorney General with a plan, and how he turned it down and hid himself from us; how Vidaver had turned him from us with lies; it seemed shameful that Jackson should behave thus from personal motives, and I considered him the worst sort of grafter.

"When I thought how Jackson had behaved in Buffalo and Rochester in his private life, and how he had once refused his wife 50 cents to buy breakfast, I thought he ought to be shown up; I thought him a disgrace to the State."

Then Mr. Palmer reminded Mr. Montgomery that there were certain cases of overdrafts in connection with the Hamilton Bank for which he was under indictment, and asked if he did not think that his bringing compromising facts concerning Jackson would be appreciated by Mr. Jerome and might "save his own skin."

"I knew that information of any crime would be appreciated by Jerome," Mr. Montgomery answered.

Calls Lawyer Palmer a Liar.

Mr. Palmer then asked concerning certain affidavits alleged to have been made by two men on the night that the Hamilton Bank failed. "Didn't it come out subsequently before the Grand Jury that these affidavits were perjury?" he asked.

"You are a liar," said Mr. Montgomery. Objection being raised to Mr. Montgomery's reply it was stricken from the record, which was made to read that Mr. Montgomery said Mr. Palmer was mistaken.

Reverting to the attempt to prove that the whole thing was a scheme with no real foundation, Mr. Palmer asked Mr. Montgomery if he had had any talks with Mr. Jerome before there was any real evidence of any crime. Mr. Montgomery said he had had none, he thought.

Mr. Palmer then referred to the new bank which Mr. Montgomery is said to have been told he could not start without buying up the Attorney General and asked:

"How did you imagine that Mr. Jackson could interfere with this bank if you intended to conduct it in a legal way?"

"He could give out the same kind of lying interviews that he has already given."

"Was it your wish to reach Mr. Jackson or Mr. Vidaver?" asked the attorney.

"Why, Mr. Jackson I thought was behind everything—Vidaver was only a tool."

Mr. Montgomery admitted that at the luncheon at the Astor before the money passed from him to Vidaver, the latter had apparently, judging from his talk, which must have been audible to all about him, made no attempt at concealment.

JACKSON TEST CASE TO-DAY.

Argument at Albany Over His Claim to be Counsel for All State Boards.

Argument will be made before the Appellate Division of the Third Department in Albany to-day on the test case instituted by Attorney General Jackson to determine whether his office shall have control of all legal proceedings instituted by State boards and commissions.

This case followed the disclosures made by Mr. Jackson last Winter that many members of the Legislature enjoyed fat places as special counsel in proceedings instituted by such commissions. Thus far the courts have been against him on the points of law involved, but the case is to be carried to the Court of Appeals.

The State Forest, Fish and Game Commission originally obtained a judgment against an individual who had claimed certain lands in the Forest Reserve and cut lumber on them pending determination of the suit. Subsequently, De Witt C. Middleton, as Forest Commissioner, and the attorneys for the defense, which by this time had become a corporation, entered into a stipulation to have the complaint dismissed and title to the State lands in dispute entered in favor of the latter.

Mr. Jackson undertook to have the judgment reopened. In the lower court John K. Ward, as attorney for the Forest Fish, and Game Commission, objected to the motion to substitute Mr. Jackson as counsel for the State, and it was dismissed.

NO PROFIT IN 5-CENT FARE.

B. R. T. Says Any Order for This Rate Would Be Illegal.

In its answer to the complaint against the charging of a ten-cent fare to Coney Island the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company asserts that it would be unconstitutional for the Public Service Commission to force the company to reduce the fare to 5 cents, and that the Public Service act is unconstitutional in that respect. The answer was made public yesterday by the commission, each of the six constituent companies that run cars to Coney Island putting in separate answers.

The assertion is also made that a reduction in fare would amount to confiscation without due process of law, and, on that ground, as well as on the other, would be unconstitutional and void, and that any reduction of fares would effect such a reduction in the receipts as to render all the profits less than 10 per cent. per annum upon the capital actually expended.

KNICKERBOCKER DIRECTORS.

H. L. Satterlee, H. Parsons, and J. Horace Harding Elected to New Board.

H. Parsons, Chairman of the Parsons-Satterlee Committee of Knickerbocker Trust Company depositors; Herbert L. Satterlee, counsel to that committee, and J. Horace Harding of the Stock Exchange house of C. D. Barney & Co., were elected yesterday Directors of the Knickerbocker Trust Company at the instance of the voting Trustees.

These names were added to the board at a meeting of the old Directors and stockholders of the trust company held in the office of Julien T. Davies, counsel to the trust company. The new Directors will be part of the board which will govern the trust company's affairs following the resumption of the institution.

J. R. Soley of counsel to the trust company said after yesterday's meeting that all plans were being laid for the reopening of the trust company a week from Thursday.

RELATIVE OF TILLMAN SHOT.

Ex-Judge Buchanan Hit by Bullet Sent Through a Car Window.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 16.—Ex-Judge O. W. Buchanan of Winnsborough, S. C., whose wife is a niece of Senator Tillman, was mysteriously shot and probably mortally wounded this afternoon while on his way from Columbia to Augusta, to see a niece who is ill here.

Mr. Buchanan was seated by an open window in the day coach of a Southern Railroad train when the train left Wards, S. C. The train had proceeded only a short distance when a shot was fired through the window by an unknown person, the bullet grazing the window ledge and entering Mr. Buchanan's right side. He was cared for on the train until it arrived here, and taken to a private sanitarium, where an operation was performed. He is in a critical condition.

He was prominent in the defense of James H. Tillman, when the latter was tried for killing Editor N. G. Gonzales of The Columbia State.

Mr. Tillman is with Mr. Buchanan tonight. They believe the shot was fired with murderous intent.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

EDWARDS RECEIVER OF NEW AMSTERDAM

Assistant Secretary of Treasury May Be Made President of Reorganized Bank.

CONSOLIDATION IS PLANNED

Edwards Took Position at Request of Secretary Cortelyou and Appointment Is Surprise to Bank's Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—John H. Edwards will retire from the office of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury tomorrow to accept the receivership of the New Amsterdam National Bank of New York. Mr. Edwards's resignation was tendered some time ago, and he will be succeeded by L. A. Coolidge, who has been confirmed by the Senate.

Mr. Edwards will as receiver take an active part in the reorganization of the New Amsterdam, and it is considered probable here that his appointment is preliminary to his election as President of the bank.

Mr. Edwards declined to-day to say anything about his connection with the New Amsterdam. He said he would be in New York Wednesday, and that until he had looked the situation over he could not say what would be done.

Secretary Cortelyou said to-day that he parted with Mr. Edwards with great regret, and that he regarded him as an efficient and faithful officer. Mr. Edwards, he said, had received two or three attractive offers from financial institutions in New York, but at the Secretary's urgent request he had postponed their consideration to accept the receivership of the New Amsterdam National Bank of New York, which suspended during the recent money stringency.

A man who is familiar with the present status of New Amsterdam Bank affairs said last night that the plans for the merger of that bank with other institutions, if there were such plans, were in a tentative state. The stockholders of the New Amsterdam, he said, had not had any such plan called to their attention, and no such proposal, he said, could be carried very far without their consent.

So far as the continuance of the receivership of the New Amsterdam is concerned, this man said, it ought not to take a very long time to settle the bank's affairs. It depended, however, he said, upon the promptness with which maturing loans were paid by the borrowers. Working out its own resources, it might take eight or nine months, he thought, to pay off the depositors. The bank can at any time, however, be withdrawn from the receivership, provided the necessary funds are placed at the disposal of the bank. It was suggested yesterday that plans to this end may receive the attention of Mr. Edwards when he takes charge of the bank's affairs later in the week.

An official of the bank said that he knew nothing about Mr. Edwards becoming President of the bank.

There is a rumor that the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company and the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company are interested in the rehabilitation of the bank, and that the Directors of these concerns would take an active part in the work of placing the bank on a firm foundation.

The condition of the bank is a matter of daily discussion about the Metropolitan Opera House, where the institution is located, and the report is that not only money of some of the singers is tied up in the bank, but that the Conried and the Metropolitan Company are among the largest depositors. This, however, was denied last night by one of the Directors of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company.

MORSE FIGHTS A JUDGMENT.

$155,000 Claim on a Bank Stock Deal May Be Reopened.

Counsel for Charles W. Morse obtained in the Supreme Court yesterday an order to show cause why the judgment obtained against Mr. Morse in the Supreme Court for $155,000 growing out of a deal in the stock of the Bank of North America should not be reopened. The order is returnable to-day.

The position of Mr. Morse in this motion will be that the plaintiff did not have a cause of action on which a judgment could properly be obtained. The stock was bought under an agreement of repurchase, and the interpretation that Mr. Morse and his attorneys put on this agreement was that it provided for repurchase at the end of three years. The plaintiff presented the stock for repurchase last Fall, about six months after he had bought it, his theory being that the agreement provided for repurchase at his option at any time within three years.

THIS COUNTRY SOUND, SIR EDGAR VINCENT

Khedive's Former Financial Adviser Sees Only Slight Effects of Our Recent Flurry.

PROSPERITY IN THE WEST

Commercial and Industrial Pillars of the Nation Strong and Lasting —Canada's Progress.

Sir Edgar Vincent, formerly financial adviser to the Khédive of Egypt, and a man of affairs in England, looks upon the recent panic as a development of inestimable value to the commercial future of this country. He is sailing this morning on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie after a trip through this country and Canada, and yesterday, at the Hotel St. Regis, he discussed his visit to Canada and the American West. Sir Edgar said:

"I was surprised when I landed three months ago to find that the financial commotion had not had more apparent and farreaching results. Instead, I found the West absolutely flourishing and New York affected in a trifling way. This merely proves how sound and stable are the commercial and industrial pillars of this Nation.

"After studying these conditions with a great deal of interest, I have come to the conclusion that a flurry of that sort is only natural after a growth that was too rapid. Some may bewail the elimination of famous fortunes, but these fortunes were born as quickly as they died. In the financial history of all nations we find these occasional panics, and I daresay the one of 1907 was caused by a combination of overspeculation and distrust. I think the events in Wall Street are only of temporary importance. They will militate toward the Nation's commercial good.

"I was especially impressed by the financial soundness of Canadian enterprises, and the thorough, sure way with which that country is developing. I know of no greater tribute to the confidence in Canadian methods than the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway has been able to borrow $10,000,000 at a shade less than 4 per cent. The Government itself pays a little more than 3 per cent., and, by way of comparison, we have the New York Central paying a bit more than 5 per cent.

"The entire West of this continent is imbued with a spirit which fairly dazzles a traveler from the Old World. Seattle is a remarkable city, and the audacity of their grading and railroading is stupendous. They stop at nothing in the way of engineering feats, and the West was a revelation to me.

Out there they are prone to believe that the Western Coast will develop as has the Eastern Coast. That depends on the Far East. If the Chinese and Japanese should take it into their heads to raise their own grain in Manchuria, that would be a serious set-back for American commerce. Throughout the West the greatest prosperity seemed to prevail. I believe that the region of Puget Sound will eventually be an ideal Winter resort. The climate is delightful—warm Winters and cool Summers.

"New York fascinates and interests me, and after twenty years it has shown the most wonderful progress. I had not been here since 1887, and the city is now like another creation. Its growth is perfectly logical, and posterity may revere the twentieth century buildings as we now do the Elizabethan and the Italian Renaissance. Considering the charms of a Winter in New York—the climate and the manifold entertainments—I should think Europeans would cross and make this city a Winter resort."

Sir Edgar took occasion to deny that he was investigating the financial conditions of the country for London bankers. "I am here simply out of curiosity and to amuse myself," he said.

POLICE ESCORT SMALL BOY.

Runaway Is Taken Back to Dobbs Ferry School Under Guard.

Henry Bonsal, 15 years old, a pupil at the Mackenzie School at Dobbs Ferry, who ran away from his home at Bedford Park, N. Y., last Thursday, was returned to the school yesterday by the Harrison (N. J.) police. He was found Saturday night wandering along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Harrison.

The boy told the police he had been taken from the school to his home in New York six weeks ago to undergo an operation. His father was to take him back last Friday, but the afternoon before he ran away. After his family had been communicated with it was arranged that he should be sent back to school under guard.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY PARADE.

Final Arrangements Made by Irish Societies—The Line of March.

Final arrangements for the St. Patrick's Day parade, which is to start from Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street at 2 o'clock this afternoon, were completed at a meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, held in the Irish Athletic Club Sunday night. The parade will be headed by the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., with Col. Edward Duffy commanding. The line of march will be up Fifth Avenue to Fiftieth Street and east into Madison Avenue, and past the archiepiscopal residence to Fifty-first Street, where the parade will be reviewed by Archbishop Farley.

After passing in review before the Archbishop the paraders will turn back into Fifth Avenue and proceed north to 120th Street, where they will swing west into Lenox Avenue and thence north to 135th Street, through which street they will march west to Eighth Avenue, and thence up Eighth Avenue to the Manhattan Casino, where they will disband.

The order of the line of march as agreed upon is as follows:

Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., Col. Edward Duffy commanding; First Brigade Irish Volunteers, commanded by Brig. Gen. Charles J. Crowley; First Regiment Irish Volunteers, Col. E. P. Kilgar commanding; Second Regiment Irish Volunteers of Brooklyn, Col. J. Flood commanding, and Eighth Battalion Irish Volunteers, Westchester, Major Boyhan commanding; Forty-eight divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, thirty-two Irish county organizations, including the County Kilkenny Men's Association, the Limerick Men, the Carlow, Kerry, Armagh, and Wexford Men, and also the Irish-American Athletic Club, the Gaelic League, the Napper Tandy Club, the Innisfail Social and Benevolent Society, the Irish National Club, the Emmet Club, and the Thomas J. McManus Association.

Charles F. Murphy, President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, and, perhaps, Congressman Herbert Parsons of the Republican County Committee will be among the paraders. Mayor McClellan was invited, but found it impossible to accept.

W. K. VANDERBILT'S TENANTS.

Report That S. S. and G. W. Sands Will Occupy New Apartment Building.

Reports generally credited among those close to the Vanderbilts offer a new solution of the mystery as to who is to occupy the magnificent apartment house, or double dwelling, which W. K. Vanderbilt is about to erect at 47 and 49 East Fifty-second Street.

The new structure, it is said, is intended for the use of Samuel Stevens Sands and his brother, G. Winthrop Sands, who are the sons of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt by her first husband, Samuel Sands. G. Winthrop Sands married Miss Tayo Newton.

The proposed building, which will cost $200,000 and be seven stories high, was described on the Building Department records as a dwelling, but will be virtually an apartment house, with accommodations for only two families.

The first floor will be given over mainly to entrance hall, reception, and billiard rooms. The three floors above this will comprise one apartment, with drawing room, library, large and small salons, half a dozen bedrooms, and three bathrooms. The three upper floors will provide a second apartment, a duplicate of the other in the main features.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT'S HOUSE

She Will Build a Residence at Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has commissioned Architects Hunt & Hunt to prepare plans for a new residence which she will build at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

This site, consisting of two lots, is diagonally opposite the easterly end of the St. Patrick's Cathedral block, and was bought by Mrs. Belmont about six years ago. It was originally part of the property of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum before the removal of that institution to Fordham Heights.

The new Belmont residence will be four stories high. At the office of Hunt & Hunt it was said yesterday that work on the plans had not progressed far enough to admit of any detailed description of the house. Bids will be taken at once for the foundations.

LAWYERS CRITICISED JUDGES.

Buchler Ordered to Apologize—Rockmore's Case Goes to Appellate Division

The Justices of the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court certified to the Appellate Division yesterday the case of David W. Rockmore, a lawyer, who appeared for punishment for actions unbecoming an attorney. Rockmore, together with Lawyer W. L. Paul Buchler, was charged with making certain affidavits containing language criticising Municipal Court Justices Roesch and Tierney.

Buchler was directed to apologize to Justice Roesch.

Rockmore pleaded justification. The court decided to send the case to the Appellate Division.

FOURTEEN PAGES.

A LIVE ISSUE.

The feeling is spreading and deepening in Republican circles that the revision of the tariff is a live issue this year, and that it will be risky to allow PAYNE and DALZELL and the stiff-necked and perverse standpatters to tie the party fast to that "body of death" which the actual tariff is.

For this feeling there are several strong reasons. In the first place the business depression makes the burdens and the interferences of the tariff more obvious, and obvious to a far greater number. Things that were of little consequence when business was active and prosperous are now serious matters. In the next place, not only is discontent with the tariff deeper and more general, but it is organized. The National Manufacturers, when they went to Washington to press the idea of a commission, were backed by more than a hundred associations of business men, not mere paper combinations, but substantial and with solid, strong membership. A single impressive instance of the sort of opposition to the present tariff that the standpatters have to meet is the publishers' organization, which seeks in an amendment of the tariff some relief from the exactions of the Paper Trust. This, and others with like interests and aims, cannot be whistled down the wind by even the most hardened of the old guard in the House and the Senate.

Moreover, it happens, for the first time in our recent history, that the opposition to the party in power this year may reasonably hope for considerable support from the business part of the Nation. In other words, the Republican Party is not now, as it has been in every campaign for the last dozen years, faced by a party hopelessly discredited from the start, as compared with the Republicans, in the eyes of business men. The currency question, in its acute form, is out of the way. The economic fallacies of Mr. BRYAN have, in a serious degree, been adopted by the present Administration, and that fact has created an amount of distrust and suspicion toward the Administration analogous to the feeling previously excited by the Democratic Party. Sober-minded and conservative business men are saying at this moment that there cannot be anything much worse than Rooseveltism. Whether they are correct or not in this judgment, they hold to it, and their feeling must be reckoned with. The business men who firmly demand a revision of the tariff are mostly the very men who in the past have been most hostile to the Democratic Party and now are not so. The Republicans are confronted with the question whether it is safe to add to the discontent already existing in business circles that which would follow a stubborn refusal to deal with the tariff at all, as PAYNE and DALZELL would have them.

All reports from Washington agree that the pressure now being brought to bear to secure some definite assurance of practical revision is stronger and more specific than for the last quarter of a century. Some of the older and wiser heads among the leaders are by no means so eager to fight this pressure as are the little band of what may be called the professional protectionists. They are afraid of the consequences which follow a panic as a dangerous ground swell follows a heavy storm. They recall that the panic of 1873 cost the apparently impregnable Republican Party the House of Representatives in 1874, and the popular majority in the Presidential election of 1876. They cannot clearly gauge the anti-tariff feeling now, but they see that it may be strong, that it affects business men already alienated, and that it may be dangerous. They are not prepared to spurn it. It looks now as if a fairly satisfactory pledge of actual revision would be given in Congress and in the National platform.

JAPAN-CHINA SETTLEMENT.

In some respects the Chinese Government may congratulate itself on the blunder made in the seizure of the arms-laden Japanese merchantman off Macao. It has been able to settle with the Japanese Government on very lenient terms. It surrenders the vessel, buys the cargo, pays demurrage for the time the vessel was delayed, and politely salutes the Japanese flag when it is again hoisted over the vessel. This involves little expense, since the arms are worth what they cost, and no harm is done to the dignity of China.

On the other hand, the Japanese Government recognizes that China has in the past suffered real injury in the freedom with which rebels against its authority have been able to obtain arms and munitions from Japanese sources, and promises in the future to exercise sharper vigilance to prevent this injury. It is an encouraging fact that the two Governments, which have been reported to be in a somewhat exasperated mood toward each other, have shown not the slightest sign of this state of feeling, and have conducted themselves with moderation and good sense. It will be well to bear this in mind when the troublemakers begin again to get busy, as they are sure to do.

FEBRUARY'S AMAZING TRADE.

The total of foreign trade for February is as remarkable as the indications from the outgo of domestic products. Imports shrunk from $123,000,000 to $79,124,401, as compared with February, 1907, and exports increased from $159,517,221 to $167,867,762. The result is that the excess of exports was $88,743,361, or an increased excess of exports of $52,000,000, against a total excess of exports of $36,511,538 last year. There is no precedent for such an excess of exports in February, and the record is more amazing when enlarged to take in the eight months of the current fiscal year. This year the excess is $520,889,724. The year which approaches nearest is 1901—the first year which furnished a billion of exports in eight months—and in that year the excess was only $491,655,000. The gold movement for February is ludicrously disproportionate, the excess of imports being $834,834, but for the eight months the excess of imports of gold is $114,337,648.

It is to be remarked that the change in the foreign trade which produces these striking contrasts is in the import trade almost altogether. Just as last year we were exulting rather fearfully in the great imports of manufacturers' materials, which attested the almost abnormal activity of our domestic production, so now our rejoicing over our phenomenal credits abroad must be moderated by the thought that it is a reflex of our lessened industrial activity. So far as our exports of manufactures are maintained it is only by sacrifice or "dumping" sales. Our power over "abroad" springs from the fact that we are still hewers of wood and drawers of water, or petroleum, for the more advanced nations. And apparently we are resolved to keep ourselves in this position by maintaining a level of prices so high that we cannot sell abroad profitably, nor afford to consume among ourselves the things we make. We shut ourselves in from the world's markets as well as shut the world out of our market.

The encouraging reflection is that all that goes abroad and makes up our half billion of credits is sold out of stock on hand, reducing supplies correspondingly. This is practically the heinous crime of "selling short" by every farmer or manufacturer who lets his goods go because he hopes to replenish at a lower cost. Of course this is unutterably wicked when done by dealers in securities, but it is a benefaction when done by farmers and traders and manufacturers. At this planting season it is a good thing that farmers should be so nearly sold out that they see it is to their advantage to raise good crops. At this season last year we were worrying over the poor outlook for the crops, but this year the prospect is exceptionally good. Similarly it is a good thing that stocks of manufactured goods are low. At some time perception of this fact will dawn upon manufacturers simultaneously. They lack the courage to make for stock, but they will all make for consumption willingly enough, and that will be the beginning of the new good times.

MR. SKENE'S CRITICISMS.

It is proper that a plan involving the expenditure of millions from the State Treasury should be tested by hostile criticism. State Engineer and Surveyor SKENE levels forty objections at the bill proposed by the Special Committee to Revise the Highway Laws. If any of these shall prove valid, Mr. SKENE will have accomplished something in the people's interest. But two objections, around which he appears to group the rest, seem invalid. In the first place, he indicts the committee's bill because it creates a "State system of trunk boulevards connecting large cities," which will inevitably be used by automobilists as well as by the farmers, for whom the road system was originally designed. Secondly, the bill would force every county in the State to have a County Superintendent, with jurisdiction over all petty highway officials and town officers.

These petty officials now work at cross purposes under an antiquated system of road improvement, which the legislative committee was created for the express purpose of supplanting. Under their independent local jurisdictions in the ten years from 1898 to 1907, inclusive, the State spent $25,330,219 for 877 miles of completed highways, or one mile for each $28,883 of appropriations—$18,000 or $20,000 a mile more than these roads should have cost under competent direction. It was then that the joint committee of the Senate and Assembly, after an exhaustive investigation of the methods of roadmaking pursued by other States and by foreign nations, framed the bill to make "trunk boulevards," four extending in unbroken lines from east to west, and eleven reaching from near the southern border up three-fourths of the distance to the northern limits, these forming the main arteries of a network which will afford easy access for trucking wagons from the farms to the railroad stations, and to the great northern waterways. That the system should benefit automobilists of this city, which, by the way, pays its full share of the State taxation for the highways, is merely incidental. "Up State" reaps the benefit of the plan. As for the appointment of District or County Superintendents, who shall modify the main plan to meet existing local conditions as to subsoil, drainage, and betterment of grade, the committee declares that "this is the Massachusetts plan, which works admirably."

CAMPAIGNING FOR BETTER TIMES.

Throughout the corn and alfalfa region of Ohio posters announce the running this month by the Pennsylvania lines of trains of special instruction cars, from the platforms of which lectures will be given to audiences of farmers upon the scientific growing of these staples. The Ohio College of Agriculture, the State Experimental Station, the State Farmers' Institute, and the railroad company will be represented by their professors, members, and agents, respectively. "Nothing to sell or advertise" is the posters' legend. "Farmers are invited to bring their seed with them that it may be tested as to quality."

If this is the sign of a general scientific movement, fostered by the great railway systems, for better crops and full cars next Fall—and bad crops would mean hard times for the railroads and for everybody—this item of news which THE TIMES published yesterday is one of the most significant since the November panic.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Although the Prince of WALES has announced, through Lord ELGIN, that his stay in Canada must be limited to the week of the Quebec celebrations, July 22 to July 29, and that he will not visit any other part of the Dominion, yet there is some hope that he may be induced so to arrange his plans as to enable him to spend a week or two in the United States. He will have a most cordial welcome if he comes, a National tribute of respect to himself personally as much as to his royal rank. As the heir apparent of an imperial throne he has borne himself with a degree of modesty and common sense which has appealed strongly to Americans. The practical wisdom of his public utterances has not escaped notice on this side of the Atlantic. This quiet, dignified, clear-headed gentleman who will some day be King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India is a personage who strongly interests the people of the United States.

Great regret was felt at his failure to visit the Republic at the time of President MCKINLEY'S funeral, when he was in Canada, but the reason of his not coming, the fear that the curiosity aroused by the presence of a stranger of exalted rank might detract from the solemnity of the occasion, was felt to be wise and considerate.

It is nearly half a century since the Prince's father, then a mere youth, was received here with much rejoicing. The enthusiasm aroused in Australia by the announcement of the forthcoming visit of the American battleships would be more than equaled in the United States if Prince GEORGE should decide to visit us. In midsummer he would not find much to interest him in Washington, and his stay in New York would probably be brief. But he might find Newport worth while, and we bespeak for him a hospitable welcome at Oyster Bay.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Taxation of Automobiles.

If the only purpose of the automobile licensing bill to be introduced at Albany this week were to compel each automobilist to take out a new license each year, there would be no particular objection to it, for the present system, under which the owner pays only one fee for his machine, no matter how long he owns it, is rather anomalous, and not only does it tend in time to increase the difficulties of identification in case of accident, but it confuses all calculations as to the number of cars in use at any given moment. There is no especial harm either in the suggestion of fees graded according to the weight of the machine, for the amount collected from any one automobilist would be so small a part of his annual expenses as hardly to count among them.

Underlying the bill, however, is a wholly false idea—the idea that automobilists owe a debt to the State which other people do not owe and that they should be made to contribute largely to the public revenues, partly because they are all rich and partly because they do more than their share in wearing out the roads. As a matter of fact, the automobile is a vehicle like another, so far as both its rights and its obligations are concerned, and, were it not for the need to make its identification easy, there would be no real excuse for compelling its owner to take out any license at all.

That the automobile wears out the road is true, but so does everything that uses wheels, and while it is also true that a road much frequented by automobiles soon shows the need of repairs, this is much more due to the quantity than to the quality of the traffic, and it would be much the same if a like procession of ordinary wagons were passing. The burden of highway maintenance should be a general one, since all profit, directly or indirectly, from ease and comfort of transportation.

The theory that only the rich use automobiles, while true once, is becoming less and less tenable as time goes on. The manufacturers are constantly trying, and with ever-increasing success, to meet the great demand for machines both cheap and good, and it looks as if before long almost anybody who can afford to own a horse can have an automobile if he chooses. Already many who would not be called rich own them, and this class is increasing so steadily that the folly of imposing special taxes on automobilists will soon be obvious—and unpopular. Such little of injury peculiar to themselves as automobiles do to roads can be prevented by proper construction and treatment of the highway surface, and it should never be forgotten that roads are made for the vehicles in common use, not the vehicles for the roads as they have been and are.

Warned of a Danger.

"Have you," asks the writer of—or should it be on?—a postal card received yesterday, "ever noticed that there is a screw loose in the brains of the men and youths who want to use the letter V in place of the proper U in words like 'trvst,' 'restavrant,' &c.?" And he adds: "I have. Look out for them or you will regret it."

Now how about that? Not only have we failed, despite the keenness of our observing powers, to notice anything sinister or even peculiar about the men and youths mentioned by our correspondent, but we cannot imagine why they would be likely to form a class apart. On the contrary, the change of U back to V seems to us harmless enough, and if anybody desires thus to attain the picturesquely archaic on a sign, a circular, or a title page, he can do it without making us even think of screw drivers and the uses thereof, either literal or metaphorical.

Our correspondent apparently doesn't know that it is the users of the U he likes, and not those of the V which offends him, that are the innovators. Judging from the shrieks of rage which shook the welkin and things not long ago, when certain audacious wretches tried to change the spelling supposed to have been "good enough for SHAKESPEARE," the very sight of V in place of U ought to be grateful and comforting to the general eye.

Our correspondent, however, has evidently had experiences and sorrows of his own, and we appreciate his kindness in wanting us to avoid them. Hence is it our present purpose, as advised by him, to look out for the V fellows, and it does occur to us as an ominous fact that V stands for "villain." That it also stands for "virtue" is probably only proof of slyness.

Not Devoted Wholly to Dollars.

Dr. VAN EEDEN, unlike a good many foreign visitors, does not find this country wholly given up to the making of dollars and the worship of them. On the contrary, it is his opinion that even our richest men do not care much about money for itself or consider its mere possession an end. It is among these very men, apparently, that he expects to find the great leader for whom he is looking.

However that may be—and one cannot help thinking that perhaps the millionaires with whom he has been talking were more interested than convinced by his arguments for communism—it is a relief for once not to be told that we think only of money. The charge has usually been made by foreigners, who, having failed to get as much of it as they wanted at home on account of the desperate care with which the funny little coins they use in Europe are guarded there, have come over here to get some of ours. The severity of their condemnation of us as mercenary has always been in inverse ratio to their success in this endeavor, but after their return they have invariably resumed their accustomed denunciations of the American traveler who raises the cost of living by his reckless extravagance. The incompatibility of extravagance with money-worship has never presented itself to these critics.

But even Dr. VAN EEDEN scolds us for "living in such a hurry and bustle that you [we] do not have a minute for reflection." That, in its way, is as absurd as the other accusation. Broadway is not America, and those who see us only when we are hurrying are themselves the most scorching of logicians when they decide that we never take time to rest our poor feet.

Street Car Tickets Six for a Quarter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your editorial in to-day's TIMES under the caption, "Depends on the Public," you look upon the new scheme of the Fourth Avenue surface line—"asking the co-operation of the public"—as possible failure. So do I. You also mention the possible failure to sell tickets for the reason that few people would buy more than one or two at a time, as is now done by most people using the Subway and elevated lines. That is quite true, but does it not seem good business, and profitable for both the people and the transportation company, to offer for sale six tickets for 25 cents or twenty-five for $1, that travelers of small means can buy six for 25 cents, while people who can afford to buy one dollar's worth would be provided with tickets at all times, because they see an advantage in saving and are incidentally willing to help facilitate matters for the road? The companies would find this profitable notwithstanding they sell a ride at reduced rates. Railroad companies find selling monthly tickets and fifty-trip tickets profitable. Why would not the same method apply to a street car line? A. S. SILVERBERG.

Oiling the Swans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Something has gone awry with the water of the large pond in Central Park, and is particularly noticeable in the two small meres at the Seventy-seventh Street entrance.

On the surface, covering it to a large extent, is considerable acreage of oil, a veritable lake of oil. What will be the effect on the white plumage of the swans and ducks will be soon developed, for they cannot long float in this oleaginous compound without permanent stain. It is a situation the Department of Parks should correct.

From what "a policeman says," oil is being used in sprinkling the roads, and with every rain washes from the roadbeds into the ponds, forming an extravagant blanket of many colors in oil. M. T.

Lexington Avenue Subway Again.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with delight the sensible statement of Mr. Hickok in this morning's issue of your valuable journal regarding the Lexington Avenue and Broadway route of the proposed subway. The calculations were all made for the underground under Seventh Avenue; it is the logical route, straighter, and far less expensive to construct, and affords relief for the great west side section. Why was the route shifted? Who knows? Can any one tell? Does the Public Service Commission know? If so, will they tell? The balance of the community cannot understand why, with such a crying need for a subway on the west side, and that route all laid out and figured on, they should without reason shift the route and throw it over in such close proximity to the present existing route. R. HOWE.

In Memory of Hugh Bonner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a citizen who has known his career from the beginning, I commend your editorial today in reference to the late Hugh Bonner. It would be pleasing to me to contribute toward a memorial of some kind to perpetuate his memory. H. L. DES ANGES.

A BARGAIN DAY IN STAMPS.

One of the Slot Machines Tested at Post Office Gave Two for 1 Cent.

The new automatic postage-stamp vending machines, recently tested by Postmaster Morgan, were installed in the main corridor of the General Post Office Building yesterday morning, but they had not been in operation long before the Post Office people found that a lot of small boys were getting rich quicker than the law allows.

There were three machines in operation, one that gave out one-cent, another two-cent, and the third five-cent stamps. The two and five cent machines proved to be all right and gave value received only, but the one-cent machine gave forth two one-cent stamps for every penny put in the slot. The crowd was not long in finding out that it paid to work the one-cent machine.

A Post Office official, however, stopped to see why there was such great interest in the one-cent machine. He soon discovered the reason and hastily fixed the machine so that it afterward gave out only a single stamp at a time.

At the end of thirty days a committee appointed to test the machines will make a report to the Postmaster General, and on that report will depend whether or not the machines are to be permanent institutions.

OPTICIANS OPPOSE THE BILL.

Says It Would Create a Body of Incompetent Eye Specialists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your news columns there recently appeared an item to the effect that a certain association of opticians was asking for a law to stop impostors selling eyeglasses at exorbitant prices. It may interest you to know that the law which they are asking to have passed for this purpose is a law that strikes a serious blow at the educational system of this State. The study of the human eye and its diseases is essentially a part of the practice of medicine, yet the law which so-called "Optometrists" are clamoring for is a law that would intrust to them without any knowledge of medicine the examination of the human eye.

The Opticians' League of the State of New York represents an invested capital of something like $1,000,000, and its members employ several hundred skilled mechanics. We are opposed to this bill because it means the creation by the State of a set of men declared to be competent to practice upon the human eye when they have no knowledge of medicine whatever.

If the traveling fakir who sells eye glasses is to be suppressed there is law enough on the statute books to suppress him just as there is law enough to suppress the pickpocket or the "green-goods man." If more stringent regulations are needed than are provided by the statutes defining larceny let some specific law be drawn up governing these traveling peddlers, but which does not strike a blow at the whole educational system of the State and create a body of "specialists" utterly incompetent to do the work of practicing on the most delicate organism of the human body.

LENTEN PICKPOCKETS.

They Infest the Churches and Ply a Lively Trade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to warn the many readers of THE TIMES against the pickpockets who are infesting the churches during Lent and apparently doing a lively trade. On Saturday afternoon I chanced to visit one of the churches on the upper west side. There was no service on and the place was almost deserted.

Imagine my surprise on leaving the pew after a short visit to find my purse had completely disappeared.

Now, I had heard no one come near me, and yet the thing had occurred almost under my nose. It was certainly a most clever piece of pickpocketry. Some people near the door told me a slip of a girl had hurriedly left the church, and I found later that there had been several victims during the week, and on each occasion a small girl had been seen around.

As this church seems to be a "happy hunting ground" for the light-fingered gentry, I attended the service this morning, determined to take no chances. In one hand, firmly clutched, were my muff, fur, and Prayer Book, while the other held tightly a forlorn and thin-looking purse. Meantime I kept a vigilant eye to right and left.

As an aid to piety, I do not recommend this proceeding; truth to tell, I found it a serious handicap; but we live in a practical age, and I had the satisfaction of reaching home with all my portable property. A VICTIM.

New York, March 15, 1908.

Praise for Capt. Appleby.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think it would be for the good of the general public if they could know and, from knowing, appreciate the remarkably creditable way in which the Captain and officers of the steamer Providence of the Fall River Line controlled not only the fire but the passengers on board that steamer on the morning of the 13th.

Capt. Appleby, his officers, and crew from the highest to the lowest displayed judgment, calmness, and showed the results of thorough discipline in a way that is creditable to them and to our common humanity. No noise, no shouting, no frenzied commands, no hurry that resulted in confusion, simply a few orders given in a quiet fashion, and obeyed in the same way. A knock on the door of each stateroom, with a request to dress immediately, and then assurance given to the timid ones that there was no immediate danger, that all, each and every one, had to do was to obey and do as bid, and from where there might have been another "Slocum Horror" emerged a laughing, happy throng of men, women, and children under as perfect control as though they were disembarking in the ordinary way at the wharf instead of being transferred from a steamer under danger of fire to another steamer equally susceptible to the havoc that might be wrought by that same element of fire. WHEN IT'S ALL OVER.

It is a travel-stained chauffeur,
And he looketh long at me.
"Now, by the scent of gasoline,
What means this mystery?"

He held me with his goggled eyes,
I made no more demur,
And thus began that wondrous man—
The travel-stained chauffeur.

"From old New York to gay Paree,
We journeyed for the cup,
Through desert sands and frozen lands,
Where the white bear comes to sup.

"Over the ice and through the snow,
We bravely fought our way
By the pale, cold light of the stars at night,
And the colder sun by day.

"And day by day we kept our way,
Our rivals all were lost,
Sunk in the Strait, where the seal and his mate
Play in the Arctic frost.

"Now the race is done and the cup is won,
But there's little of fame for us.
The crowd didn't cheer when we asked the year,
But replied to our question thus:

"'Nineteen hundred and twenty-four,
And your labor has gone for naught,
For a crack airship has made the trip
In seventeen hours to the dot.'"

He stopped and turned into the throng
And soon was gone from me—
A sadder and a madder man
You would not wish to see.

FIVE CONTRADICT LILLEY.

Electric Boat Co.'s Attorneys Term Organized Lobby Charges "Reckless."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The examination to-day of five witnesses summoned at Representative Lilley's request in connection with the alleged submarine scandal failed to unearth anything in substantiation of Mr. Lilley's accusations. The five men were all at one time attorneys for the Electric Boat Company in this city. All of them branded as "wild, unfounded, reckless statements" Mr. Lilley's charges that they had ever constituted part of an "organized lobby" at the Capitol.

The five attorneys were ex-Senator Matthew C. Butler of South Carolina, now attorney for the company; ex-Senator Marion Butler of North Carolina, C. E. Crecy, once head of the Holland Boat Company, and later counsel for the Electric Boat Company; C. S. McNeir, now representing the company before the Navy Department, and F. P. B. Sands, who a few years ago conducted negotiations for the company with the naval authorities of Russia and Turkey.

The testimony of the ex-Senators was practically the same, though the South Carolinian added to his testimony the statement that only parliamentary usage prevented his using the "shorter and uglier word" in describing Mr. Lilley's charges. They both denied positively having ever expended any money in obtaining legislation or in making any effort to defeat a member of the Naval Committee in his own district.

Mr. Crecy said that up till 1902 he had been head of the Holland Company, and that the charges made by Mr. Lilley referring to the period before that time were certainly untrue. He had urged the Naval Committee to vote more submarines because he felt sure that in competition the award would certainly be given to his company.

Mr. Crecy said that the testimony of Admiral Dewey before the House Naval Committee that he could not have taken his ships into Manila Bay if there had been two submarines there had prompted him to draw an amendment to the Naval bill, which was introduced, providing for twenty submarine boats.

Mr. McNeir said that in the course of his connection with the company he had interviewed three members of Congress, Senator Ankeny, Representative Humphrey, and Representative Kahn, and had offered to supply them with data regarding submarines because he had heard that they were interested in coast defense.

The committee adjourned until to-morrow, when Lawrence Spear, who was referred to by Mr. Hobson as having said that his company had influence with the Speaker to place him on the Naval Committee, will be heard.

ONLY $8,210,611 FOR FORTS.

Committee Cuts $30,000,000 from Estimates—Philippine Project Disallowed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The House Committee on Appropriations reported the Fortifications bill to-day carrying $8,210,611, the largest annual appropriation since the Spanish war. The War Department asked for $38,448,945 for fortifications in Manila Bay, Subig Bay, and other strategic points on the Philippine coast. One million three hundred and fifty-four thousand dollars was allowed instead of $6,483,000 asked by the War Department for the fortification of Corregidor Island, but the pet project of the department to build an artificial island on which fortifications could be erected was disallowed.

For defenses of Honolulu $1,100,000 was voted, but for Pearl Harbor provision is made for only a few mortars.

"IN GOD WE TRUST" ON COINS

House Votes to Restore the Motto—Criticism of the President.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The House of Representatives, by 255 to 5, to-day passed the bill providing for the restoration of the motto "In God We Trust" on gold and silver coins of the United States. In the debate, Mr. Carlin, Virginia, said that in the issuance of his order abolishing the motto President Roosevelt had acted unwisely and in violation of the spirit of the law.

Mr. Ollie James, Kentucky, declared that in the judgment of the Christian people of the United States the President had made a great mistake.

In opposing the bill, Mr. Kustermann, Wisconsin, said that the motto smacked of irreverence and went dangerously close to sacrilege.

UPHOLDS FEDERAL CONTROL.

Senate Committee Declares Unconstitutional Bills Giving Power to States.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—By a vote of 8 to 2 the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary to-day declared unconstitutional all of the bills intended to remove Federal barriers against States exercising control of their police powers for the regulation of the liquor traffic.

Hearings on these measures have been held covering almost the entire present session, and the bills were advocated by representatives of practically all of the States where there is a strong prohibition sentiment. The members of the sub-committee are Senators Knox, Nelson, Fulton, Bacon, and Rayner.

ROOSEVELT URGES PENALTY.

Tells Prosecuting Attorney to Press for Jail Sentence Under Pure Food Act.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—President Roosevelt to-day summoned to the White House United States Attorney Baker, Prosecuting Attorney in the District of Columbia, and urged him to press for a jail sentence for Robert N. Harper, recently found guilty on a charge of violating the Pure Food and Drug act in the manufacture and sale of a headache preparation.

Mrs. Schoff Again Mothers' President.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Mrs. Frederic Schoff of Philadelphia was re-elected President of the National Mothers' Congress at to-day's session of that organization. The other officers chosen were Mrs. D. O. Mears of Albany, N. Y., First Vice President; Mrs. Edwin C. Grice of Philadelphia, Second Vice President; Mrs. R. B. McMullen of Evanston, Ill., Third Vice President; Mrs. J. S. Bolton of New Haven, Conn., Recording Secretary; Mrs. Arthur A. Birney of Washington, D. C., Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. L. K. Gilson of Willamette, Ill., Treasurer, and Mrs. W. A. Thatcher of Florence, N. J., Auditor.

Labor Discusses Injunction Decisions.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—A meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor was held here to-day, all the members being present except John Mitchell and D. J. Keefe. The injunction decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States in the hatters' case and other injunctions against labor organizations were discussed, but no conclusions were reached. The Council also took up the matter of mapping out a programme for the conference on labor matters of the National and International Presidents of unions, which is to be held here on Wednesday.

SAN JUAN DISAPPOINTED.

Oceana's Passengers Not Allowed to Land and Spend Money.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 16.—The excursion steamer Oceana of the Hamburg-American Line, with 840 tourists on board, came into port to-day, but the local quarantine officers refused permission for the passengers to come ashore because the steamer had touched at Port of Spain, Trinidad, where there has been yellow fever. This refusal was in spite of the fact that the Oceana had a clean bill of health.

The local shopkeepers are very much disappointed at the action of the authorities, as they had hoped for considerable trade. The Oceana will go from here to Cuba.

RUG 200 YEARS OLD IN ORIENTAL EXHIBIT

Japanese and Chinese Porcelains and Ivories Also on View at the American Galleries.

EARLY DUTCH PAINTINGS

Some Interesting Canvases by Van Scorel, de Velde, and Maes at Ehrich Galleries.

Until March 19 there may be seen at the American Art Galleries, in Madison Square, a collection of Chinese and Japanese porcelains, jades, ivories, and rugs belonging to the firm of Yamanaka & Co., which will be sold at auction on the afternoons of March 19, 20, and 21.

Among the rugs are some of great beauty and rarity, notably one which is closely covered with a purely Chinese pattern of svastika and fret without any intermingling of Greek elements. The ground is golden brown, and the pattern is woven in dark blue, the formal fret being intercepted by the symbolic bat, signifying long life. The general tone of the rug as it lies flat on the floor is golden, clouded by blue.

Many of the finer examples have this indescribable golden bloom, sometimes pale as in a very large rug with a fawn-colored ground, and design woven in sapphire and turquoise blue, and sometimes almost brown, as in No. 594, a rug said to be 200 years old, which is closely covered with a design woven in low tones of blue.

Among the porcelains are admirable specimens of the single color and five color variety, and there is also a fine group of the soft-toned Korean pottery which has something of the same loveliness of surface as the rugs, and appeals to certain amateurs with more force than the brilliant porcelains.

One of the most remarkable of the ivories is an intricately carved representation of Kwannon, the Goddess of Mercy. The goddess stands on the crest of a wave, guarded by a dragon, holding in her right hand a basket and in the left a large flower. The entire work is carved from one piece of ivory, and is by Sanemasa.

The bronzes are very important, for the most part rather elaborate in form, and in the majority of instances with extremely fine patina. Many of the larger pieces are wrought in hammered copper plated with gold and incrusted with semi-precious stones.

A collection of early Dutch and Flemish art is now on view at the Ehrich Galleries. With the treasured masterpieces of the world out of reach and an easy readiness to enjoy the opportunities at hand, one may extract a lively pleasure from such an exhibition, showing, as it does, the characteristics of a school devoted to careful workmanship and expressive types.

In the present group may be noted several canvases well worth examination. Among them is a "Lady with Urn," which is given to Jan van Scorel, a Dutch painter of the early sixteenth century, a pupil of Mabuse, whose art showed little Italian influence until his later years. The "Lady" wears a sumptuous green robe, embroidered in a handsome pattern with gold, which, with her red scarf, some pale-brown fur on her bodice, and a red curtain, makes a pleasant color composition often met with in the German galleries and not so often among the Dutch.

Another painting, given to the school of Jan Steen, which had the signature of Steen painted on it by some hand later than his, affords a plausible excuse for such an attribution. The subject is a medicine fakir dealing out his wares from a high canopied platform. A woman stands by his side, and below in the market place men and women of various stations in life are crowded about the platform. A fine greyhound is sniffing at a beggar in the shadow.

Across the canvas the bright garments of the spectators, the gleaming red robe of the fakir, and the silvery skirt of his companion make a lovely drift of bright color quite worthy of a master of the craft of painting such as Steen was, despite his inequalities.

A "Princess of Orange," by Nicolas Maes, is an example of that painter's late style, when he had rid himself of every vestige of his early likeness to Rembrandt, and also of much of the gravity of execution characterizing the portraits of his middle years. The "Princess" is a lady of somewhat florid beauty, with bright red lips, liquid dark eyes, and a haughty poise of her head. The delicate treatment of the features and the curious harmony of reds and magentas in the cloak and drapery are characteristic of Maes, and so are the long, pallid hands.

Another picture of interest is given to Isaias van de Velde, a painter who worked at Haarlem and The Hague, and is commonly considered the master of Jan van Goyen. The subject is a rider on a white horse. The light is concentrated on the horse's face, and the massive animal very well represents the equestrian ideal of the time.

Other pictures in the collection are a charming "Portrait of a Youth" in the style of Terburg, a ruddy "Stable Interior" by Isaak van Ostade, a pretty and insipid "Shepherdess" by Paul Moreelse, and a Rubenesque "Susannah and the Elders," by Gottfried Schalken.

AN HOUR WITH WHISTLER.

William M. Chase Relates Anecdotes of Artist in Talk at Women's Club.

"It is a great shame that we have none of Whistler's masterpieces in this country," William M. Chase, the artist, told the Daughters of Indiana in a talk upon "Whistler, the Man and His Art," at their regular meeting in the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon.

"We should have one of Whistler's masterpieces," said Mr. Chase, "and we might very easily have had one. The portrait of his mother was in this country at one time, and it could then have been purchased for $500. It now belongs to the French Government, and will eventually be placed in the Louvre. At one time Alden Weir and I made every possible effort to have Whistler's 'Woman in White' purchased for the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It was hung there, but the authorities said they did not consider it one of his representative works. It could have been bought for very little. It is now worth $100,000."

Mr. Chase's talk was from his own personal knowledge of Whistler, an experience which he had while spending many weeks with the artist in London. He told of his great admiration for Whistler and desire to know the man, the fear of how he might be received keeping him away after he had taken a cab and started for the artist's house. Finally, later, with a letter of introduction, which, however, Whistler never examined, he started again and was warmly welcomed.

"You must not hurry," said Whistler, when he found his visitor was about to leave town. "There are so many things of mine that you ought to know," and he made an appointment for the next morning to take his compatriot around to see these pictures.

"He was the most fascinating man to know for a short time that I ever met," said Mr. Chase. "In going to see his pictures," he continued, "we would stop before a private house and Whistler would say to me: 'You go in alone there, I would be thrown out.'"

There were many more characteristic anecdotes. The club finished its afternoon with refreshments.

NEW SATIRICAL PLAY ACTED BY AMATEURS

"The Simple Life" Purports to Picture the Fads and Follies of Modern Social Life.

AUTHOR A NEW YORK LAWYER

Parts Taken by Young Women Well Known in Society—Miss Hitchcock Scores a Hit.

An ambitious production of "The Simple Life," a new and original play by John C. Travis, the lawyer, of 141 Broadway, was made last night by some of the best amateur actors in society in the Carnegie Lyceum. The play will be seen in aid of a different charity every night this week, and is likely to attract large audiences. The gala performance will take place at the Plaza on Thursday night in aid of the Riverbond Home of Wilburtha, N. J.

The author of the play and also of "The Present Generation" made every effort to screen his identity, and did not take advantage of the calls for "author."

Among the amateurs who appeared in the play last night was "Tommy" Russell, the original "Lord Fauntleroy," a brother of Annie Russell, who made his reappearance after an absence of years from theatricals. Edward Fales Coward, Mrs. Ehrhardt-Lee, Miss Marie Huntington, Jacob Wendell, Jr., Philip F. Kobee, Jr., and Miss Olivia Hitchcock took important parts.

The Play a Satirical Drama.

The play is a satirical drama in four acts of modern New York, and so the players were in a position to impart a great deal of realism to the scenes illustrating fashionable life. Two families are concerned, one that of Gerardus Carter, whose daughter Madge is independently rich, and with a mind of her own. She rules the household with a rod of iron, and because of her severity her younger sister, Polly, elopes.

The other family concerned is that of Mr. and Mrs. George Barwell, Jr., who were unhappily mated. Mrs. Barwell, once a country girl, becomes lost in the pursuit of social ambition, and when her husband's income decreases renews a flirtation with a young Senator named Herington. To save Mrs. Barwell's reputation, Madge Carter, her high-strung friend, takes on her own shoulders the flirtation with the Senator. Mrs. Barwell then becomes wildly jealous, and casts off both the Senator and the girl.

In the meantime her husband joins two adventurers in financing a defunct Central American republic. Barwell needs the Senator to secure his appointment as American Minister, and adjures his wife to ask this favor. The climax is reached when the husband surprises his wife and the Senator together. She is pleading with the Senator to elope with her rather than endure the rigors of poverty.

Again the foolish wife is saved by the generous lie of the eloping Polly Carter and her young husband, and in the last act the situation is adjusted by the arrival of the elder Barwell, who is a man of affairs, and had engineered their financial difficulties to wean the Barwells from an idle, butterfly life. He promises his son the post of Ambassador at Vienna, and with the agreement that she shall be the best-gowned woman in the Austrian capital Mrs. Barwell is satisfied.

Miss Hitchcock Acted Well.

The artistic hit of the evening was scored by Miss Olivia Hitchcock, who has frequently danced at charity entertainments in society, but who is a newcomer as an actress. As the ultra-modern Miss Carter she acted with a restraint and power that lifted her above the average of amateurs. Her gowns were as artistic as her acting. Mrs. Erhardt-Lee was a lively ingénue. and Miss Marie Huntington played the difficult rôle of Mrs. Barwell acceptably. "Tommy" Russell played opposite to Mrs. Erhardt-Lee and brought to his part a fund of good humor and technical skill. Jacob Wendell, Jr., as the elder Barwell contributed a praiseworthy character sketch, and Evert Jensen Wendell as the careless man about town won many laughs. Philip F. Kobbé, Jr., as the downtrodden Mr. Carter, was very real. William Clifford Moore was the up-State father, who offered his worldly daughter an income of $500 a year, and Edward Fales Coward was a fantastic adventurer and Harold Gould and Walker M. Dennett had difficult "heavy" rôles.

Some Epigrams of the Play.

Among the best of the epigrams in the piece were:

"There are no secrets between man and wife, especially the wife."

"So you are a United States Senator. Fine! That might lead to something better."

"If you marry a rich woman, be sure to have her life insured. Otherwise you'll be sorry when she dies."

She (to the trifling clubman)—If women would take you seriously you'd be in hot water most of the time.

He—If one woman would take me seriously I'd always be in hot water.

In the audience last night were Mr. and Mrs. Stowe Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hollister, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Hurry, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Joel B. "TANNHAEUSER" GIVEN AGAIN.

Mme. Morena Appears for the First Time as Elisabeth.

"Tannhäuser" was given again at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening with an interesting new impersonation of Elisabeth by Mme. Morena and with one of Tannhäuser for the first time this season by Mr. Burrian. There were a remarkable public interest in this performance and one of the largest audiences that has attended a Wagnerian performance at the Metropolitan this Winter.

Mme. Morena deepened and strengthened the impression she made at her first appearance here, especially as to the dramatic value of her impersonation. It was beautiful to look at, and filled the eye with a vision of radiant loveliness and of a personality at once of virginal tenderness and of the tranquil authority of a Princess. Her singing was not in this of the highest beauty; and though there were portions that were delivered with a fine force and dramatic power, in the more sustained portions, in which purity and smoothness of vocal quality count for most, she was less effective. The prayer in the third act she shortened considerably.

As Tannhäuser Mr. Burrian shows some of his best traits as a lyric actor. There is a potent dramatic force in his impersonation, and if there is not all the heroic stature of the ill-fated knight, there are both nobility and poignancy in his portrayal, and a virile quality of voice, though it has much of the hardness and metallic quality from which the German tenor of to-day finds it so hard to get away.

Mr. Hertz conducted with his characteristic energy and determination. There were many fine dramatic moments in the performance, and the scene of the tournament of song was effectively carried out. The Venusberg scene with Mme. Fremstad as Venus and with the additions to the music made for the Parisian production have for several seasons been a feature of the "Tannhäuser" productions at the Metropolitan.

The other members of the cast were familiar ones—Messrs. Van Rooy as Wolfram, Blass as Landgrave Herrmann, and Mr. Mühlmann as Biterolf.

Mme. Calve Again in Carmen.

Mme. Calvé made her second appearance this season at the Manhattan Opera House last night in "Carmen." Miss Zeppilli and Messrs. Dalmorès and Dufranne were in the cast. Mr. Campanini conducted. The audience was a large one.

There are some plays—not necessarily the poor ones—to which both the actor and the spectator must bring almost as much as they receive. For the former it must all be Gospel—he must never be in doubt about the action or himself; for the latter it must be easy acceptance of the situations without a quibble or a question. If either the one or the other stops to consider plausibility all is likely to be lost.

"Toddles" is such a play; to enjoy it thoroughly you must give yourself up unreservedly. Even then the best result is not attained with people who do not know the type (and in this country we have him not) or if the actor is not absolutely in the spirit of the rôle. Toddles is only a baby overgrown. As Mr. Cyril Maude played him in London it was easy to yield to the spell of his infantile indecisions. One accepted him at the outset for what he set out to be. Here the result has been a bit more difficult to achieve. For John Barrymore somehow has always appeared such a well-poised, grown-up youth that the idea of his juvenile vacillation was at first doubtful in the process. Then, too, on the acting side, Mr. Barrymore made a bad start; but he finished strong. He began by trying to be some one else, a some one with an affected English accent and a put-on Joe Coyne accent. Or, again, a sort of cross between the late Stuart Robson as Bertie the Lamb and the present E. H. Sothern as Lord Dundreary. Now, in a part of this kind, except in the case of very rare artistry, one is either one's self, and that self tells heavily with the laughers, or one's efforts are likely to go begging.

Fortunately, with the second act Mr. Barrymore tried less and less to be other than himself. Then his humor got to be convincing. And before the evening was well along he had converted "Toddles" from a possible failure to probable success. And it may be said to his credit that he did it practically alone. For the better bits of the piece, the funny old professor who shoos everybody away from his wife's receptions and the hectored French Mayor, who in London caused a roar every time he talked about "dese Anglais, how dey sniz"—these and most of the other parts were either played with dullness or with abominable overemphasis. Which is a pity, because the piece, though it is only rollicking farce at best, has been built on a capital idea, has a kernel of ingenious fun, and some very amusing characters.

In adapting French plays for the English stage something is almost invariably lost, something, however, which we are generally willing to spare. Unfortunately, however, that something in many cases is the spice in the Gallic compound; without it the residue is likely to be flat.

The "Tripplepatte" of MM. Tristan Bernard and Andrew Godferneaus is one of the exceptions to the rule. Like "My Wife," which English-speaking audiences have enjoyed, it is funny in spite of expurgation.

There is a scheme on foot to marry Lord Meadows (Toddles) to a Miss Constance Joblyn.

She is not keen about the match, but a certain Lady Dover is, since she will profit by it to the extent of several thousands in commissions. For Constance is an heiress, and a money lender to whom Toddles is indebted is anxious to see the match arranged. Meadows, however, does not quite like the idea of being married; he fancies bachelor comforts. Moreover, there are complications. He is under obligations to a certain Mrs. Bowler, in the English version quite a proper merry widow. Also, his father, on his death bed had expressed a desire that Toddles should eventually marry his cousin, now a girl of 5. The child's mother, too, has hopes of profiting by that arrangement, so she pursues Toddles in the interest of the child. Thus besieged, Toddles is in for a hard time of it. Mrs. Joblyn has arranged for an "at home" unknown to her husband, a sleepy professor, who hates all social functions. The professor, in one of the quaintest scenes of the piece, calls each of the male guests aside as they arrive, and warns them that they had better go away, promising that he will not tell. Toddles alone takes his advice. It is quite in line with his own ideas. So he goes back home and into bed. This scene, played in London with immense humor by Mr. Alfred Bishop as Mr. Joblin, was excruciatingly funny. Here it went for little.

In the second act, Toddles in bed, is besieged by the various interested parties, who remind him that this is the day he is to be married to Miss Joblyn. He cannot make up his mind to carry out the contract. Finally, he thinks he will. At any rate, after urgent solicitation, he agrees to take his bath—"a bath" he says, "will not commit me to anything"—and out of bed he scrambles. Then the scheming mamma with the little girl arrives, and to circumvent the others carries off Toddles's only suit of clothes. And when he comes from the bath he accepts the situation and plumps into bed again, but he is finally persuaded to keep his appointment at the mairie.

The third act is in two scenes. Toddles arrives clad only in his pjamas, a borrowed overcoat, and red felt slippers. But when the impatient Mayor, who has already been kept waiting an unconscionable time, asks him if he will marry, he hesitates again. In the confusion that follows he slips away, goes home, and again to bed. At this time it appears to poor Constance that there will be "no wedding bells for her," but the final act shows otherwise, for Toddles finally discovers that he really loves her, and so charmingly puts his case that she accepts him on the spot.

There are dull passages, and in the first act especially we are kept lingering overlong on unimportant details, but no doubt Mr. Fitch has got all the fun possible into his English adaptation, in which, as may be presumed, some pointed barbs of Gallic wit have had to be dulled lest they wound the more sensitive Anglo-Saxon ear.

A better cast might have done more for the general effect; as it was, Mr. Barrymore was frequently in danger of being swamped in the cackling that went on about him. Of the women, Miss Olive Temple alone conveyed a sense of familiarity with the manners of an English social set. Jeffreys Lewis burlesqued fearfully, and Sadie Martinot seemed only less dreadful because one saw and heard her less. Pauline Frederick is pretty and gowns charmingly. Her acting, too, is rather natural for one of limited experience, but she too, has much to learn in a school of approved good manners. Isabel Richards was effective in a small part, and the men, except in the parts already mentioned, were competent enough, if generally uninteresting.

"The Traveling Salesman" Staged.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—With Thomas W. Ross in the title rôle, James Forbes's new comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," had its first presentation at the Columbia Theatre to-night. The new play is essentially a comedy, but with some touches of dramatic quality. Miss Marion Kerby of Chicago had the chief feminine rôle, and, although it was her first stage appearance, she won much favor.

Ethel Jackson, who in private life is Mrs. Fred Zimmerman, Jr., is once more ill and temporarily out of the cast of "The Merry Widow" at the New Amsterdam Theatre. Her place is being taken by Lois Ewell, who substituted for her during her first absence from the cast. Miss Jackson fainted twice during the matinée last Saturday.

DIES IN COURTROOM.

John Maguire Stricken with Apoplexy After Pleading for Client.

There was a dramatic scene in the Kings County Court yesterday when Elections Commissioner John Maguire, just after closing a vigorous appeal for a client, was stricken with cerebral apoplexy and died in his chair. Coroner's Physician Hartung, who happened to be in court, attended the dying man, but could do nothing.

The tragic conclusion of the case threw the court into confusion, the men spectators jumping excitedly to their feet and some of the women becoming hysterical. Judge Fawcett was forced to order the court room cleared. He dismissed the jury and ordered a mistrial in the case pending.

Mr. Maguire had appeared for a client charged with grand larceny. While on his way to his office from his home, 103 Arlington Avenue, earlier in the day, Mr. Maguire met Coroner's Physician Emil Hartung, who later attended him in court, on an elevated train. He told the physician that he had never felt better in his life and entertained him with some humorous stories on the way downtown.

Mr. Maguire was one of the best known Democrats in Kings County, and had long been a power in the party in the upper districts. He was born in Brooklyn 46 years ago.

Mr. Maguire was a widower without children, and lived with his mother and sister. He was a brother of the Rev. William Maguire, a priest of the Diocese of Long Island.

SUNDAY NIGHT OPERA AT THE MANHATTAN

Mr. Hammerstein to Make the Experiment at Concert Prices Next Season.

"SATURDAY" PRICES TO END

Regular Admission to be Charged for the Popular Night Hereafter—Calve as Carmen Next Saturday.

Oscar Hammerstein announced last evening that next season there will be no popular-priced Saturday night performances at the Manhattan Opera House. Saturday night will be as any other night at that theatre. He also announced that Mme. Calvé would appear in "Carmen" at popular prices next Saturday night at the Manhattan. The cast will include Miss Zeppilli and Messrs. Dalmorès and Dufranne. Mr. Dufranne will sing the rôle of the father in "Louise" to-morrow evening.

While Mr. Hammerstein will not give popular opera on Saturday nights next year, he will give it on Sunday nights instead. Under the law recently passed by the Board of Aldermen, all educational and musical performances are allowed on Sunday. For the last four weeks Mr. Hammerstein has experimented with his Sunday night concerts by devoting part of the programme to acts from operas with principals and chorus without scenery or costumes. The innovation has met with so much success that next season the impresario plans to go a step further and give opera on Sunday nights with all its paraphernalia at prices now in vogue for Sunday night concerts.

"The prices charged on Saturday night now are either too high or too low," said Mr. Hammerstein last night. "They satisfy nobody. For those who want to hear the operas with a good ensemble they are too high. Others willing to pay more demand stars and new operas.

"I figure that thousands who are unable to hear opera on other nights may be able to go on Sunday. I shall devote Saturday nights in future to regular opera. Productions will be made on that night. Miss Garden and Mme. Tetrazzini will sing on that night, and the prices will be the same as on other nights."

Mr. Hammerstein will sail for Europe in a few weeks, and it is announced that he will secure singers which will enable him to continue the opera next season into the Spring and Summer at popular prices.

NO TRANSIT RELIEF IN SIGHT, IVINS SAYS

He Tells the City Club That the People of the City Are Facing a Crisis.

NO HELP FROM CAPITAL

Why Not a 3-Cent Fare with Municipal Ownership? F. W. Hinrichs Asks—City Short of Money, Metz Declares.

New York City transit, in all its many shapes and forms, in its failure of the past and its problematical success of the future, was the subject of a three hours' discussion last night by members of the City Club, who had primarily assembled to hear an address on "Street Railways" by William M. Ivins, special counsel for the Public Service Commission. About 200 persons, including Controller Metz, President George McAneny of the club, Paul Cravath, Adrian H. Joline, Julius Henry Cohen, Prof. E. R. A. Seligman, and others interested actively in transit problems, were present.

Mr. Ivins read his address. He commenced by saying that the real title of his address should be "A Fool's Paradise," as that is the state, he said, in which we are at present living.

"It is only a coward who is afraid to look facts in the face," said he. "We are to-day living in a fool's paradise of expectation and ignorance, with most painful consequences to us all, and I am going to try to lead you out of that paradise to the disagreeable realm of cruel fact." He then went on to give the history of the development of the law regarding the consolidation of railways in this State since 1875, and the decline and fall of the metropolitan system, and said:

"Practically all railway legislation for the last thirty years has been secured at the solicitation of and for the purpose of conforming to the wishes, requirements, plans, and purposes of the railroad companies themselves."

Mr. Ivins gave a history of the Whitney-Ryan Syndicate transactions resulting in consolidations of many lines. He continued:

"The integration and aggregation of street surface railways finally became complete through the lease of the Third Avenue system to the Metropolitan in 1900. They had been capitalized at over $240,000,000. I shall not characterize the propriety of that capitalization, but will leave that to you after you have studied my facts. Suffice it to say that whosoever the fault the system is to-day financially and physically bankrupt. Both results have a single cause, the division among the holders of this enormous capital, in interest and dividends, of money that was not earned.

"Those most expert in such things tell me that to put in complete condition and as good as new the system in Manhattan and the Bronx will require $25,000,000, and where this money is to come from no one can tell. We can ask ourselves very seriously and very honestly what Tweed asked us in mockery, 'What are we going to do about it?'"

He then went on to say that since 1902 the revenue passengers have fallen off 20 per cent. on the surface lines of Manhattan and the Bronx.

The speaker gave figures to show that, deducting from the gross income from all sources, operating expenses, taxes, &c., and allowing for depreciations and increases, there will be left only 3.4 per cent. interest on the actual reproduction value. "Leaving a loss to the city of over $900,000 of special franchise taxes and no possibility of any dividend on any stock," he continued, "disintegration becomes inevitable before there can be any reintegration. Financial history presents no sadder ruin and no more hopeless problem. If private capital will not increase its investment, what is the public going to do about it?"

At the conclusion of his address, and in response to a question put by President McAneny as to the efficacy of the Elsberg bill, Mr. Ivins said:

"Some people had an idea that when that bill was launched the invitation to private capital would be irresistible. I say to you that there is no hope of private capital being obtained even though the statute be amended.

"Why, during the month of February, since the subway to Brooklyn has been opened, the Subway's revenue has increased by $3,000 a day, but the elevated has decreased $2,400 a day, while the Brooklyn Rapid Transit has had a minimum loss of 30,000 passengers a day. You won't see financiers tumbling over each other for the chance to make a loss."

Controller Metz said that the trouble was that we were afraid of the truth.

Mr. Heinrichs asked Mr. Ivins what he thought of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland and his 3-cent fare. During his question, Mr. Heinrichs referred to Mr. Johnson as an economist, dreamer, poet, or, on the other hand, a liar.

Mr. Irvins said his acquaintance with Mayor Johnson dated back many years.

"I wouldn't characterize him by any of the names used by Mr. Heinrich," he said. "I would rather call him a financier. He knew enough to get out of Brooklyn with several millions and leave the problem for some one else to solve. I have read recently in the papers what he has been saying about a 3-cent fare. His talk is distinctly mischievous, as it leads the ordinary man to be disgruntled."

After a general discussion, in which Henry George, Jr., Homer Folks, and others joined, it seemed to be the almost unanimous opinion that future subways would not be built by private capital, but with the city's money.

MURPHY ATTACKS COCKRAN.

Tammany Leader Says Congressman Is Not a Democrat—Cockran's Reply.

"When is a Democrat not a Democrat?" That is the latest riddle to be propounded in political circles, and is the result of a statement made yesterday by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, in which the Tammany leader said that Bourke Cockran had been dropped from the organization's committees because he was not a Democrat, or words to that effect. Last evening Mr. Cockran expressed amazement and wanted to know what kind of a Democrat Mr. Murphy meant.

Yesterday Mr. Murphy, who is usually the most reticent of men, wheeled sharply around in his chair when the reporters made their daily call at the Wigwam, and said briskly:

"I want to be interviewed to-day. I have a statement to make. It has been published that the reason why Congressman Cockran was dropped from the subcommittees of this organization was because I had had some differences with him over the appointment of receivers for the Knickerbocker Trust Company. That story is untrue. I had no differences with Mr. Cockran in that matter. Tammany is a Democratic organization and puts none but Democrats on its committees. That is the sole reason why Mr. Cockran was dropped."

"Does that mean that you do not consider Mr. Cockran a Democrat?" was asked.

"My statement was perfectly plain, and it speaks for itself. Tammany puts none but Democrats on its committees, and that is why Mr. Cockran was dropped. I have nothing to add to that, and nothing further to say."

Congressman Cockran came to town from Washington yesterday and made the following characteristic reply to Mr. Murphy:

"It is beyond my intellectuals. It is well known that I have written all the definitions of Democracy accepted and approved by Mr. Murphy during the last four years. Which of them does he repudiate, and on what grounds? It is all very amazing and amusing."

Political circles are more or less at a loss to understand what the real cause of the difference between the two men, who have been very close for several years, may be. The one best guess seemed to be that the difference between a Cockran Democrat and a Murphy Democrat is that the one has Bryanitis and the other hasn't. The Tammany leader, who is opposed to Bryan, and the Congressman, exponents of this theory explained, had doubtless quarreled over the Bryan issue, and in this connection it was recalled that Mr. Cockran, in the last few years has, on several occasions, expressed his admiration for the Nebraskan.

STOP EMMA GOLDMAN'S TALK.

Tried to Outwit the Police, but They Put Her Into Street.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 16.—Emma Goldman, "Queen of the Reds," attempted to deliver an address on anarchy to-night, but before she spoke the opening sentences policemen hustled her off the stage and out into the street. Only the calmness of Miss Goldman herself prevented an ugly encounter between the police and the 200 or more Anarchists who filled the hall.

Miss Goldman thought to outwit the police, as she announced that she was only going to attend a dance. There was no dance, however. At Workingmen's Hall 300 persons assembled, most of them Anarchists from the Edelstadt group.

As Miss Goldman was being shoved down the aisle toward the rear of the hall in the midst of a group of police she shouted, "Friends, I beg of you keep quiet." The audience quieted in an instant.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 16.—The Rev. Eliot White, the wealthy minister who resigned his pastorate, and who, with his wife, is an ardent Socialist, was arrested by the police to-night for disturbing the peace in connection with the visit to this city of Alexander Berkman, the noted Anarchist, the husband of Emma Goldman.

A strong guard of police swooped on the hall, cleared it, and locked it up, refusing admittance to the Anarchists and to Berkman. The latter was followed all night by police until he retired to his rooms at the Hotel Columbia.

PEABODY HELPING BINGHAM.

Detective Dismissed for Action in Gould Case Now a "Special" Sleuth.

Deputy Police Commissioner Wood admitted yesterday that the department is employing outside detectives to run down criminals. This step was taken because of the numerous robberies in the precinct now called the "danger zone," extending from Thirty-fourth Street to Eightieth Street, and from Fifth Avenue to Madison Avenue.

"Have you employed for duty William F. Peabody, an ex-Lieutenant of Police, who was dismissed from the force on June 24, 1907, by Police Commissioner Bingham," Mr. Wood was asked.

"He is in the employ of the Police Department," said Mr. Wood. "They say that he is a very good man."

When Peabody was a Detective Lieutenant in the department he arrested a man named John Sweeney on the charge of grand larceny and locked him up in the West Twentieth Street Station. An hour later Sweeney escaped. For this, Inspector Russell, who was then a Captain at the West Twentieth Street Station, was fined a day's pay.

Later on Peabody was dismissed because of his connection with the Gould divorce case, it being charged that Peabody, while acting as a detective, went to Baltimore to investigate whether or not Katharine Clemens, the wife of Howard Gould, had been married before.

ROCK HALTS PENNA. TUBE.

Last of Four Tunnels, However, Will Probably Be Cut Through To-day.

The last of the four Pennsylvania Railroad tunnels under the East River between Manhattan and Long Island City is expected to be cut through some time today. The engineers in charge of the excavating of Tube A, as the tunnel is known, had expected to bore through the remaining wall of earth yesterday, but rock was encountered, and the boring became more difficult than had been anticipated.

The nerves of the big force of "sand hogs" at work on the Long Island side of the excavation were keyed up all day, as they expected any minute to get through the rock and have smooth sailing through the sand and earth which would then separate them from the Manhattan end of the tube.

There will be a celebration among the workmen when this last of the four tunnels is cut through. Engineers in charge of the work say that fewer accidents have happened in the boring of these tubes than any of the others beneath the East or the North River. The Pennsylvania tubes are the largest tunnels under the river. They are each 23 feet in diameter from the outside walls. When the iron casings are fitted, they will be 20 feet in diameter.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

Retired Merchant Attacked and Left Unconscious in Fifty-third Street.

The police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station and several Central Office men are investigating a story of highway robbery reported on Sunday and concealed by them until yesterday afternoon. The robbed man had been picked up and taken to Roosevelt Hospital about midnight Friday night. That he had been robbed did not occur to the police until the victim himself called at the police station after his recovery from his injuries. He had been found with a scalp wound lying up against an elevated pillar in West Fifty-third Street.

George R. Cross, the victim, is a retired merchant, living with a sister at 260 West Fifty-seventh Street. Last Friday evening he made a visit to a friend in Fifty-second Street. He says that on his way home while passing through Fifty-third Street three men darted out of a hallway, and one of them struck him on the head from behind. When he came to he was in Roosevelt Hospital. His watch and chain, a stick pin, and money, all amounting to nearly $300, were gone.

ARREST DRESSER FOR MISAPPROPRIATION

Ex-President of Trust Co. of the Republic Charged with Illegally Retaining $4,000.

SHIPBUILDING TRUST ECHO

Bonds of Defunct Corporation Involved in the Transaction—He Denies the Charge and Says It's Persecution.

Daniel Leroy Dresser, ex-President of the Trust Company of the Republic, and chief promoter of the Shipbuilding Trust, was arrested yesterday by Lieutenant Detective Woodbridge and arraigned before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court on a charge of misappropriating the sum of $4,000 given to him by William S. Andrews, Commissioner of Records, in January, 1903, to take up a draft discounted in Paris by John W. Young, a son of Brigham Young of Salt Lake, Utah, who was Mr. Andrews's client.

The affidavits, made by Mr. Andrews and produced in court by Abraham Levy, his attorney, allege that on Dec. 12 the complainant gave Dresser 316 bonds of the United States Shipbuilding Company of $1,000 value each, which belonged to his client, Mr. Young, for him to negotiate a loan on them and hold the bonds in trust until Aug. 1, 1903.

Mr. Dresser failed to negotiate the loan, and in January, 1903, he offered to return fifty of the bonds if Mr. Andrews would give him $10,000 to take up three drafts drawn by Mr. Dresser in favor of Mr. Young—two for $3,000 each and one for $4,000.

The two drafts for $3,000 each were taken up by Mr. Dresser with the money sent to him by Mr. Andrews, but the third draft for $4,000 was held in Paris in consequence of a suit against Mr. Young, and it is alleged that Mr. Dresser appropriated the money for that draft to his own uses.

An affidavit made by John W. Young, corroborating the one made by Mr. Andrews, stated that he had presented the draft for $4,000 for collection and that Mr. Dresser refused to pay it, although Mr. Andrews had informed Mr. Young that the money had been sent to Mr. Dresser.

In his defense Mr. Dresser said, through his counsel, Frank Sullivan Smith, that the charges were preposterous and moreover they were outlawed by the Statute of Limitations.

After hearing the evidence Magistrate Barlow adjourned the case until next Monday at 2 o'clock, and paroled Mr. Dresser on his own recognizance, with the consent of Mr. Levy, to appear in court on that date.

Daniel Leroy Dresser is a New Yorker and was for many years the senior partner of the firm of Dresser & Co., commission merchants of 71 Franklin Street, where he failed for $1,500,000. One of his sisters is Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, another is the wealthy widow of John Nicholas Brown of Newport; a third sister is the wife of the Rev. George Grenville Merrill of Buffalo, and the youngest sister is Countess d'Osmay of France. In 1899 Mr. Dresser married Miss Emma Louise Burnham, who sued him last year for separation and the custody of their two children.

The scandal connected with the Shipbuilding Trust and the Trust Company of the Republic involved Mr. Dresser in numerous lawsuits, but this is the first time that any criminal charges have been made against him.

SPANKED WIFE, SHE SUES.

Mrs. Stewart Asks for Separation and Alimony—Doctor Denies Charges.

Dr. William J. Stewart, a dentist, is defendant in a suit for separation brought by his wife as a result of a quarrel in their apartments, at 3,120 Broadway, on the evening of Feb. 17, which is variously described by the parties thereto. Mrs. Stewart, who gives as her grounds for a separation "cruel and inhuman treatment, abandonment, and refusal and neglect to support," says that her husband struck her "repeated blows on the face and mouth, breaking her teeth."

Dr. Stewart denies this and says that "deponent spanked plaintiff with his open hand as he would have spanked his child, as she deserved from her childish conduct."

As to the cause of the trouble their stories are equally divergent. Mrs. Stewart says it started because she asked to accompany her husband when going out that evening. Dr. Stewart says that when he came home each evening his wife accosted him with the question: "Who was the fair one to-day?"

After she had repeated this many times he told her he'd slap her if she didn't desist. She told him to do so if he dared, he says, and he did dare.

"Then the plaintiff swung right and left with her clenched fists," Dr. Stewart's affidavit continues, "striking the deponent in the face and body with a force that surprised him."

Then, the dentist says, he carried his wife into the bedroom and administered a spanking.

"As soon as she was released," Dr. Stewart continues, "she renewed the assault, and with curses picked up a sharp-pointed steel rod and attempted to stab this deponent."

Mrs. Stewart's sister finally stopped the quarrel, and next morning he left the house and took up his residence at the King Edward.

Other interesting statements in the doctor's affidavit are that his wife wrote his mother that "she made him kiss the dirt at her feet once, and would do it again," referring ton an incident at the home of her parents in the Adirondacks a couple of Summers ago; that he had taken out $15,000 in life insurance to please her, and that she was extravagant.

Mrs. Stewart was Emma B. Priddle of Yonkers, where her parents now live. She was married to the dentist on Jan. 25, 1903. They have two children—Marguerite, aged 4, and William Wall, 2. About a year ago Mrs. Stewart left her husband and started to bring a suit for separation, but did not.

She now asks for $250 a month alimony, alleging that her husband's income is $10,000 a year. He denies this, and says his financial condition is so bad that he is at present living in a boarding house in West Forty-eighth Street, where he pays $3 a week for his room and $6 for his meals.

CUBAN COUNTESS LOSES SUIT.

Asked $250,000 from Gen. Brooke for Loss of Slaughter Privilege.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16.—The long-pending claim of the Countess of Buena Vista, otherwise Dona Maria Francisca O'Reilly, against Major Gen. Brooke, retired, was adjudicated to-day by the Supreme Court of the United States unfavorably to the Countess.

The suit was a demand for the payment of $250,000 damages, asserted to have been suffered through an official order issued by Gen. Brooke while serving as Military Governor of Cuba, by which the Countess's exclusive right to slaughter cattle in Havana was abolished. She asserted this right as the daughter of the hereditary High Sheriffs of Havana.

TIMOTHY P. SULLIVAN, 'MAYOR'

He Signs Permits for Auction Sales and for Children to Go on the Stage.

"Mayor" Timothy P. Sullivan spent a busy day yesterday. He received visitors and practically the whole Third Aldermanic District got down to the City Hall to tell Mr. Sullivan how well he looked in the Mayor's office.

During the day the Acting Mayor signed a number of permits for night auction sales and for children to appear on the stage. This is about the extent of the Acting Mayor's powers.

MUD HOLES AUTO TRAPS.

New Jersey Farmer's High Charge to Haul Cars Out.

A mud hole on a road much traveled by automobiles is a good thing for the farmer in New Jersey, and several autoists who have been charged from $5 to $8 apiece for a team to pull the car from the mud have had a lingering suspicion after parting with their money that the farmer rather enjoys the pleasure and profit of finding a few autoists at his mercy.

Several touring parties who made short trips through New Jersey on Sunday returned to the city with hard luck stories of muddy roads into which the cars often sank up to the hubs of the whels. Two parties had a particularly aggravating experience at a little place called Marshtown, on the Red Bank road, a short distance this side of the intersecting road which leads to Matawan.

The mud hole in which the cars were stuck happened to be conveniently near a farm house, and it was noticed that the farmer and several friends complacently stood at the fence offering no help or sympathy, but when asked for his team he demanded $5 for the work, which took but two minutes. This had to be paid, as the motorists were helpless and no other assistance was available.

There were four automobiles stalled at this place at noon Sunday, and it is said that a few days before four machines each paid $8 for a few minutes' use of the team. There is some suspicion that the road at this place is kept in bad condition as a trap for automobiles.

The Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America signified its willingness yesterday to receive information from others who have been stuck at this particular spot.

NEW YORK'S AUTO BILL.

Higher Fees, Better Identification, and Severer Penalties the Chief Features.

Some interesting information regarding the coming changes in the automobile law as proposed in the new motor bill which will probably be introduced into the State Legislature at Albany this week was announced yesterday by President Oliver A. Quayle of the New York State Automobile Association. The State Association has virtually drafted the bill through its Legislative Committee, and it has the indorsement of all the clubs in the State organization. The marked differences between the existing motor law and the new bill are:

1. The bill provides for the annual registration of motor vehicles, and for the payment of fees sufficiently large in amount to be equivalent to taxation of those vehicles by the State. It is anticipated that the revenue derived from this taxation will return to the State, for the first year, from $250,000 to $300,000, with a substantial increase each year thereafter. All of the revenue so obtained shall be paid to the special fund for the maintenance of State highways.

The fees are to be based upon weight, and will vary from $2, for the lightest vehicle, to not more than $15 for the 6,000-pound cars.

2. A thorough method of identification of motor vehicles when on the public highways is provided for in the provision that all vehicles shall hereafter carry numbers, (front and rear,) the said numbers to be changed in color each year, and to be issued and provided by the Secretary of State. Severe penalties are imposed for violations of this provision.

3. In addition to the usual provisions as to lamps, horns, &c., there is an entirely new provision prohibiting the use of non-skidding tire devices, except when the highway is covered with ice or snow, or in an otherwise dangerous condition.

4. The usual exemption for non-resident owners. The same prohibition against local ordinances affecting automobiles, as is in the present law, together with a brief definition of permissive speed, which corresponds to that recognized in foreign countries, and very much like the provision of the Connecticut law, which is in operation to-day.

5. To assist local Magistrates in enforcing the law as to the second and third offenses provision is made for the transmission of records or convictions, under the law, to the Secreary of State, who, in turn, is obliged to notify all the County Clerks of the State of all speed violations. Along the same line there is a new provision requiring the Secretary of State to file with each County Clerk a list of registered motor vehicle owners and registered chauffeurs, and to file each thirty days a supplemental list, showing registrations to date, to the end that local authorities may ascertain the identity of persons who violate the law and do injury to others while operating motor vehicles.

6. Besides the local penalties for violations, which are somewhat more severe than those at present in force, it will be possible to annul the certificate of registration of any vehicle that uses a fictitious number, and to suspend, for a period of time, the right of any chauffeur to operate any motor vehicle in case of convictions.

In addition there is a provision making it a misdemeanor for any person to tamper with or use a motor vehicle without the consent of its owner.

AUTOISTS IN SAVANNAH.

Keen Interest in Races Beginning To-morrow—Fast Time Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 16.—Prominent automobilists from many parts of the country have arrived in Savannah during the last few days to witness the stock car races on Wednesday and Thursday. J. De Mont Thompson, Chairman, Secretary F. H. Elliott, and Frank G. Webb, Vice Chairman of the American Automobile Association Racing Board, are all here. The track has been oiled for its entire 18-mile circuit, and for two hours every day it is used by the racing machines, and these trials are witnessed by hundreds of spectators. Every driver who has been over the course is loud in its praises, and predicts fast time on the two race days. The honorary referees include Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia and Mayor Tiedeman of Savannah.

A feature of the racing is the placing of the entire course under the control of the militia. Gov. Hoke Smith issued an order directing the military to take charge of the roads and prevent traffic over them from 7 o'clock in the morning until 7 at night on the racing days. This is the first time this has been done for auto purposes in the United States. Major W. B. Stephenson, State Senator, and serving in the Georgia Volunteer Militia, will have charge of the policing of the course. The Savannah Electric Railway, whose cars pass over the course two or three times, has arranged to bridge over these places and transfer passengers during the hours of the races.

A grand stand holding 4,000 people has been built, and nearly every seat sold in advance, and hundreds of auto owners have bought parking privileges.

Auto Carnival Parade Judges.

The judges for the automobile carnival parade on the evening of April 7 were selected yesterday. They are President Colgate Hoyt of the Automobile Club of America, A. R. Shattuck, ex-President Robert Lee Morrell, and Dr. C. B. Parker of the Long Island Automobile Club. R. G. Howell, the Grand Marshal, has appointed the following aides for the various divisions: W. I. Fickling, first division, composed of cars of 1903 and earlier, old racing cars, and the Briarcliff racers; I. H. Manning, second division, composed of dealers' stock models; Alexander Howell, third division, composed of decorated cars; H. E. Wagner, fourth division, composed of commercial vehicles. Each Marshal will be allowed to appoint as many assistants as are necessary in his own division.

MORIARTY REPORTS AT YANKEES' CAMP

HAS NOT SIGNED CONTRACT

Team Engages in Signal Practice—Giants Will Finish Their Training at Dallas—Games Scheduled.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 16.—George Moriarty, last year's third baseman of the New York Americans, who has been holding out for more money, arrived in Atlanta this evening rather unexpectedly. Although Moriarty has not yet signed a contract, it is believed he came here on his own initiative, and will more than likely agree to the club's figures. Moriarty will start training with the team tomorrow.

The Yankees were obliged to lay off this afternoon on account of the fact that Macon and Atlanta played an exhibition game on the grounds. However, the men got three hours' work-out under a hot sun this morning. The session was devoted exclusively to the practicing of signals. Chesbro, Orth, and Doyle pitched to the outfielders and utility men. The infielders were in their regular positions. Capt. Elberfeld would allow the bases to be filled and then lay plans to trap the runners. Blair worked behind the bat all morning. Chesbro was in good form and seemed to have perfect control.

The Yankees will lay off again to-morrow afternoon, and also on Thursday, as the Macons play here again on those days. The Highlanders will confine their work to the mornings during the Macon team's stay here.

GIANTS TO QUIT MARLIN.

Dallas Selected as Spot for Rest of Training Period of Team.

Special to The New York Times.

WACO, Texas, March 16.—With every man of the regular team in almost perfect condition, Manager McGraw and his band of ball players are on the way back to Marlin to finish their training period at that place.

McGraw is highly pleased with the form the men are all showing, and having secured about all the benefits possible out of the Marlin mineral baths, will, beginning with next Friday, make Dallas the headquarters for the remainder of the training period.

The regulars leave Marlin Thursday for a game Friday at Calvert, and Friday night will find the whole squad out of Marlin, the regulars proceding from Calvert to Dallas for games Saturday and Sunday, while the striplings will be divided into two squads, each with a veteran in charge, one stopping at this city for two games with the local team, and the other going on to Fort Worth for a similar number of games.

$100 Fines for Four Clubs.

CINCINNATI, March 16.—Fines of $100 each were inflicted on the Boston American League, Columbus American Association, Chicago American League, and New Orleans Club by the National Baseball Commission to-day for misleading statements in agreements for transfer of Players Gessler, Rohe, and Dundon. The Columbus Club submitted its agreement with the Boston Americans for the sale of Player Gessler, part of the consideration being delivery by Boston of Player Congalton or Player Harris. This point was not in the copy of the agreement on file with the commission, and furthermore Player Harris was not at the time with the Boston club. Declaring that the real facts had been concealed the fine was announced with the threat that a repetition of the offense would bring a much heavier penalty. The Chicago-New Orleans offense was a secret agreement for the release to New Orleans of Players Dundon and Rohe as part consideration for purchase of Players Manuel and Atz by Chicago. This proviso was not in the original agreement of sale as filed with the commission. The same warning is given in this case as in that involving Columbus and Boston.

New Atlantic League Formed.

BOSTON, Mass., March 16.—The Atlantic Baseball Association was formally organized in this city to-day. At a meeting held in the office of the American League the circuit was decided upon as follows: Lewiston, Me.; Portland, Me.; Newport, R. I.; Pawtucket, R. I.; Woonsocket, R. I., and Taunton, Mass. It was voted to open the season May 2 and end it Sept. 7. Hugh McBreen was elected President and Fred Lake, formerly of the National and New England Leagues, was chosen Secretary-Treasurer.

Cross Wins Sensational Fight.

In one of the best exhibitions of boxing witnessed at the Dry Dock Athletic Club since this popular east side fistic organization was opened, Leach Cross, the local dentist-pugilist, last night defeated Frankie Madden of this city in five rounds. The contest was sensational throughout, and so fast and exciting that the record-breaking crowd rose in their seats and cheered. From the start until the end of the third round the issue was in doubt. After Cross had floored Madden in the opening round, the latter came back in the second and capsized Leach. In the fourth Cross rushed and sent Madden to the boards twice. It was in the fifth round, though, that Cross displayed his ability to punch and avoid his opponent's onslaught. He waded right into Madden, swinging both hands. Before the crowd was aware Madden was staggering all over the ring. Cross followed up his advantage, never giving Madden a breathing spell. Twice Madden took the count, and the last blow, a right to the jaw, sent Madden down and out. In the other bouts Tommy Carey and Paddy Lee drew after six rounds; Jack Smith outpointed "Sailor" Kelly in four rounds; George Kitson stopped Sammy Corbett in four rounds, and "Hoboken" Tommy Murphy and Barney Wilson made a draw of their contest.

Smith and Dipples Bout a Draw.

Howard Smith and Billy Dipples opposed each other in the main bout of six rounds at the Consolidated Athletic Club last night. It was a fast, exciting scrap, with the result a draw. Smith used a swift left-hand jab and landed often on his rival. Dipples countered smartly with the right, and in this way managed to even matters. Harry Johnson and Jack Vendotta furnished a lively exhibition. Johnson took the initiative in the first three rounds, but although he landed frequently he was unable to make any impression on his man. In the final round Vendotta, with lefts and rights, reached Johnson effectively, and had him down for the count. It was easily Vendotta's fight. Jack O'Shea and Billy Smith kept the "members" on the alert in their essay for six rounds. There was a rapid exchange of blows, and at the expiration of the sixth period Smith was tired and leg weary. Dick Paff and Mike Kauffman could not move lively enough to suit the referee, and they were hustled out of the ring.

Burns Bets $4,500 He Will Win.

DUBLIN, March 16.—"Tommy" Burns, the American pugilist, who will meet Jem Roche, the Irish fighter, for the heavyweight championship of the world in this city to-morrow, St. Patrick's Day, has given evidence of his confidence in his ability to beat the Irishman by betting $4,500 at 1 to 3 on himself and offering to put up $5,000 more at the same odds. The coming fight is creating a great deal of interest here. "Bill" Squires, the Australian heavyweight, who is advising Roche, has announced his intention of challenging the winner.

TO STUDY ATHLETICS.

French Officials to Attend Twenty-second Regiment's Meet To-night.

Military athletic meets in France will in the future be patterned after those held in the armories in this city. Secretary Silas H. Jenkins and Assistant Secretary A. von den Ende of the Athletic Club of Paris, who are here to secure information relative to the American custom of conducting athletic meetings, have accepted the invitation of the Games Committee of the Twenty-second Regiment Athletic Association to witness the annual indoor athletic meet of the regiment at the armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway, to-night. The French athletic officials were very much impressed with the New York Athletic Club meet at Madison Square Garden, but as the military organizations of France are taking up athletic sports, they have selected the Twenty-second Regiment games as a representative military athletic meet, and as a result soldier games in France will be conducted along the lines of to-night's meeting.

Two special events have been added to the programme which have created considerable interest among the athletes. The triangular Australian bicycle pursuit race between the Thirteenth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third regiments is practically a contest of champion cyclists of America. The other event will consist of an entirely new race, an indoor three-mile cross-country run, which promises to arouse great interest. The event has attracted athletic material of the highest standard, as the following clubs have entered teams: Pastimes, Mohawks, Mott Havens, Xaviers, Trinity, and Stars. As nearly as possible the course will be made similar to those over which athletes travel out of doors.

The intense rivalry between companies will be a source of hot fighting for points. In former years it remained for one or two companies to secure the honors, but at to-night's games at least six companies are considered dangerous. The most famous athletes in the country, including several who represented America at the Olympic games, will figure in the point-winning list. Among the prominent members of the regiment who will compete are Forrest Smithson, world's record hurdle holder; Melvin Sheppard, and J. P. Sullivan, National Amateur Athletic Union champions; Dan Frank, J. J. McEntee, A. Koch, and G. Smith.

Dominican Lyceum to Hold Games.

Members of the Amateur Athletic Union, the Catholic Athletic League, the Military Athletic League, the Sixty-ninth Regiment A. A., and the Dominican Lyceum, will have the advantage of special events at the indoor meet of the latter organization, which will be held at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory on Saturday evening, April 4. Following is a list of events open to all registered athletes: 60-yard run, handicap; 300-yard run, handicap; 600-yard run, handicap; 600-yard run, novice, and half-mile walk, novice.

1,000 Athletes in Y. M. C. A. Meet.

The entries for the Young Men's Christian Association inter-association athletic and gymnastic meet to be held under the auspices of the Harlem Branch at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, Saturday, March 21, closed last Saturday with a record-breaking list of entries. The wrestling championships have attracted many of the best performers on the mat in the Metropolitan A. A. U. district. About 1,000 athletes will take part in the different events.

Pilgrim After Quarter-Mile Record.

Spring games of the Seventh Regiment promise to be successful. The Athletic Committee has invited the best three mile runners in the Metropolitan A. A. U. district to compete in the special race, and has received acceptances from Carr, Frank, Bailey, and Muller. Paul Pilgrim of the New York Athletic Club will be on scratch in the quarter-mile handicap, and will attempt to establish a new record for the distance.

LOZIER

SAFETY

We have never known an instance of the destruction by fire, on the road, of a motor car which had THE GASOLINE TANK SUSPENDED UNDERNEATH THE CHASSIS FRAME IN THE REAR, as it is in THE LOZIER MOTOR CAR.

The writer personally witnessed the total destruction by fire of three cars last summer, due in every case to the GASOLINE TANK BEING LOCATED UNDER THE FRONT SEAT. One instance occurred on the Perth Amboy-Metuchen road, another on White Plains road and the third in Central Park. In two cases a sudden leak in the tank and an accumulation of gasoline in the sheet metal pan underneath started an uncontrollable conflagration UNDER THE TANK, and in the third instance the overturning of the car ruptured THE TANK UNDER THE FRONT SEAT, and the gasoline igniting in the interior of the car.

A leak in the gasoline tank of THE LOZIER MOTOR CAR would allow the gasoline to drop harmlessly to the ground. If the car were ripped open by accident—being in the rear and furthest from the motor—the gasoline would not be ignited. If there develop a leak in the pipes leading from the gasoline tank to the carburetor it is at once noticed and the driver may shut off the flow by turning a valve, all pressure.

An unsuspected accumulation of gasoline or oil in the pan under a LOZIER Car is IMPOSSIBLE, as this pan is of cast metal, sloping to the low point under the fly wheel, where there is an opening which insures immediate escape of any.

THE LOZIER 1908 SHAFT-DRIVE CAR has many other features worthy of investigation.

The stock was estimated to be worth $1,000.

BREAKWATER CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING COMPANY.—Robert C. Morris, receiver in bankruptcy for the Breakwater Construction and Engineering Company, 115 Broadway, has been authorized to continue the business for twenty days by Judge Holt of the United States District Court on application of Irving L. Ernst of Olcott, Gruber, Bonynge & McManus. Mr. Ernst said that the receiver had also been authorized to carry out the contracts with the United States Government for work on breakwaters at various places, and to borrow $50,000 by the issue of receivers' certificates to carry on the business.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Close with Losses—Call Money Rates, 2@1¾ Per Cent.

REALIZING SALES THE FACTOR

Success of Government's Rebate Suits and Crucible Steel Dividend Have Effect on Market.

After a sharp rally in the first hour of yesterday's stock market, in the course of which prices of the leading shares rose two points or so, a wave of selling set in which carried the market away before it steadily to the close of the day, when the same shares had lost all of their early gains and were well under the closing prices of Saturday. For the morning's upturn the forcing in of a stubborn short interest seemed entirely responsible. After this had been accomplished the more courageous speculators joined with those having stocks for sale upon which profits had accrued, and their combined offerings drove prices down without intermission. The character of the trading was professional, save for a rather substantial volume of liquidation. This seemed to proceed from quarters where stocks have been carried for a long time in expectation of their ultimate sale at something better than the extremely low prices prevailing for several months. It has been similar liquidation which has come to the surface each time the market has had a substantial rally of any sort since the October panic. The securities involved formed undoubtedly either collateral or investments held by banks which have been forced to close, or by associations formed to come to the assistance of other hard pressed institutions which managed to survive the storm. An effort was made to connect the pressure of the afternoon with the news from Washington that the United States Supreme Court had rendered a decision upholding the Government's contentions in the rebate cases brought some time ago against a number of packing houses of Kansas City and certain railroads handling their traffic. This decision is, of course, important as a precedent, but it had been expected. Some attention was also paid to the passing of its dividend by the Crucible Steel Company and the accompanying statement of a loss of $496,000 by the company during the six months ending Feb. 29. Another Washington item much discussed was that relating to the success of Senator Tillman in having adopted by the Senate his resolution providing for an inquiry into the office of the Controller of the Currency nominally, but actually into the more serious question as to the part played by banking institutions in the furnishing of capital for speculative enterprises.

Changes in money markets were unimportant here, and abroad discount rates rested at former levels. The German Bank reported a gain of $5,750,000 cash and reduced its loans and notes, a showing which encourages the belief held in Berlin that the bank rate will soon be reduced. The local banks reported a gain of above $1,000,000 from the Sub-Treasury as against a loss in the same period a week ago. The Government's figures on foreign trade for the month of February display a falling off in exports of merchandise as compared with January, December, and November, but the total of $167,800,000 makes, nevertheless, a record for the month of February. To offset the decline in exports there was again a sharp contraction in imports. Manufacturers will naturally continue to make the most possible out of their foreign business with the home trade in such poor shape, but the policy cannot succeed indefinitely under the circumstances now surrounding their overproduction.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—Trading on the local Exchange was more active and broader than it has been in several months. Reading and United States Steel led the movement. Of the purely local stocks, Philadelphia Rapid Transit, Philadelphia Electric, and Lake Superior made substantial gains early, but reflected heaviness later on realizing sales.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Recession Called Logical.

It could scarcely be said that the recession in yesterday's market from the high price of the earlier trading was wholly unexpected. It was not only those bearishly inclined who were expecting lower prices for the day, but many of those who have been consistent believers in the real strength of the market and its ability to continue the improvement further. This mental attitude is easily explained by the theory that the advance had gone far enough to inspire some courage on the part of the bears, resulting in the selling of some of the more important issues, and also in the desire of those long of stocks to obtain their profits. Brokers say that their customers have followed their stocks with stop-loss orders, advancing the stops in proportion to the advance in price. Naturally, any recession which would reach these stop-loss orders would precipitate, temporarily at least, some liquidation. That this was a factor in the market yesterday is generally accepted. Some of the most active professionals were busy selling stocks, but whether this represented long stock or not is a question that they alone could answer. The character of the selling might indicate nothing more than bear pressure.

Bond Market Lagging.

Some operators in stocks assert that they would be more bullish if the bonds market reflected more forcibly what is supposed to be a new development of optimism. One bond man said that the condition in the bond market was not at all related to the betterment in stocks. "It seems to me that the very fact that the bond market shows so little improvement is in itself a sufficient explanation of the character of the stock market. In other words, technical conditions in stocks have been useful in promoting the advance, but absolutely ineffective, of course, as a general factor in the investment markets. If the advance in the securities on the Stock Exchange were due to public trading or, indeed, to increasing activity among the so-called big interests, we should find it reflected very forcibly in our market, or, to put it a little differently, our market would have shown the impending activity and improvement in the stock market. I have seen enough of the relation between the bond market and the stock market to convince me that an improvement in bonds must precede a real, actual, healthy stock market."

Value of Investing Friends.

One of the junior members of a house doing an investment business and having branches in three or four cities, was approached by a friend with a proposition to float an issue of bonds on an enterprise not only legitimate but unusually good. Unfortunately, the proposition was in the construction stage at the moment, but the partner in question took it under consideration and promised to look into the whole affair. His investigations resulted in more or less enthusiasm, and a private report which he obtained from a disinterested engineer made him desirous of obtaining the bonds, particularly as the terms on which they were offered were eminently favorable. He had to take the proposition up naturally with the other members of his firm, and their conservatism was at first a stumbling block. There was no question concerning the merit of the plan, but rather as to the possibility of selling the bonds under such financial conditions. The young partner insisted that they could be sold, and sold easily, and he promised that if he could not demonstrate that the bonds could be sold he would not insist on any deal being made. Then he turned to his acquaintances and friends among investors and worked quietly for some time, with the result that at the next conference he was able to submit figures showing that personally he could dispose of 55 per cent. of the total issue without having to advertise them at all. The deal went through.

Equipment Business Dull.

Official reports from equipment companies doing business with railroads show that business has fallen off materially during the last few months. The figures are convincing enough, but some of the officers of these companies are a little more emphatic. An officer of one company supplying two or three necessary and important articles to the railroads says that he finds it possible nowadays to get through his official business in an hour in the mornings, and the accumulated work of the remainder of the day is easily disposed of in a very brief session in the afternoon. "I do not need," he said, "to go to the bookkeeping department or the auditor to find out what we are doing. My own mail is the most convincing exhibit. But you may take my word for it that there are signs of a change, and I expect that another month or so will show improvement in our business."

Lucky Chance Introduction.

Between the acts at one of the theatres one night last week the head of a well-known company took a stroll through the lobby of the theatre and met one of his downtown friends, who asked him if he would not like to meet another man equally well known, but with whom he was not acquainted. He signified his assent and the necessary introductions were performed. The mutual friend went to the box office to obtain a reservation for some day of the following week for a party of friends. When he returned he found the two men whom he had introduced to each other discussing certain securities which had been issued by the company of which the first mentioned party was the head. He did not stop, but passed on to his seat. Later in the evening he found that the chance introduction had resulted in the transfer of about $400,000 worth of securities from one man to the other, incidentally providing a bargain for the purchaser and some very welcome ready cash to the other man.

Good Profits in Ore Lands.

The first annual report of the Trustees of the Great Northern Ore Lands, made public yesterday, showed receipts for the year ended Dec. 7 last of $1,650,000, out of which there was distributed to the certificate holders $1,500,000. The expenses of administration were $67,750, leaving a balance of $82,249. In addition the Trustees have received since the close of the fiscal year—namely, on Feb. 1, 1908—$1,500,000. The corporation's lease covers 39,295 acres.

Friction in Lake Superior.

The stockholders of the Lake Superior Corporation will hold their adjourned annual meeting on April 8. It was reported yesterday that several new Directors will be elected as a result of the friction in the board between the New York Directors and the Philadelphia interests. The New York interests are desirous of effecting a change in the management in the belief that the company would do much better were one or two changes made in the officers.

Otis Elevator Company's Good Year.

Net earnings of $996,104 for the year 1907 were reported yesterday by the Otis Elevator Company in the report submitted at the annual meeting. This compared with net earnings of $855,167 in 1906. The balance, after the payment of dividends, was $433,051, and out of this there was charged off for depreciation $271,116, leaving a surplus for the year of $161,935, bringing the total surplus up to $1,861,935.

SUIT BREAKS UP LAW FIRM.

D. & H. Dispute Dissolves Ward, Mellen & Woodbridge Partnership.

The law firm of Ward, Mellen & Woodbridge, it became known yesterday, has been dissolved by mutual consent. This comes as a sequel to the abandonment of the injunction proceedings brought for Hymans & Zoon against the Delaware & Hudson Company last week, and the subsequent effort of Mr. Ward to intervene in the case in behalf of another plaintiff after it had been stipulated with the Delaware & Hudson Company that the injunction proceedings should be abandoned. Chase Mellen and Francis Woodbridge will continue practicing under the firm name of Mellen & Woodbridge and Henry M. Ward will practice by himself.

TWO DIVIDENDS PASSED.

Crucible Steel and Great Northern Paper Co. to Make No Payment.

Two industrial companies—the Crucible Steel Company and the Great Northern Paper Company—announced yesterday the passing of their dividends. The Great Northern Paper Company, which paid quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. from Dec. 1, 1905, to Dec. 1, 1907, will not pay the March dividend this year.

Last December the Crucible Steel Company, which had been paying 1½ per cent. quarterly on its preferred stock, reduced the amount to 1 per cent. The stock is entitled to 7 per cent. The Directors yesterday decided not to pay the quarterly dividend.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The meeting of the American Steel Foundries stockholders, at which action was to be taken on the proposed financial plan, has been put over until April 8. About 75 per cent. of the shareholders have approved the plan, but Chairman Gary intimated at Saturday's meeting that the plan would not be put through unless a larger percentage of the stockholders consent.

The Nipissing Mines Company announced yesterday the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. payable April 20.

George Blumenthal was elected yesterday a Director of the American Light and Traction Company to succeed L. H. Withey, resigned.

The committee headed by Richard Sutro, formed to represent general lien and convertible bonds of the Western Maryland Road, announced yesterday that it already controls 30 per cent. of these issues and about one-third of the stock. The committee states that it has no connection with the interests which control the road.

The Directors of the Buffalo Mines, Limited, have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 20, 1908. Books close on that day and reopen April 2, 1908.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Business Quiet on European Bourses—Prices Not Much Changed.

LONDON, March 16.—Money was in fair demand and supply on the market to-day, and discounts were weak. The Bank of England secured the bulk of £600,000 gold available.

Cheerfulness prevailed in the early hours on the Stock Exchange, principally owing to the rise in American securities, but prices eased later. Consols were affected by outside liquidation and home rails by lack of support. Copper shares ruled strong on reports of large sales of the metal from New York, but Paris sold Rio Tintos and caused general recessions.

American securities opened higher, the sustained strength of Wall Street inducing further local speculation. But the best prices were not maintained, and some irregularity developed upon the receipt of the New York opening. On renewed support, however, the market closed firm at practically the best.

Bar silver was quiet at 25 9-16d per ounce.

Money, 3¼@3½ per cent.

PARIS, March 16.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm, but trading was dull.

BERLIN, March 16.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive and prices were weaker.

Bank of Germany.

BERLIN, March 16.—The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes: Cash in hand, increased 23,029,000 marks; loans, decreased 17,175,000 marks; discounts, increased 27,507,000 marks; treasury bills, decreased 14,074,000 marks; notes in circulation, decreased 25,613,000 marks; deposits, increased 46,723,000 marks.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Nervous on Conflicting News—Closes 10 Points Up to 4 Down.

Cotton was irregular with near months higher and later positions relative easy as a result of good weather in the South and reports of better progress with farm work. The closing was steady on March and May, but easy on later positions, at a net advance of 10 points to a decline of 4 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 175,000 bales.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2@5 points on better cables. Exports exceeded the day's port receipts by about 13,000 bales. Advices from the interior were conflicting as to spot condition. Mail advices from Bremen state that conditions are unsettled among German spinners, and that the volume of fresh orders is hardly sufficient to replace the contracts which are running out.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Sat. Close.
March	10.37	10.29	10.35@10.36	10.25
April	10.37	10.37	10.35@10.37	10.28

October	9.82	9.73	9.73@ 9.74	9.77
December	9.84	9.78	9.77@ 9.78	9.81

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 11.20c for middling upland and 11.45c for middling Gulf. Sales, 2,300 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: New Orleans, quiet, 1⁄16c lower, at 10 15-16; sales, $1,800 bales. Mobile quiet, unchanged, at 10⅝c; sales, 50 bales. Memphis quiet, unchanged, at 11⅝c; sales, 1,100 bales. Houston quiet, unchanged, at 11⅛c; sales, 826 bales. Savannah quiet, unchanged, at 10⅝c; sales, 150 bales. Norfolk dull, unchanged, at 11⅛c; sales, 22 bales. Augusta quiet and steady, 1-16c lower, at 11⅛@11 3-16c; sales, 266 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Green bug damage stories from Kansas and Oklahoma, which accompanied last week's final advance, failed of confirmation yesterday, and prices, save for one or two unimportant rallies, trended downward all day, new crop positions showing the greatest weakness. The opening was weak on Northwest receipts of 668 cars, compared with 652 a year ago. Liverpool was ½d net higher, while Continental markets were practically unchanged. There was no export interest. Late indications were that fully 400,000 bushels had been sold for milling account. The big Minneapolis receipts came largely from Winter wheat points. At the close No. 2 red in New York was quoted $1.01, elevator, and $1.02, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.14¾, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12⅛, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—Starting quite firm and without apparent pressure, prices gradually eased off to about ⅝c below Saturday. There was a slight rally in the late afternoon. The visible supply decreased 1,263,000 bushels. Exporters took 2 loads. No. 2 corn in New York closed 74¼c, elevator, and 68¼c, free on board, afloat; other grades nominal.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee continued very quiet yesterday, sales for the day being only 7,000 bags. The market opened steady at unchanged prices. Havre was ¼f lower during her early session, but recovered, closing net unchanged, while Hamburg, after opening unchanged, was somewhat reactionary, closing net unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. The two Brazilian ports received 19,000 bags, against 56,000 last year and 9,000 two years ago. Receipts at the two ports for the last week were 118,000 bags, against 100,000 the previous week, 320,000 last year, and 72,000 two years ago. So far for the season receipts have been about 103,000 bags larger than during the corresponding period of 1905-1906, when the crop aggregated 10,227,000 bags. Warehouse deliveries for the week are estimated at 130,000 bags, against 112,000 for the same week last year and 95,500 for the same week two years ago.

Spot coffee was quiet on the basis of 6¼c for Rio No. 7.

A Period of Sober Reflection

The investor who has decided to buy Guaranteed Mortgages wants the best guarantee. The Lawyers Mortgage Company claims its guarantee is the best for the following reasons:
It is the only Mortgage Company that limits the amount of mortgages guaranteed in proportion to its Capital and Surplus. In other words, it will not spread its guarantee so thinly over large amounts of mortgages as to weaken its effectivness.

THREE JOCKEYS FAIL TO GET LICENSES

Knapp, Michael, and Romanelli Cannot Ride in Jockey Club Circuit.

TWO TRAINERS UNDER BAN

Applications of William Martin and W. B. McDermott Rejected—Many Others Laid on the Table.

The first action of the new racing season on the applications of trainers and jockeys for licenses for 1908 was taken by the Stewards of The Jockey Club at a meeting held in the Windsor Arcade yesterday afternoon. In five cases, three of which concerned jockeys, applications were rejected flatly, the most notable of these being that of William S. Knapp, who rode on the New York tracks until late last Fall, and then left hastily for the West, after riding a number of races which aroused sharp criticism.

It was said at the time that Knapp had been warned to leave, but his departure stopped the gossip about his riding, and the announcement that he had been denied a license is the first official notice that Knapp had incurred the displeasure of the turf authorities.

Knapp is a product of the Western tracks and was brought to New York three years ago, attached to the stable of E. R. Bradley, for whom he rode through the season. He also was employed by all the other leading stables at times, and through the season of 1906 was counted among the fashionable and successful jockeys. He had an abundance of employment last season, also, up to the end of the year. The specific race for which Knapp came under official notice was one in which he was badly beaten on the filly Gold Lady for a stake event run at Belmont Park at the Autumn meeting, for which Gold Lady was the pronounced favorite in the betting.

The applicants to whom licenses were denied were as follows:

For trainers' licenses—William Martin and William B. McDermott. For jockeys' licenses—Harry Michael, Roche Romanelli, and William S. Knapp.

Applications for licenses which were laid on the table on the recommendation of the License Committee were as follows:

For trainers' licenses—John Beatty, B. E. Beach, W. C. Joplin, Peter Burrell, Thomas Dycer, Benjamin C. Epperson, Joseph L. Ahearn, H. Busenbark, A. M. Brown, John Connolly, A. W. Claxon, G. B. McFadden, John R. Thornby, and William C. Wright.

For jockeys' licenses—David Englander, James C. Michaud, Charles E. White, and Charles Koerner.

Licenses were granted to the following:

Trainers—M. M. Allen, Preston Morris Burch, F. E. Brown, B. R. Brandt, George P. Brazier, Fred Burlew, James Boden, W. P. Burch, A. H. Bradley, James Blute, W. H. Congdon, R. W. Morris as Steward at the Spring meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club of Baltimore, and Walter S. Vosburgh as Steward at the Spring meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club.

J. E. Lane of Esmont, Va., and George W. J. Bissell of Pittsburg, both of whom raced horses as owners, and George Heffernan, who rode as a jockey at the unrecognized meeting given by the Jamestown Jockey Club at Norfolk, Va., last Fall, were reinstated. The Stewards in attendance were August Belmont, F. K. Sturgis, J. H. Bradford, F. R. Hitchcock, and Andrew Miller, Mr. Belmont presiding.

THE BENNING HANDICAPS.

Weights for Feature Races of Washington Meeting Announced.

The weights for the Benning Handicap, to be run in two parts as the feature events of the Washington Spring meeting, were announced yesterday by J. A. Murphy, handicapper and associate judge for the meeting. The first part of the Benning Handicap, at six furlongs, to be run next Monday, on the opening day of the Washington races, will be the first important event of the Eastern racing season.

The weights fixed are to rule for both parts of the Benning Handicap, except in the case of winners after the publication of weights, for which a moderate scale of penalties is provided, the chief penalty arranged for being that the winner of the first handicap shall carry ten pounds extra in the race for the second part. Protective Basket Ball Winners.

The local championship basket ball tournaments of the Protective Association have just been concluded with the Emeralds, Alerts, and Diamond Wanderers, winners in Brooklyn, New York, and New Jersey senior classes, respectively, and the Elgin Five, Metropolitans, and Atlas winners of the juniors. These teams will compete in the final tournament for the championship of the Eastern States. Bids for the holding of this tournament have been received from Newark, Brooklyn, and Hoboken.

BURLESQUE ON WRESTLING.

Hackenschmidt Introduced to Americans After Absence of Three Years.

George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, made his reappearance last night in this city after an absence of three years, when he met three men at the Grand Central Palace, Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue. The world's champion wrestler gave a clever exhibition and showed at least that he had lost none of his agility.

Poor judgment was shown in charging grand opera prices for the entertainment. Had the prices been popular instead of $2, $3, and $5, the attendance would have tested the seating capacity instead of having the hall half empty. The public has been fooled too often to pay big prices for an ordinary wrestling exhibition.

The management did the best it could to procure a worthy antagonist for Hackenschmidt, but woefully failed. "Hack's" first victim was Neil Olson, who lasted 4 minutes 32 second and 1 minute 31 seconds in the two falls at the Greco-Roman style. He was pinned to the mat both times with a half-Nelson hold. The second wrestler to go down before the champion was Young Hackenschmidt. The name was the only point in favor of the latter. He was fully fifty pounds lighter and was completely outclassed. It was a cat-and-mouse affair, Hackenschmidt toyin gwith his light opponent and throwing him twice in less than four minutes. Hackenschmidt's last appearance was with Emil Stagenmiller, his wrestling partner.

After an hour's wait Joe Humphreys mounted the stage and announced as contestants for the first preliminary bout Hans Lehnert of Germany and George Schnable of Bavaria. The combined weight of the two men was 450 pounds, the biggest part of which was put on while working in a Brooklyn brewery. After ten minutes' tugging and pulling, the contestants were blowing like a pair of porpoises in deep water. The end came after thirteen minutes, when Schnable secured a half Nelson on his German opponent and rolled over on top of him, pinning both shoulders to the mat. Lehnert won the second fall, and the bout was declared a draw.

Paul Cronje in ladylike pink fleshings was introduced as the hero of the Boer war. He was opposed by Tom McCarthy. The style was catch-as-catch-can. Neither man knew much about the rules, but they amused the spectators and made up for their lack of knowledge of the game in their willingness. The Boer champion forgot his cue several times and very nearly threw himself. The bout was terminated by Tom McCarthy throwing the South African with a catch hold.

George Bothner and Carl Christiansen performed a clever high and lofty tumbling act. There was plenty of action for nearly six minutes, when Bothner ended the contest by throwing his opponent with a full Nelson. Bothner met Sailor Nelson at catch-as-catch-can style and gained a fall after three minutes and forty-six seconds. The other bouts do not call for any comment.

HOPPE BEATS SCHAEFER.

Veteran Loses First Game of 18.2 Series to Younger Opponent.

Jake Schaefer fell before the prowess of youthful Willie Hoppe in a short and interesting game of 18.2 balk-line billiards at Gruhn's academy, Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway, last night. The exhibition was the first of a series of ten matches between the pair. The matches have been arranged to help Schaefer prepare Hoppe for his forthcoming contest with Champion George Sutton on March 27 in this city. Hoppe played extremely well against the veteran and won by 400 points to 306. The score:

Hoppe—1 64 2 2 29 21 74 56 24 2 44 76 5. Total, 400; average, 30 10-13; high runs, 76, 74, and 64.

Wright and Conklin with Cue.

CHICAGO, March 16.—C. F. Conklin of Chicago won the second game in the National amateur 14.2 billiard tournament to-day, defeating E. W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., by the score of 400 to 271. Conklin's average was 12 28-31 and Gardner's 8 23-31. Conklin took the lead in his initial inning, when he made a run of 141, and was never overtaken by Gardner. Gardner's playing was mostly of the open table kind, and only in two innings was he able to hold the balls together for runs of any size. In the first he collected 40 and in the twenty-third 51. Score:

Conklin—141 2 2 0 1 19 2 2 24 26 1 0 7 15 23 0 26 8 13 0 1 3 6 15 0 14 13 1 15 2 18. Total, 400; high run, 141; average, 12 28-31.

Harry Wright of San Francisco to-night defeated J. P. Poggenburg of New York in the third game of the National amateur billiard championship tournament by the score of 400 to 165. Wright's average was 20 flat, and Poggenburg's 8 5-20.

Cassignol Breaks Even in Match.

F. Cassignol, the French billiard expert, had an opportunity to demonstrate his skill at 18.2 balk-line billiards against two of the best exponents of the game in the country at Slosson's Academy yesterday. The Frenchman had George F. Slosson for an opponent in the afternoon, and in the evening he played Champion George Sutton. Against the "Student" Cassignol showed far superior form than he did last week when he met Slosson for a series of games. He seemed to be in his element, making a run of 140 points with an average of 21 6-14, running out his block of 300 in fourteen innings and winning by 300 to 216. In the evening Cassignol found a much more difficult proposition in Sutton. He could not keep apace with the champion, who played fast and steady. Cassignol's masse shooting did not avail him anything, and Sutton won, 500 to 240.

Downs Outplays Phillips.

It took Downs just fifteen innings to defeat H. Phillips by the score of 50 to 15 in the pool tournament at John T. Doyle's Academy last night. Downs played consistently throughout, rolling 14 points without a miss. Phillips's best effort was 5. To-night A. Smith and W. Bradley will play. The score:

Downs—14 0 9 8 0 0 10 0 2 0 5 1 0 24. Total—50. High run—14. Safety—1. Scratches—1.

Phillips—1 1 2 0 1 1 2 5 0 0 1 1 0 0. Total—15. High run—5. Safety—2. Scratches—0.

Close Three-Cushion Game at Daly's.

I. Oblatt (scratch) defeated S. Dittman (scratch) by 30 points to 22 in the three-cushion billiard tournament at Maurice Daly's academy last night. Oblatt had almost perfect control over the ivories in the latter part of the game, which lasted eighty-three innings. Dittman led in the first twenty innings, making a high run of 4. Oblatt's best run was 2. P. Leidig (5) and S. Dittman (scratch) will play to-night.

Miles to Play Tennis at Tuxedo.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., March 16.—Eustace H. Miles, ex-amateur court tennis champion of England, with Peter Latham, professional champion court tennis player of the world, who are now on the Atlantic, will arrive in Boston Wednesday, and come to Tuxedo Friday for a series of exhibition matches which have been aranged by the management of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club. Mr. Miles will play Mr. Latham on Saturday afternoon, March 21, and the following day Jay Gould, amateur champion of the United States and England, will meet Mr. Latham in an exhibition match. Much interest is displayed in these matches as Mr. Miles has come to the United States to endeavor to win back the championship which Jay Gould took from him in England last year. The men will meet in April, immediately after the tournament for the court tennis championship of America, which will take place at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club on April 6.

Flounder fishermen were in their glory at Jamaica Bay on Sunday. The Springlike weather caused the fish to run freely, and good catches, especially along the Long Island trestle bridge, were numerous. Around Rockaway Beach fishermen are reported to have had good sport. James Turvin and Henry Spicer got twenty between them, and all were of good size.

Hempstead Harbor fishermen started the season on Sunday, and while the weather was not considered especially favorable, a number of flounders were caught. Twenty veterans celebrated the opening at Glen Head, and while all were not successful, it was accounted to be a good start. Two of the party landed forty pounds of flounders.

NEW YORK BOWLERS LEAD.

Capture Most Money at Rochester Tourney—Brooklyn Second.

New York bowlers led the list of prize winners at the tournament of the National Bowling Association, which closed at Rochester on Saturday night. They brought home with them more than $1,500 in the three events—five and two men teams and individuals. Included in this amount, however, are the winnings of Lee R. Johns and W. Weingarth of Newark, N. J.; James Watt of Bridgeport, Conn., and the Brouchas of Staten Island. The five-men teams annexed $511.32; two-men, $572.88, and individuals, $469.29.

Brooklyn representatives believe they should take precedence over New York, because they won nearly $1,400, and nobody but a Brooklyn man rolled on their teams. They point to the fact that their five-men teams gathered in $450.50; two-men, $280.03, and individuals, $606.35. The Superbas won the most money among the five-men teams, Walter and Schwartje led the two-men team winners, and Fred Schwartje won first among the individuals, with $157.74.

The sweepstakes match for two-men teams, which wound up the tournament, had twenty-seven starters. The conditions called for each team to roll five games, the total pins to count. Bowlers from Cleveland took both first and second prizes, with a total of 1,981 pins for one team and 1,974 for the other. Johnny Smith of Brooklyn and Alexander Dunbar of New York, the world's champions, finished sixth, and Johnny Voorheis of New York and Lee Johns of Newark seventh.

AUTOMATIC BRAKES SAVE SUBWAY TRAIN

RUNNING 25 MILES AN HOUR

Without Aid of Motorman or Guards the Two Parts Come to a Halt in 250 Feet.

When a crowded Lenox Avenue express southbound in the Subway parted in the middle yesterday morning at Times Square and the two sections came to a sudden stop with much grinding of brakes, there were few passengers who had time to think of anything but the danger which seemed to threaten them. It is doubtful if even the seven guards on the train took time to think of the safeguards with which a wise engineering staff had equipped those eight cars just for such an emergency.

Cold iron and steel and compressed air accomplished that which the motorman and guards could never have done—stopped the broken train with its human cargo in close to the length of the train, and guarded against a far more serious accident that the one which caused the train to part in the middle—the slipping of a coupling.

All that the passengers heard was the grinding of brakes, but this is what occurred the instant the train parted: Every brake shoe which rests against the wheels of each car ground hard on the wheels until the sparks flew and smoke curled up from the friction. When the rubber tube which connects from one end of the train to the other was broken, instantly the air released from an auxiliary tank at the bottom of each car was forced under great pressure into the brake cylinders and set in operation the automatic brake system. This automatic brake system is a Westinghouse patent, and every Subway car is equipped with it.

The express was running around the Times Square curve at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour when the coupling parted. When the two sections stopped, only a few feet intervened between the ends of the parted train.

Another thing which the passengers did not think of in their fright was that as soon as the coupling became unfastened and the train stopped, a red light flashed in the rear, far back along the tracks, warning the next train that an obstruction was on the track ahead.

When the train parted there was excitement among the passengers. It was 8 o'clock, the morning rush hour, and the train was packed to its full capacity. All hands crowded away from the doors, expecting a crash. Men and women were packed so tightly in the centre of the cars that for a time breathing was difficult.

The guards got out their emergency couplings, and in ten minutes the train was made up again, ready to resume its run. But this wait of ten minutes was felt all along the line of the southbound express track from Fiftieth Street to West Farms, and cars remained standing, waiting for the danger signals ahead to disappear.

While the train crew was getting the cars together, Conductor James E. Connelly of 114 Jennings Street grew incautious and stepped too near the southbound local track. The suction from a passing local caught him and pulled him against the side of the fast-moving train. He was whirled around and hurled to the ground, badly bruised. His fellow-employes carried him to the Grand Central Station, and he was taken to Flower Hospital, where it was found his injuries were not serious.

The coupling which jarred loose was between the fourth and fifth cars. A spring in the coupling broke, allowing the clutch to shake loose from its socket as the train swung around the Times Square curve. The train, which was bound for Borough Hall, Brooklyn, was taken off the service at Brooklyn Bridge for repairs.

Confesses to Theft to Save a Brother.

When Michael Toplitzsky was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in the Court of General Sessions yesterday to be sentenced for stealing a truck and team of horses, together with $3,000 worth of dry goods, he found his brother Abraham, 20 years old, at the bar protesting that he was the real thief. The boy insisted that the prisoner was entirely innocent. Michael was released on suspended sentence and Abraham was held for examination. Assistant District Attorney Ely said Abraham was trying to shield his brother.

Accident to Big Oil Barge.

TO HEAR JEROME CHARGES.

Gov. Hughes Names ex-Chief Judge Andrews of the Court of Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 16.—Gov. Hughes to-day appointed Charles Andrews of Syracuse, former Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, as Commissioner to take testimony and report his findings on the charges against District Attorney Jerome made by William F. King, representing minority stockholders of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. There are twenty-four counts against Mr. Jerome involving his action in the insurance cases as well as in the case of the street railway company, and also contributions to his campaign by corporations.

Judge Andrews is instructed to investigate the charges which cover acts of the present term of the District Attorney. Some of the matters complained of occurred in Mr. Jerome's first term and they will not be considered.

Gov. Hughes has expressed the desire that the charges should be thrashed out in a fair manner and in a way that will command the confidence of the people. Judge Andrews, who is eighty years old, was elected Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals in 1870. Eleven years later he was appointed Chief Judge. He retired in 1897.

District Attorney Jerome received early notification yesterday of the Governor's action. He seemed pleased with the Governor's attitude, especially in regard to the barring of those charges which reflected on his first administration.

BONNER'S FUNERAL TO-DAY.

Escort of 250 Policemen to Lead the Cortege from House to Church.

Commissioner Bingham announced yesterday the police arrangements for the funeral of Fire Commissioner Hugh Bonner, which will be held to-day from the family home, 636 West End Avenue. The body will be taken to the Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Name of Jesus, Ninety-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, for a special service.

The funeral cortège will be led by a police escort of 250 men, at the head of which will be Police Inspectors Walsh and Thompson with fifteen mounted men. The platoon will assemble at West End Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street, near the home, and will act as escort to the church.

There will be a brigade of three battalions of firemen, four companies to each, and ten men to a company. Fire Chief Croker will be in charge of the brigade. Deputy Chief Thomas Lally will be in charge of the first battalion, Deputy Chief Duane the second, and Deputy Chief Binns the third battalion.

The pall bearers will be Deputy Chiefs James F. Murray, James J. McCartney, and Joseph B. Martin, Battalion Chiefs Thomas F. Barrett and Thomas F. Dougherty, and Foreman Daniel Lawlor, Hamilton F. Pearly and Michael J. McNamara.

NO STAY FOR GILLETTE.

Gov. Hughes Will Not Interfere with Condemned Man's Execution.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 16.—Gov. Hughes will not interfere in any way with the execution in the week beginning March 30 of the death sentence upon Chester Gillette of Cortland, convicted of the murder of Grace, or "Billy," Brown of South Otselio, Chenango County, at Big Moose Lake, in the Adirondacks, in July, 1906.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 16.—When Mrs. Louise Gillette, mother of Chester Gillette, was told to-day of Gov. Hughes's attitude she broke down completely, and then said: "It cannot be that the Governor will decide the case before I have seen him and told him of its merits. I cannot believe that God would be so unjust as to let my boy die in the electric chair for a crime of which he is innocent. If Chester must die in the electric chair, he is reconciled."

Judgment Against the Garrisons.

Judgment has been entered against William R. Garrison, son of the late Commodore Garrison, and his wife, Constance C. Garrison, daughter of the late Charles Coudert, for $2,567 in a suit brought by Julia C. Harle of 165 Madison Avenue for money loaned, it is alleged, for their personal expenses Mr. Garrison's counsel, W. J. Harding, of 145 Broadway, refused to discuss the case last night. He also denied the rumors that have been persistent of late that there is any trouble between his client and his wife.

He was arrested, pleaded guilty, and was held for the Grand Jury.

3D ELEVATED TRACK HELD TO BE ILLEGAL

Justice Davis So Decides and Gives J. R. Roosevelt $38,700 Damages to Property.

SUIT IN COURTS SIX YEARS

Decision a Far-Reaching One and Many Other 9th Ave. Property Owners Have Suits Pending.

Supreme Court Justice Davis, in a decision handed down yesterday in the action for damages brought by James R. Roosevelt and others against the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company for trespassing on the premises 29, 31, 33, and 35 Ninth Avenue by the building and operating of a three-track elevated railroad, after awarding Mr. Roosevelt $38,700, says that the building of a third track by the company was illegal, and for that reason the plaintiffs were bound to succeed in their action. As there are many similar suits pending on the part of the property owners along Ninth Avenue, the decision is far-reaching and of great importance.

The present action was begun six years ago to restrain the company from operating an elevated railroad in front of the premises named. Damages for trespass also were claimed. In his opinion Justice Davis says in part:

> The defendants received legislative authority to construct, maintain, and operate for public use and conveyance of persons and property an elevated railway of two tracks along Ninth Avenue on the opposite sides thereof and in front of the plaintiff's premises, and each of said tracks was not to exceed five feet in width between the centre of the rails. The right to use the open space between these tracks for a middle track was not included in this grant.
> The defendant's right by prescription depends, among other things, upon the acquiescence of the owner of the easement in defendant's appropriation of it. In the case at bar, it may be admitted that there was such acquiescence in the use of the two tracks without the third track for seventeen years, but such acquiescence cannot be availed of to cover the use of the two tracks increased in weight, size, and traffic capacity by the third track.

Continuing, Justice Davis says: "I think that the building of this third track operated as an effective interruption of defendant's original user and defeated the claim of prescriptive light. The damage is $30,000 and rental damage is $1,800 yearly, making a total of $38,700."

A well-known lawyer who is in touch with the situation said at the City Club last night that the decision was not of great importance, for the reason that the railroad company has already settled many of the claims against them.

Weak Little Boys
may become fine strong men. Some of the strong men of to-day were sickly boys years ago. Many of them received at their mother's knee. This had a power in it that changed them from weak, delicate boys into strong, robust boys.
It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It makes children grow. : : :
